FRIENDS IN YORKSHIRE,

At their Quarterly-Meeting, held at YORK the 24th and 25th of the third month, 1773, concerning

JOHN WOOLMAN,

Of Mount-Holly, in the province of New-Jersey in America, who departed this life at the house of our friend Thomas Priestman, in the suburbs of this city, the 7th of the tenth month, 1772, and was interred in the burying ground of friends the 9th of the same, aged about fifty two years.

HIS our valuable friend having been under a religious engagement for fome time, to vifit friends in this nation, and more efpecially us in the northern parts, undertook the fame in full concurrence and near fympathy with his friends and brethren at home, as appeared by certificates from the monthly and quarterly meetings to which he belonged, and from the fpring-meeting of minifters and elders, held at Philadelphia, for Pennfylvania and New-Jerfey.

He

He arrived in the city of London the beginning of the laft yearly meeting, and after attending that meeting travelled northward, vifiting the quarterly meetings of Hertfordfhire, Buckinghamshire, Northamptonshire, Oxfordshire and Worcestershire, and divers none to halp use; [love ed round about and particular meetings in his way. He vifited many meetings on the Weft fide of this county, alfo fome in Lancafhire and Weftmoreland, from whence he came to our quarterly meeting in the laft ninth month, and though much out of health, yet was enabled to attend all the fittings of that meeting except the laft.

His diforder then, which proved the finall pox, increafed fpeedily upon him, and was very afflicting; under which he was fupported in much meeknefs, patience, and chriftian fortitude; to thofe who attended him in his illnefs, his mind appeared to be centered in divine love; under the precious influence whereof, we believe he finished his course, and entered into the mansions of everlasting reft.

In the early part of his illnefs he requefted a friend to write, and he broke forth thus. "O Lord my God! the amazing horrors

" O Lord my God! the amazing horrors of darknefs were gathered around me and covered me all over, and I faw no way to go forth; I felt the mifery of my fellow creatures feparated from the divine harmony and it was heavier than I could bear, and I was crufhed down under it; I lifted up my hand, and ftretched out my arm, but there was was

none to help me; I looked round about and was amazed: in the depths of mifery, O Lord! I remembered that thou art omnipotent, that I had called thee father, and I felt that I loved thee, and I was made quiet in thy will, and I waited for deliverance from thee; thou hadft pity upon me, when no man could help me; I faw that meeknefs under fuffering was fhewed to us in the moft affecting example of thy fon, and thou waft teaching me to follow him, and I faid, thy Will, O Father be done."

Many more of his weighty expressions might have been inferted here, but it was deemed unneceffary, they being already published in print.

He was a man endued with a large natural capacity, and being obedient to the manifestations of Divine Grace, having in patience and humility endured many deep baptifms, he became thereby fanctified and fitted for the Lord's work, and was truly ferviceable in his church; dwelling in awful fear and watchfulnefs, he was careful in his public appearances to feel the putting forth of the Divine Hand, fo that the fpring of the gospel ministry often flowed through him with great fweetnefs and purity, as a refreshing stream to the weary travellers towards the city of God: fkilfull in dividing the word, he was furnished by Him in whom are hid all the treasures of wifdom and knowledge, to communicate freely to the feveral flates of the people people where his lot was caft. His conduct at other times was feafoned with the like watchful circumfpection and attention to the guidance of Divine Wifdom, which rendered his whole convertation uniformly edifying.

He was fully perfuaded that as the life of Chrift comes to reign in the earth, all abufe and unneceffary oppreffion, both of the human and brute creation will come to an end; but under the fenfe of a deep revolt, and an overflowing ftream of unrighteoufnefs, his life has been often a life of mourning,

He was deeply concerned on account of that inhuman and iniquitous practice of making flaves of the people of Africa, or holding them in that flate; and on that account we understand he hath not only wrote fome books, but travelled much on the continent of America, in order to make the Negro mafters (efpecially those in profession with us) fenfible of the evil of fuch a practice ; and though in this journey to England, he was far removed from the outward fight of their fufferings, yet his deep exercise of mind remained, as appears by a fhort treatife he wrote in this journey, and his frequent concern to open the miferable state of this deeply injured people : his testimony in the last meeting he attended was on this fubject, wherein he remarked, that as we as a fociety, when under outward fufferings had often found it our concern to lay them before those in authority, and thereby in the Lord's time, had had obtained relief, fo he recommended this opprefied part of the creation to our notice, that we may as way may open, reprefent their fufferings in an individual, if not a fociety, capacity to those in authority.

Deeply fenfible that the defire to gratify people's inclinations in luxury and fuperfluities, is the principal ground of oppreffion, and the occafion of many unneceffary wants, he believed it to be his duty to be a pattern of great felf-denial, with respect to the things of this life, and earneftly to labour with friends in the meeknefs of wifdom, to imprefs on their minds the great importance of our testimony in these things, recommending to the guidance of the bleffed Truth in this and all other concerns, and cautioning fuch as are experienced therein, against contenting themfelves with acting up to the ftandard of others, but to be careful to make the standard of truth manifested to them, the measure of their obedience; for faid he, " That purity of life which proceeds from faithfulnefs in following the Spirit of Truth, that ftate where our minds are devoted to ferve God, and all our wants are bounded by his wifdom; this habitation has often been opened before me as a place of retirement for the children of the light, where they may stand feparated from that which difordereth and confuseth the affairs of fociety, and where we may have a testimony of our innocence in the hearts of those who behold us."

We

We conclude with fervent defires, that we as a people may thus, by our example, promote the Lord's work in the earth; and our hearts being prepared, may unite in prayer to the great Lord of the harveft, that as in his infinite wifdom he hath greatly ftripped the church, by removing of late divers faithful minifters and elders, he may be pleafed to fend forth many more faithful labourers into his harveft.

MONTHLY-MEETING OF FRIENDS,

Held in Burlington, the first day of the eighth month, in the year of our Lord, 1774, concerning our esteemed friend

JOHN WOOLMAN, DECEASED.

TE was born in Northampton, in the county of Burlington, and province of Weft-New-Jerfey, in the eighth month, 1720, of religious parents, who inftructed him very early in the principles of the christian religion, as profeffed by the people called Quakers, which he efteemed a bleffing to him, even in his young years, tending to preferve him from the infection of wicked children; but through the workings of the enemy, and levity incident to youth, he frequently deviated from those parental precepts, by which he laid a renewed foundation for repentance, that was finally fucceeded by a godly forrow not to be repented of, and fo became acquainted with that fanctifying power which qualifies for true gospel ministry, into which he was called about the twenty-fecond year of his age, and by a faithful use of the talents committed to him, he experienced an encrease, until he arrived at the state of a father, ther, capable of dividing the word aright to the different flates he ministered unto; difpenfing milk to babes, and meat to those of riper years. Thus he found the efficacy of that power to arife, which in his own expressions, " prepares the creature to stand like a trumpet through which the Lord speaks to his people."—He was a loving husband, a tender stather, and very humane to every part of the creation under his care.

His concern for the poor and those in affliction was evident by his vifits to them; whom he frequently relieved by his affiftance and charity. He was for many years deeply exercifed on account of the poor enflaved Africans, whofe caufe, as he fometimes mentioned, lay almost continually upon him, and to obtain liberty to those captives, he laboured both in public and private; and was favoured to fee his endeavours crowned with confiderable fuccefs. He was particularly defirous that friends should not be instrumental to lay burthens on this oppressed people, but remember the days of fuffering from which they had been providentially delivered, that if times of trouble fhould return, no injustice dealt to those in flavery might rife in judgment against us, but, being clear, we might on fuch occasions address the Almighty with a degree of confidence, for his interpolition and relief, being particularly careful as to himfelf, not to countenance flavery even by the use of those conveniencies of life which were furnished by their labour.

Hę

He was defirous to have his own, and the minds of others, redeemed from the pleafures and immoderate profits of this world, and to fix them on those joys which fade not away ; his principal care being after a life of purity, endeavouring to avoid not only the groffer pollutions, but those also which, appearing in a more refined drefs, are not fufficiently guarded against by fome well difposed peo-In the latter part of his life he was reple. markable for the plainnefs and fimplicity of his drefs, and as much as poffible, avoided the use of plate, costly furniture and feasting; thereby endeavouring to become an example of temperance and felf-denial, which he believed himfelf called unto; and was favoured with peace therein, altho' it carried the appearance of great aufterity in the view of fome. He was very moderate in his charges in the way of bufinefs, and in his defires after gain; and tho' a man of industry, avoided, and ftrove much to lead others out of extreme labour, and anxiousness after perishable things; being defirous that the ftrength of our bodies might not be fpent in procuring things unprofitable, and that we might use moderation and kindness to the brute animals under our care, to prize the use of them as a great favour, and by no means abufe them; that the gifts of Providence should be thankfully received and applied to the uses they were defigned.

He feveral times opened a fchool at Mount-Holly, for the inftruction of poor friends children children and others, being concerned for their help and improvement therein :---his love and care for the rifing youth among us was truly great, recommending to parents and thofe who have the charge of them, to chufe confcientious and pious tutors, faying, " It is a lovely fight to behold innocent children," and that " to labour for their help againft that which would marr the beauty of their minds, isa debt we owe them."

His ministry was found, very deep and penetrating, fometimes pointing out the dangerous fituation which indulgence and cuftom leads into; frequently exhorting others, efpecially the youth, not to be difcouraged at the difficulties which occur, but prefs after purity. He often expressed an earness engagement that pure wifdom should be attended to, which would lead into lowliness of mind and refignation to the divine will, in which state finall possessions here would be fufficient.

In transacting the affairs of discipline, his judgment was found and clear, and he was very useful in treating with those who had done amiss; he visited fuch in a private way in that plainness which truth distates, shewing great tenderness and christian forbearance. He was a constant attender of our yearly-meeting, in which he was a good example, and particularly useful; affisting in the business thereof with great weight and attention. He several times visited most of the meetings of friends in this and the neighbouring bouring provinces, with the concurrence of the monthly-meeting to which he belonged, and we have reafon to believe had good fervice therein, generally or always expressing at his return how it had fared with him, and the evidence of peace in his mind for thus performing his duty. He was often concerned with other friends in the important fervice of visiting families, which he was enabled to go through to fatisfaction.

In the minutes of the meeting of ministers and elders for this quarter, at the foot of a lift of the members of that meeting, made about five years before his death, we find in his hand writing the following observation and reflections. " As looking over the minutes made by perfons who have put off this body, hath fometimes revived in me a thought how ages pass away; fo this list may probably revive a like thought in fome, when I and the reft of the perfons abovenamed, are centered in another state of being .- The Lord, who was the guide of my youth, hath in ten-der mercies helped me hitherto; he hath healed me of wounds, he hath helped me out of grievous entanglements; he remains to be the strength of my life; to whom I defire to devote myfelf in time, and in eternity."-Signed, John Woolman.

In the twelfth month, 1771, he acquainted this meeting that he found his mind drawn towards a religious vifit to friends in fome parts of England, particularly in Yorkthire. In the first month 1772, he obtained our certificate, which was approved and endorfed by our our quarterly meeting, and by the half year's meeting of ministers and elders at Philadelphia. He embarked on his voyage in the fifth, and arrived in London in the fixth month following, at the time of their annual meeting in that city. During his fhort vifit to friends in that kingdom, we are informed that his fervices were acceptable and edifying. In his last illness he uttered many lively and comfortable expressions, being " perfectly refigned, having no will either to live or die," as appears by the teftimony of friends at York in Great-Britain, in the fuburbs whereof, at the house of our friend Thomas Priestman, he died of the finall-pox, on the feventh day of the tenth month, 1772, and was buried in friends burying ground in that city, on the ninth of the fame, after a large and folid meeting held on the occafion, at their great meeting-house, aged near fifty-two years; a minister upwards of thirty years, during which time he belonged to Mount-Holly particular meeting, which he diligently attended when at home and in health of body, and his labours of love and pious care for the profperity of friends in the bleffed truth, we hope may not be forgotten, but that his good works may be remembered to edification.

IN THE SERVICE OF THE GOSPEL.

CHAP. I.

His birth and parentage, with some account of the operations of divine grace on his mind in his youth - His first appearance in the miniftry - And his confiderations, while young, on the keeping of flaves.

HAVE often felt a motion of love to leave fome hints in writing of my experience of the goodness of God: and now, in the thirty-fixth year of my age, I begin this work.

I was born in Northampton, in Burlington county, West-Jersey, in the Year 1720; and before I was feven years old I began to be be acquainted with the operations of divine love. Through the care of my parents, I was taught to read near as foon as I was capable of it; and as I went from fehool one feventh day, I remember, while my companions went to play by the way, I went forward out of fight, and fitting down, I read the 22d chapter of the Revelations. "He fhewed me a " pure river of water of life, clear as chry-" ftal, proceeding out of the throne of God " and of the Lamb, &c." and in reading it, my mind was drawn to feek after that pure habitation, which, I then believed, God had prepared for his fervants. The place where I fate, and the fweetnefs that attended my mind, remains frefh in my memory.

my mind, remains fresh in my memory. This, and the like gracious visitations, had that effect upon me, that when boys used ill language, it troubled me; and, through the continued mercies of God, I was preferved from it.

The pious inftructions of my parents were often fresh in my mind when I happened to be among wicked children, and were of use to me. My parents, having a large family of children, used frequently, on first days after meeting, to put us to read in the holy feriptures, or fome religious books, one after another, the reft fitting by without much conversation; which, I have fince often thought, was a good practice. From what I had read and heard, I believed there had been, in past ages, people who walked in uprightness before God, in a degree exceeding any that I knew, or heard heard of, now living : and the apprehension of there being lefs steadiness and firmness amongst people in this age than in past ages, often troubled me while I was a child.

A thing remarkable in my childhood was, that once going to a neighbour's houfe, I faw, on the way, a robin fitting on her neft, and as I came near fhe went off, but having young ones flew about, and with many cries expressed her concern for them; I ftood and threw ftones at her, till one ftriking her, fhe fell down dead: at first I was pleafed with the exploit, but after a few minutes was feized with horror, as having, in a fportive way, killed an innocent creature while the was careful for her young : I beheld her lying dead, and thought those young ones, for which the was to careful, muft now perifh for want of their dam to nourifh them; and after fome painful confiderations on the fubject, I climbed up the tree, took all the young birds, and killed them; fuppofing that better than to leave them to pine away and die miferably: and believed, in this cafe, that fcripture proverb was fulfilled, " The " tender mercies of the wicked are cruel." I then went on my errand, but, for fome hours, could think of little elfe but the cruelties I had committed, and was much troubled. Thus He, whofe tender mercies are over all his works, hath placed a principle. in the human mind, which incites to exercife goodnefs towards every living creature; and this being fingly attended to, people B 2 be-become tender-hearted and fympathizing; but being frequently and totally rejected, the mind becomes fhut up in a contrary difpofition.

About the twelfth year of my age, my father being abroad, my mother reproved me for fome mifconduct, to which I made an undutiful reply; and the next first day, as I was with my father returning from meeting, he told me he understood I had behaved amiss to my mother, and advised me to be more careful in future. I knew myself blameable, and in shame and confusion remained filent. Being thus awakened to a fense of my wickedness, I felt remorfe in my mind, and getting home, I retired and prayed to the Lord to forgive me; and do not remember that I ever, after that, showever foolish in some other things.

Having attained the age of fixteen years, I began to love wanton company; and though I was preferved from profane language, or fcandalous conduct, ftill I perceived a plant in me which produced much wild grapes: yet my merciful Father forfook me not utterly, but at times, through his grace, I was brought ferioufly to confider my ways; and the fight of my backflidings affected me with forrow; but for want of rightly attending to the reproofs of inftruction, vanity was added to vanity, and repentance to repentance: upon the whole, my mind was more and more alienated from the truth, and I haftened toward ward deftruction. While I meditate on the gulf towards which I travelled, and reflect on my youthful difobedience, for these things I weep, mine eye runneth down with water.

Advancing in age the number of my acquaintance increafed, and thereby my way grew more difficult: though I had found comfort in reading the holy fcriptures, and thinking on heavenly things, I was now eftranged therefrom : I knew I was going from the flock of Chrift, and had no refolution to return; hence ferious reflections were uneafy to me, and youthful vanities and diverfions my greateft pleafure. Running in this road I found many like myfelf; and we affociated in that which is reverfe to true friendfhip.

But in this fwift race it pleafed God to vifit me with ficknefs, fo that I doubted of recovering; and then did darknefs, horror, and amazement, with full force, feize me, even when my pain and diffrefs of body was very great. I thought it would have been better for me never to have had a being, than to fee the day which I now faw. I was filled with confusion; and in great affliction, both of mind and body, I lay and bewailed myfelf. I had not confidence to lift up my crics to God, whom I had thus offended; but, in a deep fenfe of my great folly, I was humbled before him: and, at length, that Word which is as a fire and a hammer, broke and diffolved my rebellious heart, and then my cries were put up in contrition; and in the multimultitude of his mercies I found inward relief, and felt a clofe engagement, that if he was pleafed to reftore my health, I might walk humbly before him.

After my recovery, this exercife remained with me a confiderable time; but, by degrees, giving way to youthful vanities, they gained ftrength, and getting with wanton young people I loft ground. The Lord had been very gracious, and fpoke peace to me in the time of my diftrefs; and I now most ungratefully turned again to folly; on which account, at times, I felt fharp reproof, but did not get low enough to cry for help. I was not fo hardy as to commit things fcan-dalous; but to exceed in vanity, and pro-mote mirth, was my chief ftudy. Still I retained a love and efteem for pious people; and their company brought an awe upon me. My dear parents, feveral times, admonifhed me in the fear of the Lord, and their ad-monition entered into my heart, and had a good effect for a feafon; but not getting deep enough to pray rightly, the tempter, when he came, found entrance. I remember, once having fpent a part of the day in wantonnefs, as I went to bed at night, there lay in a window, near my bed, a bible, which I opened, and first cast my eye on the text, " we lie down in our fhame, and our " confusion covers us;" this I knew to be my cafe : and meeting with fo unexpected a reproof, I was fomewhat affected with it, and went went to bed under remorfe of confcience; which I foon caft off again.

Thus time past on : my heart was replenished with mirth and wantonness, while pleafing fcenes of vanity were prefented to my imagination, till I attained the age of eighteen years; near which time I felt the judgments of God, in my foul, like a confuming fire; and looking over my past life, the profpect was moving .- I was often fad, and longed to be delivered from those vanities; then again, my heart was ftrongly inclined to them, and there was in me a fore conflict: at times I turned to folly; and then again, forrow and confusion took hold of me. In a while, I refolved totally to leave off fome of my vanities; but there was a fecret referve in my heart, of the more refined part of them, and I was not low enough to find true peace. Thus, for fome months, I had great troubles; there remaining in me an unfubjected will, which rendered my labours fruitlefs, till at length, through the merciful continuance of heavenly visitations, I was made to bow down in fpirit before the Lord. I remember one evening I had fpent fome time in reading a pious author; and walking out alone, I humbly prayed to the Lord for his help, that I might be delivered from all those vanities which so enfnared me. Thus being brought low, he helped me; and as I learned to bear the crofs, I felt refreshment to come from his prefence; but not keeping in that ftrength which gave victory, I loft ground again; again; the fenfe of which greatly affected me: and I fought deferts and lonely places, and there with tears did confess my fins to God, and humbly craved help of him. And I may fay with reverence, he was near to me in my troubles, and in those times of humiliation opened my ear to difcipline. I was now led to look ferioufly at the means by which I was drawn from the pure truth, and learned this, that if I would live in the life which the faithful fervants of God lived in, I must not go into company as heretofore in my own will; but all the cravings of fenfe must be governed by a divine principle. In times of forrow and abasement these instructions were fealed upon me, and I felt the power of Christ prevail over felfish defires, fo that I was preferved in a good degree of fteadinefs; and being young, and believing, at that time, that a fingle life was beft for me, I was ftrengthened to keep from fuch company as had often been a fnare to me.

I kept fteadily to meetings; fpent firft days afternoon chiefly in reading the fcriptures and other good books; and was early convinced in my mind, that true religion confifted in an inward life, wherein the heart doth love and reverence God the Creator, and learns to exercife true juftice and goodnefs, not only toward all men, but alfo toward the brute creatures—That as the mind was moved, by an inward principle, to love God as an invifible incomprehenfible Being; by the fame principle it was moved to love him in all his manifestations in the visible world-That, as by his breath, the flame of life was kindled in all animal fenfible creatures, to fay we love God as unfeen, and, at the fame time, exercife cruelty toward the leaft creature moving by his life, or by life derived from him; was a contradiction in itfelf.

I found no narrownefs refpecting fects and opinions; but believed, that fincere upright hearted people, in every fociety, who truly love God, were accepted of him.

As I lived under the crofs, and fimply followed the openings of truth, my mind, from day to day, was more enlightened; my former acquaintance were left to judge of me as they would, for I found it fafeft for me to live in private, and keep thefe things fealed up in my own breaft. While I filently ponder on that change wrought in me, I find no language equal to it, nor any means to convey to another a clear idea of it. I looked upon the works of God in this visible creation, and an awfulnefs covered me; my heart was tender and often contrite, and univerfal love to my fellow-creatures increased in me: this will be underftood by fuch who have trodden in the fame path. Some glances of real beauty may be feen in their faces, who dwell in true meeknefs.

There is a harmony in the found of that voice to which divine love gives utterance, and fome appearance of right order in their temper and conduct, whole paffions are regulated; yet all these do not fully shew forth that that inward life to fuch who have not felt it: but this white ftone and new name is known rightly to fuch only who have it.

Now though I had been thus firengthened to bear the crofs, I ftill found myfelf in great danger, having many weakneffes attending me, and firong temptations to wreftle with ; in the feeling whereof I frequently withdrew into private places, and often with tears befought the Lord to help me, whofe gracious ear was open to my cry.

All this time I lived with my parents, and wrought on the plantation; and having had fchooling pretty well for a planter, I ufed to improve it in winter-evenings, and other leifure times; and being now in the twentyfirft year of my age, a man, in much bufinefs at fhop-keeping and baking, afked me, if I would hire with him to tend fhop and keep books. I acquainted my father with the propofal; and, after fome deliberation, it was agreed for me to go.

At home I had lived retired; and now having a profpect of being much in the way of company, I felt frequent and fervent cries in my heart to God, the Father of mercies, that he would preferve me from all taint and corruption; that, in this more public employment, I might ferve Him, my gracious Redeemer, in that humility and felf-denial, with which I had been, in a fmall degree, exercifed in a more private life. The man, who employed me, furnifhed a fhop in Mount-Holly, about five miles from my father's houfe houfe, and fix from his own; and there I lived alone, and tended his fhop. Shortly after my fettlement here, I was vifited by feveral young people my former acquaintance, who knew not but vanities would be as agreeable to me now as ever; and, at thefe times, I cried to the Lord in fecret for wifdom and ftrength; for I felt myfelf encompafied with difficulties, and had frefh occafion to bewail the follies of time paft, in contracting a familiarity with libertine people: and as I had now left my father's houfe outwardly, I found my heavenly Father to be merciful to me beyond what I can exprefs.

By day I was much amongft people, and had many trials to go through; but in the evenings, I was moftly alone, and may with thankfulnefs acknowledge, that, in thofe times, the fpirit of fupplication was often poured upon me; under which I was frequently exercifed, and felt my ftrength renewed.

In a few months after I came here, my mafter bought feveral Scotchmen fervants, from on board a veffel, and brought them to Mount-Holly to fell; one of which was taken fick, and died.

In the latter part of his ficknefs, he, being delirious, ufed to curfe and fwear moft forrowfully; and the next night after his burial, I was left to fleep alone in the fame chamber where he died: I perceived in me a timoroufnefs; I knew, however, I had not injured the man, but affifted in taking care of him according according to my capacity ; and was not free to alk any one, on that occasion, to fleep with me: nature was feeble; but every tryal was a fresh incitement to give myself up wholly to the fervice of God, for I found no helper like him in times of trouble.

After awhile, my former acquaintance gave over expecting me as one of their company; and I began to be known to fome whofe converfation was helpful to me : and now, as I had experienced the love of God, through Jefus Chrift, to redeem me from many pollutions, and to be a fuccour to me through a fea of conflicts, with which no perfon was fully acquainted; and as my heart was often enlarged in this heavenly principle, I felt a tender compassion for the youth, who remained entangled in fnares like those which had entangled me from one time to another: this love and tendernefs increafed; and my mind was more ftrongly engaged for the good of my fellow-creatures. I went to meetings in an awful frame of mind, and endeavoured to be inwardly acquainted with the language of the true Shepherd ; and one day, being under a ftrong exercife of fpirit, I ftood up, and faid fome words in a meeting; but not keeping close to the divine opening, I faid more than was required of me; and being foon fenfible of my error, I was afflicted in mind fome weeks, without any light or comfort, even to that degree that I could not take fatisfaction in any thing : I remembered God, and was troubled; and, in the depth of my diftrefs, trefs, he had pity upon me, and fent the Comforter: I then felt forgiveness for my offence, and my mind became calm and quiet, being truly thankful to my gracious Redeemer for his mercies; and after this, feeling the fpring of divine love opened, and a concern to fpeak, I faid a few words in a meeting, in which I found peace; this, I believe, was about fix weeks from the first time: and, as I was thus humbled and difciplined under the crofs, my understanding became more strengthened to distinguish the pure fpirit which inwardly moves upon the heart, and taught me to wait in filence fometimes many weeks together, until I felt that rife which prepares the creature to ftand like a trumpet, through which the Lord fpeaks to his flock.

From an inward purifying, and ftedfaft abiding under it, fprings a lively operative defire for the good of others : all the faithful are not called to the public ministry; but whoever are, are called to minister of that which they have tafted and handled fpiritually. The outward modes of worship are various; but wherever any are true ministers of Jefus Chrift, it is from the operation of his fpirit upon their hearts, first purifying them, and thus giving them a just fense of the conditions of others.

This truth was early fixed in my mind; and I was taught to watch the pure opening, and to take heed, left, while I was flanding to fpeak, my own will fhould get uppermoft, and and caufe me to utter words from worldly wifdom, and depart from the channel of the true gofpel miniftry. In the management of my outward affairs, I may fay with thankfulnefs, I found truth to be my fupport; and I was refpected in my mafter's family, who came to live in Mount-Holly within two years after my going there.

About the twenty-third year of my age, I had many fresh and heavenly openings, in respect to the care and providence of the Almighty over his creatures in general, and over man as the most noble amongst those which are visible. And being clearly convinced in my judgment, that to place my whole truss in God was best for me, I felt renewed engagements, that in all things I might act on an inward principle of virtue, and pursue worldly business no further, than as truth opened my way therein.

About the time called Chriftmas, I obferved many people from the country, and dwellers in town, who, reforting to publick-houfes, fpent their time in drinking and vain fports, tending to corrupt one another; on which account I was much troubled. At one houfe in particular there was much diforder; and I believed it was a duty incumbent on me to go and fpeak to the mafter of that houfe. I confidered I was young, and that feveral elderly friends in town had opportunity to fee thefe things; but though I would gladly have been excuted, yet I could not feel my mind clear.

OF JOHN WOOLMAN. 15

The exercife was heavy: and as I was reading what the Almighty faid to Ezekiel, refpecting his duty as a watchman, the matter was fet home more clearly; and then, with prayers and tears, I befought the Lord for his affiftance, who, in loving-kindnefs, gave me a refigned heart : then, at a fuitable opportunity, I went to the publick-house; and feeing the man amongst much company, I went to him, and told him, I wanted to fpeak with him; fo we went afide, and there, in the fear and dread of the Almighty, I exprest to him what refted on my mind; which he took kindly, and afterward fhewed more regard to me than before. In a few years afterwards he died, middle-aged; and I often thought, that had I neglected my duty in that cafe, it would have given me great trouble; and I was humbly thankful to my gracious Father, who had fupported me herein.

My employer having a negro woman, fold her, and defired me to write a bill of fale, the man being waiting who bought her: the thing was fudden; and though the thoughts of writing an inftrument of flavery for one of my fellow-creatures felt uneafy, yet I remembered I was hired by the year, that it was my mafter who directed me to do it, and that it was an elderly man, a member of our fociety, who bought her; fo, through weaknefs, I gave way, and wrote it; but, at the executing it, I was fo afflicted in my mind, that I faid, before my mafter and the friend, that that I believed flave-keeping to be a practice inconfistent with the christian religion : this in fome degree abated my uneafinefs; yet, as often as I reflected ferioufly upon it, I thought I fhould have been clearer, if I had defired to be excufed from it, as a thing against my confcience; for fuch it was. And fome time after this, a young man, of our fociety, fpoke to me to write a conveyance of a flave to him; he having lately taken a negro into his houfe: I told him, I was not eafy to write it; for, though many of our meeting and in other places kept flaves, I still believed the practice was not right; and defired to be excufed from the writing. I fpoke to him in good will; and he told me, that keeping flaves was not alto-gether agreeable to his mind; but that the flave being a gift made to his wife, he had accepted of her.

M Y efteemed friend Abraham Farrington, being about to make a vifit to friends on the eaftern fide of this province, and having no companion, he propofed to me to go with him; and after a conference with fome elderly friends, I agreed to go: fo we fet out the fifth day of the ninth month, in the year 1743; had an evening meeting at a tavern in Brunfwick, a town in which none of our fociety dwelt; the room was full, and the people quiet. Thence to Amboy, and had an evening meeting in the court-houfe; to which came many people, amongft whom were feveral members of affembly, they being in town on the public affairs of the pro-C vince: in both thefe meetings my antient companion was enlarged to preach, in the love of the gofpel. Thence we went to Woodbridge, Raway, and Plainfield; and had fix or feven meetings in places where friends meetings are not ufually held, being made up chiefly of prefbyterians, and my beloved companion was frequently ftrengthened to publifh the word of life amongft them: as for me, I was often filent thro' the meetings; and when I fpake, it was with much care, that I might fpeak only what truth opened: my mind was often tender, and I learned fome profitable leffons. We were out about two weeks.

Near this time, being on fome outward bufinefs in which feveral families were concerned, and which was attended with difficulties, fome things relating thereto not being clearly stated, nor rightly understood by all, there arofe fome heat in the minds of the parties, and one valuable friend got off his watch; I had a great regard for him, and felt a ftrong inclination, after matters were fettled, to fpeak to him concerning his conduct in that cafe; but I being a youth, and he far advanced in age and experience, my way appeared difficult ; but after fome days deliberation, and inward feeking to the Lord for affiftance, I was made fubject; fo that I exprest what lay upon me, in a way which became my youth and his years: and though it was a hard tafk to me, it was well taken, and, I believe, was ufeful to us both.

Having

Having now been feveral years with my employer, and he doing lefs at merchandize than heretofore, I was thoughtful of fome other way of bufinefs ; perceiving merchandize to be attended with much cumber, in the way of trading in these parts.

My mind, through the power of truth, was in a good degree weaned from the defire of outward greatnefs, and I was learning to be content with real conveniencies, that were not coftly; fo that a way of life, free from much entanglements, appeared best for me, tho' the income might be finall. I had feveral offers of business that appeared profitable, but did not fee my way clear to accept of them; as believing the bufinefs propofed would be attended with more outward care and cumber than was required of me to engage in.

I faw that a humble man, with the bleffing of the Lord, might live on a little: and that where the heart was fet on greatnefs, fuccefs in bufinefs did not fatisfy the craving; but that commonly with an increase of wealth, the defire of wealth increafed. There was a care on my mind fo to pass my time, that nothing might hinder me from the most fteady attention to the voice of the true Shepherd.

My employer, though now a retailer of goods, was by trade a taylor, and kept a fervant man at that bufinefs; and I began to think about learning the trade, expecting, that if I should settle, I might, by this trade, and a little retailing of goods, get a living C 2 in in a plain way, without the load of great bufinefs: I mentioned it to my employer, and we foon agreed on terms; and then, when I had leifure from the affairs of merchandize, I worked with his man. I believed the hand of Providence pointed out this bufinefs for me; and was taught to be content with it, though I felt, at times, a difpofition that would have fought for fomething greater: but, through the revelation of Jefus Chrift, I had feen the happinefs of humility, and there was an earneft defire in me to enter deep into it; and, at times, this defire arofe to a degree of fervent fupplication, wherein my foul was fo environed with heavenly light and confolation, that things were made eafy to me which had been otherwife.

After fome time, my employer's wife died; fhe was a virtuous woman, and generally beloved of her neighbours : and foon after this, he left shopkeeping; and we parted. I then wrought at my trade, as a taylor; carefully attended meetings for worfhip and difcipline; and found an enlargement of gospel love in my mind, and therein a concern to vifit friends in fome of the back fettlements of Pennfylvania and Virginia; and being thoughtful about a companion, I expressed it to my beloved friend Isaac Andrews, who then told me that he had drawings to the fame places ; and also to go through Maryland, Virginia, and Carolina. After confiderable time paft, and feveral conferences with him, I felt eafy to accompany him throughout; throughout, if way opened for it. I opened the cafe in our monthly meeting, and friends expreffing their unity therewith, we obtained certificates to travel as companions; his from Haddonfield, and mine from Burlington.

We left our province on the twelfth day of the third month, in the year 1746, and had feveral meetings in the upper part of Chefter county, and near Lancaster; in fome of which, the love of Chrift prevailed, uniting us together in his fervice. Then we croffed the river Sufquehannah, and had feveral meetings in a new fettlement, called the Red-Lands; the oldeft of which, as I was informed, did not exceed ten years. It is the poorer fort of people that commonly begin to improve remote deferts: with a fmall flock they have houfes to build, lands to clear and fence, corn to raife, cloaths to provide, and children to educate; that friends, who vifit fuch, may well fympathize with them in their hardfhips in the wildernefs; and though the best entertainment fuch can give, may feem coarfe to fome who are ufed to cities, or old fettled places, it becomes the disciples of Christ to be content with it. Ourhearts were fometimes enlarged in the love of our heavenly Father amongst these people; and the fweet influence of his spirit supported us through fome difficulties: to him be the praise.

We passed on to Manoquacy, Fairfax, Hopewell, and Shanando, and had meetings; fome of which were comfortable and edifying.

edifying. From Shanando we fet off in the afternoon for the old fettlements of friends in Virginia ; and the first night, we, with our pilot, lodged in the woods, our horfes feed-ing near us; but he being poorly provided with a horfe, and we young and having good horfes, were free the next day to part with him; and did fo. In two days after, we reached to our friend John Cheagle's, in Virginia: fo we took the meetings in our way through Virginia; were, in fome degree, baptized into a feeling fenfe of the conditions of the people; and our exercife in general was more painful in these old fettlements, than it had been amongst the back inhabitants: but through the goodnefs of our heavenly Father, the well of living-wa-ters was, at times, opened to our encouragement, and the refreshment of the fincere hearted. We went on to Perquimons, in North-Carolina; had feveral meetings, which were large; and found fome opennefs in those parts, and a hopeful appearance amongst the young people. So we turned again to Virginia, and attended most of the meetings which we had not been at before, labouring amongst friends in the love of Jefus Chrift, as ability was given : and thence went to the mountains, up James River, to a new fettle-ment; and had feveral meetings amongst the people, fome of whom had lately joined in membership with our fociety.

In our journeying to and fro, we found fome honeft-hearted friends, who appeared to be concerned for the caufe of truth among a backfliding people.

From Virginia, we croffed over the river Patowmac, at Hoe's ferry, and made a general vifit to the meetings of friends on the Weftern Shore of Maryland; and were at their quarterly meeting. We had fome hard labour amongst them, endeavouring to difcharge our duty honess way opened, in the love of truth : and thence taking fundry meetings in our way, we passed homeward; where, through the favour of Divine Proviclence, we reached the fixteenth day of the fixth month, in the year 1746; and I may fay, that through the affistance of the Holy Spirit, which mortifies felfish defires, my companion and I travelled in harmony, and parted in the nearness of true brotherly love.

Two things were remarkable to me in this journey: first, in regard to my entertainment; when I eat, drank, and lodged freecost with people, who lived in ease on the hard labour of their flaves, I felt uneafy; and as my mind was inward to the Lord, I found, from place to place, this uneafinefs return upon me, at times, through the whole vifit. Where the mafters bore a good fhare of the burthen, and lived frugally, fo that their fervants were well provided for, and their labour moderate, I felt more eafy; but where they lived in a coftly way, and laid heavy burthens on their flaves, my exercifewas often great, and I frequently had con-versation with them, in private, concerning it.

it. Secondly: this trade of importing flaves from their native country being much encouraged amongft them, and the white people and their children fo generally living without much labour, was frequently the fubject of my ferious thoughts: and I faw in thefe fouthern provinces fo many vices and corruptions, increafed by this trade and this way of life, that it appeared to me as a dark gloominefs hanging over the land; and though now many willingly run into it, yet in future the confequence will be grievous to pofterity: I express it as it hath appeared to me, not at once, nor twice, but as a matter fixed on my mind.

Soon after my return home, I felt an increafing concern for friends on our fea coaft; and on the eighth day of the eighth month, in the year 1746, with the unity of friends, and in company with my beloved friend and neighbour Peter Andrews, brother to my companion before-mentioned, we fet forward, and vifited meetings generally about Salem, Cape May, Great and Little Egg-Harbour; and had meetings at Barnagat, Mannahockin, and Mane-Squan, and foto the yearly meeting at Shrewfbury. Through the goodnefs of the Lord way was opened, and the firength of divine love was fometimes felt in our affemblies, to the comfort and help of those who were rightly concerned before him. We were out twenty-two days, and rode, by computation, three hundred and forty miles. At Shrewfbury yearly meeting, ing, we met with our dear friends Michael Lightfoot and Abraham Farrington, who had good fervice there.

The winter following died my eldeft fifter, Elizabeth Woolman, jun. of the fmall-pox, aged thirty-one years. She was, from her youth, of a thoughtful difposition; and very compassionate to her acquaintance in their ficknefs or diftrefs, being ready to help as far as fhe could. She was dutiful to her parents; one inftance whereof follows :--It happened that fhe, and two of her fifters, being then near the eftate of young women, had an inclination one first day after meeting to go on a vifit to fome other young women at fome diftance off; whofe company, I believe, would have done them no good. They exprest their defire to our parents; who were diffatisfied with the propofal, and stopped them. The fame day, as my fifters and I were together, and they talking about their difappointment, Elizabeth exprest her contentment under it; fignifying, fhe believed it might be for their good.

A few years after fhe attained to matureage, through the gracious vifitations of God's love, fhe was ftrengthened to live a felf-denying exemplary life, giving herfelf much to reading and meditation.

The following letter may fhew, in fome degree, her difposition:

Haddonfield,

Beloved brother John Woolman,

In that love which defires the welfare of all men, I write unto thee: I received thine, dated fecond day of the tenth month laft, with which I was comforted. My fpirit is bowed with thankfulnefs that I fhould be remembered, who am unworthy; but the Lord is full of mercy, and his goodnefs is extended to the meaneft of his creation; therefore, in his infinite love, he hath pitied and fpared and fhewed mercy, that I have not been cut off nor quite loft; but, at times, I am refrefhed and comforted as with the glimpfe of his prefence, which is more to the immortal part, than all which this world can afford: fo, with defires for thy prefervation with my own, I remain

Eliz. Woolman, jun.

The fore part of her illnefs fhe was in great fadnefs and dejection of mind, of which fhe told one of her intimate friends, and faid, when I was a young girl I was wanton and airy, but I thought I had thoroughly repented for it; and added, I have of late had great fatisfaction in meetings. Though fhe was thus difconfolate, ftill flue retained a hope, which was as an anchor to her: and fome time after, the fame friend came came again to fee her, to whom fhe mentioned her former expressions, and faid, it is otherwise now, for the Lord hath rewarded me feven-fold; and I am unable to express the greatness of his love manifested to me. Her diforder appearing dangerous, and our mother being forrowful, she took notice of it, and faid, dear mother, weep not for me; I go to my God: and many times, with an audible voice, uttered praise to her Redeemer.

A friend coming fome miles to fee her the morning before fhe died, afked her, how fhe did? fhe anfwered, I have had a hard night, but fhall not have another fuch, for I fhall die, and it will be well with my foul; and accordingly died the next evening.

The following ejaculations were found amongst her writings; wrote, I believe, at four times:

I. Oh! that my head were as waters, and mine eyes as a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night, until acquainted with my God.

II. O Lord, that I may enjoy thy prefence; or elfe my time is loft, and my life a fnare to my foul.

III. O Lord, that I may receive bread from thy table, and that thy grace may abound in me.

IV. O Lord, that I may be acquainted with thy prefence, that I may be feafoned with thy falt, that thy grace may abound in me.

Of late I found drawings in my mind to vifit friends in New-England, and having an opportunity of joining in company with my beloved friend Peter Andrews; we, having obtained certificates from our monthly meeting, fet forward on the fixteenth day of the third month, in the year 1747, and reached the yearly meeting at Long-Island ; at which were our friends Samuel Nottingham from England, John Griffith, Jane Hofkins, and Elizabeth Hudfon from Pennfylvania, and Jacob Andrews from Chefterfield. Several of whom were favoured in their publick exercife; and, through the goodness of the Lord, we had some edifying meetings. After this, my companion and I vifited friends on Long-Island; and, through the mercies of God, we were helped in the work.

Befides going to the fettled meetings of friends, we were at a general meeting at Setawket, chiefly made up of other focieties: and had a meeting at Oyfter-Bay, in a dwelling-houfe, at which were many people: at the firft of which there was not much faid by way of teftimony; but was, I believe, a good meeting: at the latter, through the fpringing up of living-waters, it was a day to be thankfully remembered. Having vifited the ifland, we went over to the main, taking meetings in our way, to Oblong, Nine-Partners and New-Milford.—In thefe back fettlements we met with feveral people, who, through the immediate workings of the fpirit of Chrift on their minds, were drawn from the vanities of the world, to an inward acquaintance with him : they were educated in the way of the prefbyterians. A confiderable number of the youth, members of that fociety, were used to fpend their time often together in merriment, but fome of the principal young men of that company being visited by the powerful workings of the fpirit of Chrift, and thereby led humbly to take up his crofs, could no longer join in those vanities; and as these flood stedfast to that inward convincement, they were made a bleffing to fome of their former companions; fo that, through the power of truth, feveral were brought into a clofe exercife concerning the eternal wellbeing of their fouls. These young people continued for a time to frequent their publick worfhip; and befides that, had meetings of their own; which meetings were a while allowed by their preacher, who fometimes met with them: but, in time, their judgment in matters of religion difagreeing with fome of the articles of the prefbyterians, their meetings were difapproved by that fociety; and fuch of them who flood firm to their duty, as it was inwardly manifefted, had many difficulties to go through : and their meetings were in a while dropped; fome of them returning to the presbyterians, and others of them, after a time, joined to our religious fociety.

I had conversation with fome of the latter, to my help and edification; and believe feve-

ral of them are acquainted with the nature of that worfhip, which is performed in fpirit and in truth. From hence, accompanied by Amos Powel, a friend from Long-Island, we rode through Connecticut, chiefly inhabited by prefbyterians ; who were generally civil to us, fo far as I faw: and after three days riding, we came amongst friends in the colony of Rhode-Island. We visited friends in and about Newport, and Dartmouth, and generally in those parts; and then to Boston; and proceeded eaftward as far as Dover: and then returned to Newport, and not far from thence, we met our friend Thomas Gawthrop from England; who was then on a vifit to these provinces. From Newport we failed to Nantucket; were there near a week; and from thence came over to Dartmouth : and having finished our visit in these parts, we croffed the Sound from New-London to Long-Ifland; and taking fome meetings on the illand, proceeded homeward; where we reached the thirteenth day of the feventh month, in the year 1747, having rode about fifteen hundred miles, and failed about one hundred and fifty.

In this journey, I may fay in general, we were fometimes in much weaknefs, and laboured under difcouragements; and at other times, through the renewed manifestations of divine love, we had feasons of refreshment, wherein the power of truth prevailed.

We were taught, by renewed experience, to labour for an inward ftillnefs; at no time to feek for words, but to live in the fpirit of truth, and utter that to the people which truth opened in us. My beloved companion and I belonged both to one meeting, came forth in the miniftry near the fame time, and were inwardly united in the work : he was about thirteen years older than I, bore the heavieft burthen, and was an inftrument of the greateft ufe.

Finding a concern to vifit friends in the Lower Counties on Delaware, and on the Eaftern Shore of Maryland, and having an opportunity to join with my well-beloved antient friend John Sykes, we obtained certificates, and fet off the feventh day of the eighth month, in the year 1748, were at the meetings of friends in the lower counties, attended the yearly meeting at Little Creek, and made a vifit to chief of the meetings on the Eaftern Shore; and fo home by the way of Nottingham: were abroad about fix weeks; and rode, by computation, about five hundred and fifty miles.

Our exercife, at times, was heavy; but, through the goodnefs of the Lord, we were often refreshed : and I may fay, by experience, "He is a strong hold in the day of trouble." Though our fociety, in these parts, appeared to me to be in a declining condition; yet, I believe, the Lord hath a people amongst them, who labout to ferve him uprightly, but have many difficulties to encounter.

His marriage—The death of his father—His journies into the upper part of New-Jerfey, and afterwards into Pennfylvania—Confiderations on keeping flaves, and his vifits to the families of friends at feveral times and places —An epiftle from the general meeting—His journey to Long-Ifland — Confiderations on trading, and on the use of spirituous liquors and costly apparel — And his letter to a friend.

A BOUT this time believing it good for me to fettle, and thinking ferioufly about a companion, my heart was turned to the Lord with defires that he would give me wifdom to proceed therein agreeable to his will; and He was pleafed to give me a wellinclined damfel, Sarah Ellis; to whom I was married the eighteenth day of the eighth month, in the year 1749.

In the fall of the year 1750 died my father, Samuel Woolman, with a fever, aged about fixty years.

In his life-time he manifefted much care for us his children, that in our youth we might learn to fear the Lord; often endeavouring to imprint in our minds the true principles of virtue, and particularly to cherifh in us a fpirit of tendernefs, not only towards wards poor people, but alfo towards all creatures of which we had the command.

After my return from Carolina in the year 1746, I made fome obfervations on keeping flaves, which fome time before his deceafe I fhewed him; and he perused the manufcript, proposed a few alterations, and appeared well. fatisfied that I found a concern on that account : and in his last fickness, as I was watching with him one night, he being fo far fpent that there was no expectation of his recovery, but had the perfect use of his understanding, he asked me concerning the manufcript, whether I expected foon to proceed. to take the advice of friends in publithing it ? and, after fome conversation thereon, faid, I have all along been deeply affected with the oppression of the poor negroes; and now, at last, my concern for them is as great as ever.

By his direction, I had wrote his will in a time of health, and that night he defired me to read it to him, which I did; and he faid, it was agreeable to his mind. He then made mention of his end, which he believed was now near; and fignified, that though he was fenfible of many imperfections in the course of his life, yet his experience of the power of truth, and of the love and goodnefs of God from time to time, even till now, was fuch, that he had no doubt but that in leaving this life he fhould enter into one more happy.

The next day his fifter Elizabeth came to fee him, and told him of the decease of their fifter fifter Ann; who died a few days before: he then faid, I reckon fifter Ann was free to leave this world? Elizabeth faid, fhe was: he then faid, I alfo am free to leave it; and being in great weaknefs of body faid, I hope I fhall fhortly go to reft. He continued in a weighty frame of mind, and was fenfible till near the laft.

On the fecond day of the ninth month, in the year 1751, feeling drawings in my mind to vifit friends at the Great Meadows, in the upper part of Weft-Jerfey, with the unity of our monthly-meeting, I went there; and had fome fearching laborious exercife amongft friends in those parts, and found inward peace therein.

In the ninth month of the year 1753, in company with my well-efteemed friend John Sykes, and with the unity of friends, we travelled about two weeks, vifiting friends in Bucks-County. We laboured in the love of the gofpel, according to the meafure received; and, through the mercies of Him, who is ftrength to the poor who truft in him. we found fatisfaction in our vifit: and in the next winter, way opening to vifit friends families within the compafs of our monthlymeeting, partly by the labours of two friends from Pennfylvania, I joined in fome part of the work; having had a defire fome time that it might go forward amongft us.

About this time, a perfon at fome diftance lying fick, his brother came to me to write his will: I knew he had flaves; and afking his his brother, was told he intended to leave them as flaves to his children. As writing is a profitable employ, and as offending fober people was difagreeble to my inclination, I was straitened in my mind ; but as I looked to the Lord, he inclined my heart to his teftimony: and I told the man, that I believed the practice of continuing flavery to this people was not right; and had a fcruple in my mind against doing writings of that kind : that though many in our fociety kept them as flaves, ftill I was not eafy to be concerned in it; and defired to be excufed from going to write the will. I fpake to him in the fear of the Lord; and he made no reply to what I faid, but went away : he alfo had fome concerns in the practice; and I thought he was difpleafed with me. In this cafe I had a fresh confirmation, that acting contrary to prefent outward interest, from a motive of divine love, and in regard to truth and righteoufnefs, and thereby incurring the refentments of people, opens the way to a treafure better than filver, and to a friendfhip exceeding the friendship of men.

The manufcript before-mentioned having laid by me feveral years, the publication of it refted weightily upon me; and this year I offered it to the revifal of friends, who, having examined and made fome fmall alterations in it, directed a number of copies thereof to be published and dispersed amongst friends.

In

In the year 1754, I found my mind drawn to join in a vifit to friends families belonging to Chefterfield monthly-meeting; and having the approbation of our own, I went to their monthly-meeting in order to confer with friends, and fee if way opened for it: I had conference with fome of their members, the propofal having been opened before in their meeting, and one friend agreed to join with me as a companion for a beginning; but when meeting was ended, I felt great diftrefs of mind, and doubted what way to take, or whether to go home and wait for greater clearnefs: I kept my diftrefs fecret; and going with a friend to his houfe, my defires were to the great Shepherd for his heavenly inftruction; and in the morning I felt eafy to proceed on the vifit, being very low in my mind : and as mine eye was turned to the Lord, waiting in families in deep reverence before him, he was pleafed graci-oufly to afford help; fo that we had many comfortable opportunities, and it appeared as a fresh visitation to fome young people. I fpent feveral weeks this winter in the fervice: part of which time was employed near home. And again in the following winter I was feveral weeks in the fame fervice ; fome part of the time at Shrewfbury, in company with my beloved friend John Sykes ; and have caufe humbly to acknowledge, that thro' the goodness of the Lord, our hearts were, at times, enlarged in his love; and ftrength was given to go through the trials which, in the courfe of our vifit, attended us.

From a difagreement between the powers of England and France, it was now a time of trouble on this Continent; and an epiftle to friends went forth from our general fpring meeting, which I thought good to give a place in this journal.

An EPISTLE from our general fpring meeting of ministers and elders for Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, held at Philadelphia, from the twenty-ninth of the third month, to the first of the fourth month, inclusive, 1755.

To friends on the continent of America.

Dear friends,

IN an humble fenfe of divine goodnefs, and the gracious continuation of God's love to his people, we tenderly falute you; and are at this time therein engaged in mind, that all of us who profefs the truth, as held forth and publifhed by our worthy predeceffors in this latter age of the world, may keep near to that life which is the light of men, and be ftrengthened to hold faft the profeffion of our faith without wavering, that our truft may not be in man, but in the Lord alone, who ruleth in the army of heaven, and in the kingdoms of men, before whom the earth is " as the duft of the ballance, and her inha-" bitants as grafshoppers." Ifa, xl. 22.

We

We (being convinced that the gracious defign of the Almighty in fending his Son into the world, was to repair the breach made by difobedience, to finish fin and transgreffion, that his kingdom might come, and his will be done on earth as it is in heaven) have found it to be our duty to ceafe from those national contefts productive of mifery and bloodshed, and submit our cause to Him the Most High, whose tender love to his children exceeds the most warm affections of natural parents, and who hath promifed to his feed throughout the earth, as to one individual, " I will never leave thee, nor forfake " thee," Heb. xiii. 5. And as we, through the gracious dealings of the Lord our God, have had experience of that work which is carried on, " not by earthly might, nor by . " power, but by my fpirit, faith the Lord " of Hofts:" Zech. iv. 6. By which operation, that fpiritual kingdom is fet up, which is to fubdue and break in pieces all kingdoms that oppofe it, and shall stand for ever. In a deep fense thereof, and of the fafety, ftability and peace there is in it, we are defirous that all who profess the truth, may be inwardly acquainted with it, and thereby be qualified to conduct in all parts of our life as becomes our peaceable profession : And we truft, as there is a faithful continuance to depend wholly upon the almighty arm, from one generation to another, the peaceable kingdom will gradually be extended " from fea to fea, and from the river to the " ends

" ends of the earth," Zech. ix. 10. to the completion of those prophesics already begun, that " nation shall not lift up a fword " against nation, nor learn war any more." Ifa. ii. 4. Micah iv. 3.

And, dearly beloved friends, feeing we have thefe promifes, and believe that God is beginning to fulfil them, let us conftantly endeavour to have our minds fufficiently difentangled from the furfeiting cares of this life, and redeemed from the love of the world, that no earthly poffeffions nor enjoyments may bias our judgments, or turn us from that refignation, and entire truft in God, to which his bleffing is most furely annexed; then may we fay, "Our Redeemer is mighty, he will " plead our caufe for us." Jer. 1. 34. And if, for the further promoting his most gracious purposes in the earth, he should give us to taste of that bitter cup which his faithful ones have often partook of; O that we may be rightly prepared to receive it !

And now, dear friends, with refpect to the commotions and flirrings of the powers of the earth at this time near us, we are defirous that none of us may be moved thereat; ⁶ But repofe ourfelves in the munition of ⁶ that rock that all thefe fhakings fhall not ⁶ move, even in the knowledge and feeling ⁶ of the eternal power of God, keeping us ⁶ fubjectly given up to his heavenly will, and ⁶ feel it daily to mortify that which remains ⁶ in any of us which is of this world : for ⁶ the

' the worldly part in any, is the changeable ' part, and that is up and down, full and ' empty, joyful and forrowful, as things go " well or ill in this world; for as the truth ' is but one, and many are made partakers ' of its fpirit, fo the world is but one, and ' many are made partakers of the fpirit of ' it; and fo many as do partake of it, fo ' many will be ftraitened and perplexed with ' it: but they who are fingle to the truth, ' waiting daily to feel the life and virtue of ' it in their hearts, thefe shall rejoice in the midst of adversity,' and have to experience with the prophet, That " Although the fig-" tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit " be in the vines; the labour of the olive " fhall fail, and the fields fhall yield no " meat; the flock shall be cut off from the " fold, and there shall be no herd in the " ftalls ; yet will they rejoice in the Lord, and joy in the God of their falvation," Hab. iii. 17, 18.

If, contrary to this, we profefs the truth, and not living under the power and influence of it, are producing fruits difagreeable to the purity thereof, and truft to the firength of man to fupport ourfelves, therein our confidence will be vain. For He, who removed the hedge from his vineyard, and gave it to be trodden under foot, by reafon of the wild grapes it produced, (Ifa. v. 5.) remains unchangeable: and if, for the chaftifement of wickednefs, and the further promoting his own glory, he doth arife, even, to fhake terribly the earth, who then may oppose him, and profper!

We remain, in the love of the gofpel, your friends and brethren.

Signed by fourteen friends.

Scrupling to do writings relative to keeping flaves, having been a means of fundry finall trials to me, in which I have fo evidently felt my own will fet afide, that I think it good to mention a few of them-Tradefmen and retailers of goods, who depend on their bufiness for a living, are naturally in-clined to keep the good-will of their customers; nor is it a pleafant thing for young men to be under any necessity to question the judgment or honefty of elderly men, and more efpecially of fuch who have a fair reputation. Deep-rooted cuftoms, tho' wrong, are not eafily altered; but it is the duty of every one to be firm in that which they certainly know is right for them. A charitable benevolent man, well acquainted with a negro, may, I believe, under fome circumftances, keep him in his family as a fervant, on no other motives than the negroe's good ; but man, as man knows not what shall be after him, nor hath he any affurance that his children will attain to that perfection in wifdom and goodnefs neceffary rightly to exercife fuch power: hence it is clear to me, that I ought not to be the fcribe where wills are drawn, drawn, in which fome children are made abfolute mafters over others during life.

About this time, an antient man of good efteem in the neighbourhood, came to my houfe to get his will wrote; he had young negroes; and I afked him privately, how he purposed to difpose of them? he told me: I then faid, I cannot write thy will without breaking my own peace; and refpectfully gave him my reafons for it : he fignified that he had a choice that I fhould have wrote it; but as I could not, confiftent with my confcience, he did not defire it : and fo he got it wrote by fome other perfon. And a few years after, there being great alterations in his family, he came again to get me to write his will: his negroes were yet young; and his fon, to whom he intended to give them, was, fince he first spoke to me, from a libertine, become a fober young man; and he fuppofed, that I would have been free, on that account, to write it. We had much friendly talk on the fubject, and then deferred it : and a few days after, he came again, and directed their freedom; and fo I wrote his will.

Near the time the laft mentioned friend firft fpoke to me, a neighbour received a bad bruife in his body, and fent for me to bleed him; which being done, he defired me to write his will: I took notes; and, amongft other things, he told me to which of his children he gave his young negro: I confidered the pain and diftrefs he was in, and knew knew not how it would end; fo I wrote his will, fave only that part concerning his flave, and carrying it to his bed-fide, read it to him; and then told him in a friendly way, that I could not write any inftruments by which my fellowcreatures were made flaves, without bringing trouble on my own mind: I let him know that I charged nothing for what I had done; and defired to be excufed from doing the other part in the way he propofed: we then had a ferious conference on the fubject; at length, he agreeing to fet her free, I finifhed his will.

Having found drawings in my mind to vifit friends on Long-Island, after obtaining a certificate from our monthly-meeting, fet off on the twelfth day of the fifth month, in the year 1756. When I reached the island, I lodged the first night at the house of my dear friend Richard Hallet : the next day, being the first of the week, I was at the meeting in Newtown; in which we experienced the renewed manifestations of the love of Jefus Chrift, to the comfort of the honefthearted. I went that night to Flushing; and the next day, in company with my beloved friend Matthew Franklin, we croffed the ferry at White-Stone; were at three meetings on the main, and then returned to the ifland; where I fpent the remainder of the week in vifiting meetings. The Lord, I believe, hath a people in those parts, who are honeftly inclined to ferve him; but many, I fear, are too much clogged with the things of this life, and do not come forward bearing ing the crofs in fuch faithfulnefs as he calls for.

My mind was deeply engaged in this vifit, both in public and private; and, at feveral places where I was, on obferving that they had flaves, I found myfelf under a neceffity, in a friendly way, to labour with them on that fubject; expreffing, as way opened, the inconfiftency of that practice with the purity of the chriftian religion, and the ill effects of it manifefted amongft us.

The latter end of the week, their yearlymeeting began; at which were our friends John Scarbrough, Jane Hofkins, and Sufannah Brown, from Pennfylvania : the publick meetings were large, and meafurably favoured with divine goodnefs.

The exercise of my mind, at this meeting, was chiefly on account of those who were confidered as the foremost rank in the fociety: and in a meeting of ministers and elders, way opened, that I expressed in some measure what lay upon me; and at a time when friends were met for transacting the affairs of the church, having fet a while filent, I felt a weight on my mind, and stood up; and, through the gracious regard of our heavenly Father, strength was given fully to clear myself of a burthen, which for some days had been increasing upon me.

Through the humbling difpenfations of Divine Providence, men are fometimes fitted for his fervice. The meffages of the prophet Jeremiah were fo difagreeable to the people, and and fo reverfe to the fpirit they lived in, that he became the object of their reproach; and in the weaknefs of nature, thought of defifting from his prophetick office; but, faith he, "His word was in my heart as a burning " fire fhut up in my bones ; and I was weary " with forbearing, and could not ftay." T faw at this time, that if I was honeft in declaring that which truth opened in me, I could not pleafe all men; and laboured to be content in the way of my duty, however difagreeable to my own inclination. After this I went homeward, taking Woodbridge and Plainfield in my way; in both which meetings, the pure influence of divine love was manifested; in an humbling fense whereof I went home: having been out about twenty-four days, and rode about three hundred and fixteen miles.

While I was out on this journey, my heart was much affected with a fenfe of the flate of the churches in our fouthern provinces; and believing the Lord was calling me to fome further labour amongft them, I was bowed in reverence before him, with fervent defires that I might find ftrength to refign myfelf up to his heavenly will.

myfelf up to his heavenly will. Until this year, 1756, I continued to retail goods, befides following my trade as a taylor; about which time, I grew uneafy on account of my bufinefs growing too cumberfome. I had began with felling trimmings for garments, and from thence proceeded to fell cloths and linens; and, at length, length, having got a confiderable flop of goods, my trade increafed every year, and the road to large bufinefs appeared open; but I felt a flop in my mind.

Through the mercies of the Almighty, I had, in a good degree, learned to be content with a plain way of living: I had but a fmall family; and on ferious confideration, I believed truth did not require me to engage in much cumbering affairs: it had been my general practice to buy and fell things really ufeful: things that ferved chiefly to pleafe the vain mind in people, I was not eafy to trade in; feldom did it; and whenever I did, I found it weaken me as a chriftian.

The increase of bufiness became my burthen; for though my natural inclination was toward merchandize, yet I believed truth required me to live more free from outward cumbers : and there was now a ftrife in my mind between the two; and in this exercife my prayers were put up to the Lord, who gracioully heard me, and gave me a heart refigned to his holy will: then I leffened my outward bufinefs; and, as I had opportunity, told my cuftomers of my intentions, that they might confider what fhop to turn to: and, in a while, wholly laid down merchandize, following my trade as a taylor; myfelf only, having no apprentice. I alfo had a nurfery of apple-trees ; in which I employed fome of my time in hoeing, grafting, trimming, and inoculating. In merchandife it is the cuftom, where I lived, to fell chiefly on credit, and poor people often get in debt; and when payment is expected, not having wherewith to pay, their creditors often fue for it at law. Having often obferved occurrences of this kind, I found it good for me to advife poor people to take fuch goods as were most useful and not costly.

In the time of trading, I had an opportunity of feeing, that the too liberal use of fpirituous liquors, and the cuftom of wearing too coftly apparel, led fome people into great inconveniencies; and thefe two things appear to be often connected one with the other; for by not attending to that use of things which is confistent with universal righteousnefs, there is an increase of labour which extends beyond what our heavenly Father intends for us : and by great labour, and often by much fweating, there is, even among fuch who are not drunkards, a craving of fome liquors to revive the fpirits : that partly by the luxuri-ous drinking of fome, and partly by the drinking of others, (led to it through immoderate labour) very great quantities of rum are every year expended in our colonies; the greater part of which we fhould have no need of, did we fteadily attend to pure wifdom.

Where men take pleafure in feeling their minds elevated with ftrong drink, and fo indulge their appetite as to diforder their understandings, neglect their duty as members in a family or civil fociety, and cast off all regard to religion, their case is much to be pitied; and where such whose lives are for the moft paft regular, and whofe examples have a ftrong influence on the minds of others, adhere to fome cuftoms which powerfully draw to the ufe of more ftrong liquor than pure wifdom allows; this alfo, as it hinders the fpreading of the fpirit of meeknefs, and ftrengthens the hands of the more exceflive drinkers, is a cafe to be lamented.

As every degree of luxury hath fome connexion with evil; for those who profess to be difciples of Chrift, and are looked upon as leaders of the people, to have that mind in them, which was also in Chrift, and fo ftand feparate from every wrong way, is a means of help to the weaker. As I have fometimes been much fpent in the heat, and taken fpirits to revive me, I have found by experience, that in fuch circumftances the mind is not fo calm, nor fo fitly difpofed for divine meditation, as when all fuch extremes are avoided; and I have felt an increasing care to attend to that holy Spirit which fets right bounds to our defires; and leads those who faithfully follow it, to apply all the gifts of Divine Providence to the purposes for which they were intended. Did fuch who have the care of great eftates, attend with finglenefs of heart to this heavenly Inftructor, which fo opens and enlarges the mind, that men love their neighbours as themfelves, they would have wifdom given them to manage, without finding occafion to employ fome people in the luxuries of life, or to make it neceffary for others to labour too hard; but for want want of fteadily regarding this principle of divine love, a felfifh fpirit takes place in the minds of people, which is attended with darknefs and manifold confusions in the world.

Though trading in things useful is an honeft employ; yet, through the great number of fuperfluities which are bought and fold, and through the corruption of the times, they who apply to merchandize for a living, have great need to be well experienced in that precept which the prophet Jeremiah laid down for his fcribe: "Seekeft thou great things " for thyfelf? feek them not."

In the winter, this year, I was engaged with friends in vifiting families; and, thro' the goodnefs of the Lord, we had oftentimes experience of his heart-tendering prefence amongft us.

A copy of a letter wrote to a friend.

I N this thy late affliction I have found a deep fellow-feeling with thee; and had a fecret hope throughout, that it might pleafe the Father of mercies to raife thee up, and fanctify thy troubles to thee; that thou being more fully acquainted with that way which the world efteems foolifh, may feel the cloathing of divine fortitude, and be ftrengthened to refift that fpirit which leads from the fimplicity of the everlafting truth.

We

We may fee ourfelves crippled and halting, and from a ftrong bias to things pleafant and eafy, find an impoffibility to advance forward; but things impoffible with men are poffible with God; and our wills being made fubject to his, all temptations are furmountable.

This work of fubjecting the will, is compared to the mineral in the furnace; which, thro' fervent heat, is reduced from its first principle : " He refines them as filver is " refined—He fhall fit as a refiner, and pu-" rifier of filver." By these comparisons, we are inftructed in the neceffity of the melting operation of the hand of God upon us, to prepare our hearts truly to adore him, and manifest that adoration, by inwardly turning away from that fpirit in all its workings, which is not of him. To forward this work, the all-wife God is fometimes pleafed, thro' outward distrefs, to bring us near the gates of death; that life being painful and afflicting, and the profpect of eternity open before us, all earthly bonds may be loofened, and the mind prepared for that deep and facred instruction, which otherwise would not be received. If kind parents love their children and delight in their happinefs, then He, who is perfect goodness in fending abroad mortal contagions, doth affuredly direct their ufe-Are the righteous removed by it, their change is happy; are the wicked taken away in their wickedness, the Almighty is clear: Do we país pafs through with anguish and great bitternefs, and yet recover, He intends that we fhould be purged from drofs, and our ear opened to difcipline.

And now on thy part, after thy fore affliction and doubts of recovery, thou art again reftored, forget not Him who hath helped thee; but in humble gratitude hold fast his instructions, thereby to shun those bye paths which lead from the firm foundation. I am fenfible of that variety of company, to which one in thy bufinefs must be exposed: I have painfully felt the force of conversation proceeding from men deeply rooted in an earthly mind, and can fympathize with others in fuch conflicts, in that much weakness still attends me.

I find that to be a fool as to worldly wifdom, and commit my caufe to God, not fearing to offend men, who take offence at the fimplicity of truth, is the only way to remain unmoved at the fentiments of others.

The fear of man brings a fnare; by halting in our duty, and giving back in the time of trial, our hands grow weaker, our spirits get mingled with the people, our ears grow dull as to hearing the language of the true Shepherd; that when we look at the way of the righteous, it feems as though it was not for us to follow them.

There is a love clothes my mind while I write, which is fuperior to all expressions; and I find my heart open to encourage to a holy emulation, to advance forward in chrifttian ian firmnefs. Deep humility is a ftrong bulwark; and as we enter into it, we find fafety and true exaltation: the foolifhnefs of God is wifer than man, and the weaknefs of God is ftronger than man. Being uncloathed of our own wifdom, and knowing the abafement of the creature, therein we find that power to arife, which gives health and vigor to us.

CHAP. IV.

(His visiting the families of friends at Burlington)— His journey to Pennfylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and North-Carolina—Confiderations on the state of friends there; and the exercise he was under in travelling among those so generally concerned in keeping slaves: with some observations in conversation, at several times, on this subject — His episstle to friends at New-Garden and Cane-Creek — His thoughts on the neglect of a religious care in the education of the negroes.

T HE thirteenth day of the fecond month, in the year 1757, being then in good health, and abroad with friends vifiting families, I lodged at a friend's houfe, in Burlington; and going to bed about the time ufual with me, I awoke in the night, and my my meditations, as I lay, were on the goodnefs and mercy of the Lord; in a fenfe whereof my heart was contrite: after this, I went to fleep again; and fleeping a flort time, I awoke ; it was yet dark, and no appearance of day nor moonfhine; and as I opened mine eyes, I faw a light in my chamber at the apparent distance of five feet, about nine inches diameter, of a clear eafy brightnefs, and near its center the most radiant : as I lay still without any furprize looking upon it, words were fpoken to my inward ear, which filled my whole inward man: they were not the effect of thought, nor any conclusion in relation to the appearance, but as the language of the Holy One spoken in my mind; the words were, CERTAIN EVI-DENCE OF DIVINE TRUTH; and were again repeated exactly in the fame manner; where-) upon the light difappeared.)

Feeling the exercife in relation to a vifit to the Southern Provinces to increafe upon me, I acquainted our monthly-meeting therewith, and obtained their certificate: expecting to go alone, one of my brothers, who lived in Philadelphia, having fome bufinefs in North-Carolina, propofed going with me part of the way; but as he had a view of fome outward affairs, to accept of him as a companion feemed fome difficulty with me, whereupon I had converfation with him at fundry times; and, at length, feeling eafy in my mind, I had converfation with feveral elderly friends of Philadelphia on the fubject; and and he obtaining a certificate fuitable to the occafion, we fet off in the fifth month of the year 1757: and coming to Nottingham weekday meeting, lodged at John Churchman's; and here I met with our friend Benjamin Buffington, from New-England, who was returning from a vifit to the Southern Provinces. Thence we croffed the river Sufquehannah, and lodged at William Cox's in Maryland; and foon after I entered this province, a deep and painful exercife came upon me, which I often had fome feeling of fince my mind was drawn toward thefe parts, and with which I had acquainted my brother before we agreed to join as companions.

As the people in this and the Southern Provinces live much on the labour of flaves, many of whom are used hardly, my concern was, that I might attend with fingleness of heart to the voice of the true Shepherd, and be fo supported as to remain unmoved at the faces of men.

As it is common for friends on fuch a vifit to have entertainment free of coft, a difficulty arofe in my mind with refpect to faving my money by kindnefs received, which to me appeared to be the gain of oppreffion.

Receiving a gift, confidered as a gift, brings the receiver under obligations to the benefactor, and has a natural tendency to draw the obliged into a party with the giver. To prevent difficulties of this kind, and to preferve the minds of judges from any bias, was was that divine prohibition; " Thou fhalt " not receive any gift: for a gift blindeth " the wife, and perverteth the words of the "righteous." Exod. xxiii. 8. As the difci-ples were fent forth without any provision for their journey, and our Lord faid the workman is worthy of his meat, their labour in the gofpel was confidered as a reward for their entertainment, and therefore not re-ceived as a gift; yet, in regard to my prefent journey, I could not fee my way clear in that refpect. The difference appeared thus : The entertainment the difciples met with, was from fuch whofe hearts God had opened to receive them, from a love to them, and the truth they published : but we, confidered as members of the fame religious fociety, look upon it as a piece of civility to receive each other in fuch vifits; and fuch reception, at times, is partly in regard to reputation, and not from an inward unity of heart and fpirit. Conduct is more convincing than language; and where people, by their actions, manifest that the flave-trade is not fo difagreeable to their principles but that it may he encouraged, there is not a found uniting with fome friends who vifit them.

The profpect of fo weighty a work, and being fo diftinguifhed from many who I efteemed before myfelf, brought me very low; and fuch were the conflicts of my foul, that I had a near fympathy with the prophet, in the time of his weaknefs, when he faid, " If " thou deal thus with me, kill me, I pray " thee,

" thee, if I have found favour in thy fight;" Numb. xi. 15. but I foon faw that this proceeded from the want of a full refignation to the divine will. Many were the afflictions which attended me; and in great abasement, with many tears, my cries were to the Almighty, for his gracious and fatherly affiftance; and then, after a time of deep trial, I was favoured to understand the state mentioned by the pfalmift more clearly than ever I had before; to wit: " My foul is even as " a weaned child." Pfalm cxxxi. 2. Being thus helped to fink down into refignation, I felt a deliverance from that tempest in which I had been forely exercifed, and in calmnefs of mind went forward, trufting that the Lord Jefus Chrift, as I faithfully attended to him, would be a councellor to me in all difficulties; and that by his ftrength I should be enabled even to leave money with the members of fociety where I had entertainment, when I found that omitting of it would obstruct that work to which I believed he had called me: and as I copy this after my return, I may here add, that oftentimes I did fo, under a fenfe of duty; the way in which I did it was thus: when I expected foon to leave a friend's houfe where I had entertainment, if I believed that I fhould not keep clear from the gain of oppreffion without leaving money, I fpoke to one of the heads of the family privately, and defired them to accept of them pieces of filver, and give them to fuch of their negroes as they believed would make the

the beft use of them; and at other times, I gave them to the negroes myself, as the way looked clearest to me: as I expected this before I came out, I had provided a large number of finall pieces; and thus offering them to some who appeared to be wealthy people, was a trial both to me and them: but the fear of the Lord so covered me at times, that my way was made easier than I expected; and few, if any, manifested any refertment at the offer, and most of them, after some talk, accepted of them.

The feventh day of the fifth month, in the year 1757, lodged at a friend's house; and the next day, being the first of the week, was at Potapsco meeting; then croffed Patuxent river, and lodged at a publick-house.

On the ninth breakfasted at a friend's house; who afterward, putting us a little on our way, I had converfation with him, in the fear of the Lord, concerning his flaves; in which my heart was tender, and I ufed much plainnefs of fpeech with him, which he appeared to take kindly. We purfued our journey without appointing meetings, being preffed in my mind to be at the yearly-meeting in Virginia; and in my travelling on the road, I often felt a cry rife from the center of my mind, thus : O Lord, I am a ftranger on the earth, hide not thy face from me. On the eleventh day of the fifth month, we croffed the rivers Patowmack and Rapahannock, and lodged at Port-Royal: and on the way we happening in company with a colonel nel of the militia, who appeared to be a thoughtful man; I took occafion to remark on the difference in general betwixt a people ufed to labour moderately for their living, training up their children in frugality and bufinefs, and those who live on the labour of flaves; the former, in my view, being the most happy life: with which he concurred, and mentioned the trouble arifing from the untoward, flothful difpofition of the negroes; adding, that one of our labourers would do as much in a day as two of their flaves. I replied, that free men, whofe minds were properly on their bufinefs, found a fatisfaction in improving, cultivating, and providing for their families; but negroes, labouring to fupport others who claim them as their property, and expecting nothing but flavery during life, had not the like inducement to be industrious.

After fome further converfation, I faid, that men having power, too often mifapplied it; that though we made flaves of the negroes, and the Turks made flaves of the Chriftians, I however believed that liberty was the natural right of all men equally: which he did not deny; but faid, the lives of the negroes were fo wretched in their own country, that many of them lived better here than there: I only faid, there is great odds in regard to us, on what principle we act; and fo the converfation on that fubject ended; and I may here add, that another perfon, fome time afterward, mentioned the wretchednefs ednefs of the negroes, occafioned by their inteftine wars, as an argument in favour of our fetching them away for flaves: to which I then replied, if compaffion on the Africans, in regard to their domestic troubles, were the real motives of our purchasing them, that spirit of tenderness being attended to, would incite us to use them kindly; that as ftrangers brought out of affliction, their lives might be happy among us; and as they are human creatures, whofe fouls are as precious as ours, and who may receive the fame help and comfort from the holy fcriptures as we do, we could not omit fuitable endeavours to instruct them therein: but while we manifeft by our conduct, that our views in purchafing them are to advance ourfelves; and while our buying captives taken in war, animates those parties to push on that war, and increafe defolation amongst them; to fay they live unhappy in Africa, is far from being an argument in our favour: and I further faid, the prefent circumstances of these provinces to me appear difficult; that the flaves look like a burthenfome ftone to fuch who burthen themfelves with them; and that if the white people retain a refolution to prefer their outward profpects of gain to all other confiderations, and do not act confcientioufly toward them as fellow-creatures, I believe that burthen will grow heavier and heavier, till times change in a way difagreeable to us: at which the perfon appeared very ferious; and owned, that in confidering their condition, tion, and the manner of their treatment in thefe provinces, he had fometimes thought it might be just in the Almighty fo to order it.

Having thus travelled through Maryland, we came amongft friends at Cedar-Creek in Virginia, on the twelfth day of the fifth month; and the next day rode, in company with feveral friends, a day's journey to Camp-Creek : and as I was riding along in the morning, my mind was deeply affected in a fenfe I had of the want of divine aid to fupport me in the various difficulties which attended me; and in an uncommon diftrefs of mind, I cried in fecret to the Most High, O Lord be merciful, I befeech thee, to thy poor afflicted creature. After some time, I felt inward relief; and foon after, a friend in company began to talk in fupport of the flavetrade, and faid, the negroes were underftood to be the offspring of Cain, their blacknefs being the mark God fet upon him after he murthered Abel his brother; that it was the defign of Providence they fhould be flaves, as a condition proper to the race of fo wicked a man as Cain was : then another fpake in fupport of what had been faid. To all which, I replied in fubstance as follows: That Noah and his family were all who furvived the flood, according to fcripture; and as Noah was of Seth's race, the family of Cain was wholly deftroyed. One of them faid, that after the flood Ham went to the land of Nod, and took a wife; that Nod was a land far diftant, inhabited by Cain's race, and and that the flood did not reach it; and as Ham was fentenced to be a fervant of fervants to his brethren, thefe two families being thus joined, were undoubtedly fit only for flaves. I replied, the flood was a judgment upon the world for their abominations; and it was granted, that Cain's flock was the most wicked, and therefore unreasonable to fuppofe they were fpared : as to Ham's go-ing to the land of Nod for a wife, no time being fixed, Nod might be inhabited by fome of Noah's family, before Ham married. a fecond time; moreover the text faith, " That all flesh died that moved upon the " earth." Gen. vii. 21. I further reminded them, how the prophets repeatedly declare, " that the fon shall not fuffer for the iniqui-" ty of the father; but every one be an-" fwerable for his own fins." I was troubled to perceive the darkness of their imaginations; and in fome preffure of fpirit faid, the love of eafe and gain are the motives in general of keeping flaves, and men are wont to take hold of weak arguments to fupport a caufe which is unreafonable; and added, I have no intereft on either fide, fave only the interest which I defire to have in the truth: and as I believe liberty is their right, and fee they are not only deprived of it, but treated in other refpects with inhumanity in many places, I believe He, who is a refuge for the oppreffed, will, in his own time, plead their cause ; and happy will it be for fuch.

On the fourteenth day of the fifth month I was at Camp-Creek monthly-meeting, and then rode to the mountains up James-River, and had a meeting at a friend's houfe; in both which I felt forrow of heart, and my tears were poured out before the Lord, who was pleafed to afford a degree of ftrength by which way was opened to clear my mind amongst friends in those places. From thence I went to Fork-Creek, and fo to Cedar-Creek again; at which place I now had a meeting; here I found a tender feed : and as I was preferved in the ministry to keep low with the truth; the fame truth in their hearts anfwered it, that it was a time of mutual refreshment from the prefence of the Lord. I lodged at James Standley's, father of William Standley, one of the young men who fuffered imprifonment at Winchefter last fummer, on account of their testimony against fighting; and I had fome fatisfactory conversation with him concerning it. Hence I went to the Swamp-meeting, and to Wayanoke-meeting; and then croffed James-River, and lodged near Burleigh. From the time of my entering Maryland I have been much under forrow, which of late fo increased upon me, that my mind was almost overwhelmed; and I may fay with the pfalmist, " in my dif-" trefs I called upon the Lord, and cried to " my God ;" who, in infinite goodnefs, looked upon my affliction, and in my pri-, vate vate retirement fent the Comforter for my relief; for which I humbly blefs his holy name.

The fenfe I had of the flate of the churches, brought a weight of diftrefs upon me: the gold to me appeared dim, and the fine gold changed; and though this is the cafe too generally, yet the fense of it in these parts hath, in a particular manner, borne heavy upon me. It appeared to me, that through the prevailing of the fpirit of this world, the minds of many were brought to an inward defolation; and instead of the spirit of meeknefs, gentlenefs, and heavenly wifdom, which are the neceffary companions of the true sheep of Christ, a spirit of sierceness, and the love of dominion, too generally prevailed. From fmall beginnings in errors, great buildings, by degrees, are raifed; and from one age to another are more and more ftrengthened by the general concurrence of the people : and as men obtain reputation by their profession of the truth, their virtues are mentioned as arguments in favour of general error; and those of less note, to justify themselves, fay, fuch and fuch good men did the like. By what other steps could the people of Judah arife to that heighth in wickedness, as to give just ground for the prophet Isaiah to declare in the name of the Lord, " that none " calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for " truth:" Ifaiah lix. 4. or for the Almighty to call upon the great city of Jerufalem, just before the Babylonish captivity, " If ye can ćc find

" find a man, if there be any who executeth " judgment, that feeketh the truth, and I " will pardon it." Jer. v. 1. The prospect of a road lying open to the fame degeneracy, in fome parts of this newly fettled land of America, in refpect to our conduct toward the negroes, hath deeply bowed my mind in this journey; and though to briefly relate how thefe people are treated is no agreeable work; yet, after often reading over the notes I made as I travelled, I find my mind engaged to preferve them. Many of the white people in those provinces take little or no care of negro marriages; and when negroes marry after their own way, fome make fo little account of those marriages, that with views of outward interest, they often part men from their wives by felling them far afunder; which is common when eftates are fold by executors at vendue. Many whofe labour is heavy, being followed, at their bufinefs in the field, by a man with a whip, hired for that purpose, have in common little else allowed but one peck of Indian corn and fome falt for one week, with a few potatoes; the potatoes they commonly raife by their labour on the first day of the week.

The correction enfuing on their difobedience to overfeers, or flothfulnefs in bufinefs, is often very fevere, and fometimes defperate.

Men and women have many times fcarce cloaths enough to hide their nakednefs, and boys and girls, ten and twelve years old, are often quite naked amongft their mafter's children:

dren: fome of our fociety, and fome of the fociety called new-lights, ufe fome endeavours to inftruct thofe they have in reading; but in common this is not only neglected, but difapproved. Thefe are the people by whofe labour the other inhabitants are in a great meafure fupported, and many of them in the luxuries of life: thefe are the people who have made no agreement to ferve us, and who have not forfeited their liberty that we know of: thefe are the fouls for whom Chrift died; and for our conduct toward them, we muft anfwer before Him who is no refpecter of perfons.

They who know the only true God, and Jefus Chrift whom he hath fent, and are thus acquainted with the merciful, benevolent, gofpel fpirit, will therein perceive that the indignation of God is kindled against oppreffion and cruelty; and in beholding the great distrefs of fo numerous a people, will find cause for mourning.

From my lodgings I went to Burleigh meeting, where I felt my mind drawn into a quiet refigned ftate; and after long filence, I felt an engagement to ftand up; and thro' the powerful operation of divine love, we were favoured with an edifying meeting. The next meeting we had was at Black-Water; and fo to the yearly-meeting at the Weftern Branch: when bufinefs began, fome queries were confidered, by fome of their members, to be now produced; and if approved, to be anfwered hereafter by their re-F fpective monthly-meetings. They were the Pennfylvania queries, which had been examined by a committee of Virginia yearly-meeting appointed the last year, who made fome alterations in them; one of which alterations was made in favour of a custom which troubled me. The query was, "Are there any concerned in the importation of negroes, or buying them after imported?" which they altered thus: " Are there any concerned in the importation of negroes, or buying them to trade in ?" As one query admitted with unanimity was, " Are any concerned in buying or vending goods unlaw-fully imported, or prize goods ?" I found my mind engaged to fay, that as we profelfed the truth, and were there affembled to fupport the teftimony of it, it was neceffary for us to dwell deep, and act in that wifdom which is pure, or otherwife we could not profper. I then mentioned their alteration; and, referring to the last mentioned query, added, as purchasing any merchandize taken by the fword, was always allowed to be inconfiftent with our principles; negroes being captives of war, or taken by stealth, those circumstances make it inconfistent with our testimony to buy them; and their being our fellow-creatures, who are fold as flaves, adds greatly to the iniquity. Friends appeared attentive to what was faid ; fome expreffed a care and concern about their negrocs; none made any objection, by way of reply to what I faid; but the query was admitted mitted as they had altered it. As fome of their members have heretofore traded in negroes, as in other merchandize, this query, be-ing admitted, will be one ftep further than they have hitherto gone: and I did not fee it my duty to prefs for an alteration; but felt eafy to leave it all to Him, who alone is able to turn the hearts of the mighty, and make way for the fpreading of truth on the earth, by means agreeable to his infinite wifdom. But in regard to those they already had, I felt my mind engaged to labour with them; and faid, that, as we believe the fcriptures were given forth by holy men, as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, and many of us know by experience that they are often helpful and comfortable, and believe ourfelves bound in duty to teach our children to read them, I believe, that if we were divested of all felfish views, the fame good spirit that gave them forth, would engage us to teach the negroes to read, that they might have the benefit of them: fome there were amongft them who, at this time, manifested a concern in regard to taking more care in the education of their negroes.

On the twenty-ninth day of the fifth month, at the houfe where I lodged, was a meeting of ministers and elders, at the ninth hour in the morning; at which time I found an engagement to fpeak freely and plainly to them concerning their flaves ; mentioning, how they, as the first rank in the fociety, whofe conduct in that cafe was much noticed by

by others, were under the ftronger obligations to look carefully to themfelves : expreffing how needful it was for them, in that fituation, to be thoroughly divefted of all felfifh views; that living in the pure truth, and acting confcientioufly toward those people in their education and otherwise, they might be instrumental in helping forward a work fo exceeding neceffary, and fo much neglected amongst them. At the twelfth hour the meeting of worship began; which was a folid meeting.

On the thirtieth day, about the tenth hour, friends met to finish their business, and then the meeting for worship ensued, which to me was a laborious time; but, through the goodness of the Lord, truth, I believe, gained fome ground; and it was a strengthening opportunity to the honest-hearted.

About this time I wrote an epiftle to friends in the back fettlements of North-Carolina, as follows:

To friends at their monthly-meeting at New-Garden and Cane-Creek, in North-Carolina.

Dear friends,

T having pleafed the Lord to draw me forth on a vifit to fome parts of Virginia and Carolina, you have often been in my mind; and though my way is not clear to come come in perfon to vifit you, yet I feel it in my heart to communicate a few things, as they arife in the love of truth: Firft, my dear friends, dwell in humility; and take heed that no views of outward gain get too deep hold of you, that fo your eyes being fingle to the Lord, you may be preferved in the way of fafety. Where people let loofe their minds after the love of outward things, and are more engaged in purfuing the profits, and feeking the friendfhips of this world, than to be inwardly acquainted with the way of true peace; fuch walk in a vain fhadow, while the true comfort of life is wanting: their examples are often hurtful to others; and their treafures, thus collected, do many times prove dangerous fnares to their children.

But where people are fincerely devoted to follow Chrift, and dwell under the influence of his holy fpirit, their ftability and firmnefs, through a divine bleffing, is at times like dew on the tender plants round about them, and the weightinefs of their fpirits fecretly works on the minds of others; and in this condition, through the fpreading influence of divine love, they feel a care over the flock; and way is opened for maintaining good order in the fociety : and though we meet with oppofition from another fpirit, yet, as there is a dwelling in meeknefs, feeling our fpirits fubject, and moving only in the gentle peaceable wifdom, the inward reward of quietnefs, will be greater than all our difficulties.

difficulties. Where the pure life is kept to, and meetings of difcipline are held in the authority of it, we find by experience that they are comfortable, and tend to the health of the body.

While I write, the youth comes fresh in my way :--Dear young people, choofe God for your portion; love his truth, and be not ashamed of it; choose for your company fuch who ferve him in uprightness : and fhun, as most dangerous, the conversation of those whose lives are of an ill favour; for by frequenting fuch company, fome hopeful young people have come to great lofs, and been drawn from less evils to greater to their utter ruin. In the bloom of youth no ornament is fo lovely as that of virtue, nor any enjoyments equal to those which we partake of, in fully religning ourfelves to the divine will : these enjoyments add sweetness to all other comforts, and give true satisfaction in company and conversation, where people are mutually acquainted with it; and as your minds are thus feafoned with the truth, you will find ftrength to abide ftedfaft to the teftimony of it, and be prepared for fervices in the church.

And now, dear friends and brethren, as you are improving a wildernefs, and may be numbered amongft the first planters in one part of a province, I befeech you, in the love of Jefus Chrift, to wifely confider the force of your examples, and think how much your fucceffors may be thereby affected : it is a help help in a country; yea, and a great favour and a bleffing, when cuftoms first fettled, are agreeable to found wifdom: fo when they are otherwife, the effect of them is grievous; and children feel themfelves encompassed with difficulties prepared for them by their predeceffors.

As moderate care and exercife, under the direction of true wifdom, is ufeful both to mind and body; fo, by this means in general, the real wants of life are eafily fupplied: our gracious Father having fo proportioned one to the other, that keeping in the true medium we may pafs on quietly. Where flaves are purchafed to do our labour, numerous difficulties attend it. To rational creatures bondage is uneafy, and frequently occafions fournefs and difcontent in them; which affects the family, and fuch who claim the maftery over them : and thus people and their children are many times encompaffed with vexations, which arife from their applying to wrong methods to get a living.

I have been informed that there are a large number of friends in your parts, who have no flaves; and in tender and moft affectionate love, I befeech you to keep clear from purchafing any. Look, my dear friends, to Divine Providence; and follow in fimplicity that exercise of body, that plainness and frugality, which true wisdom leads to; fo may you be preferved from those dangers which attend fuch who are aiming at outward ease and greatness.

Treasures,

Treafures, though fmall, attained on a true principle of virtue, are fweet in the poffeffion; and while we walk in the light of the Lord, there is true comfort and fatisfaction. Here, neither the murmurs of an oppreffed people, nor throbbing uneafy confcience, nor anxious thoughts about the events of things, hinder the enjoyment of it.

When we look toward the end of life, and think on the division of our fubstance among our fucceffors; if we know that it was collected in the fear of the Lord, in honefty, in equity, and in uprightness of heart before him, we may consider it as his gift to us; and with a fingle eye to his bleffing, beftow it on those we leave behind us. Such is the happiness of the plain ways of true virtue. "The work of righteous fhall be peace; " and the effect of righteous field, quietness " and affurance for ever." Ifa. xxxii. 17.

Dwell here, my dear friends; and then in remote and folitary deferts, you may find true peace and fatisfaction. If the Lord be our God, in truth and reality, there is fafety for us; for he is a ftrong hold in the day of trouble, and knoweth them that truft in him.

Isle of Wight County, in Virginia, 29th of the 5th month, 1757.

From

From the yearly-meeting in Virginia, I went to Carolina; and on the first day of the fixth month, was at Wells monthly-meeting, where the spring of the gospel ministry was opened, and the love of Jesus Christ experienced amongst us: to his name be the praise.

Here my brother joined with fome friends from New-Garden, who were going homeward; and I went next to Simons-Creek monthly-meeting, where I was filent during the meeting for worfhip : and when bufinefs came on, my mind was exercifed concerning the poor flaves; but did not feel my way clear to fpeak: in this condition I was bowed in fpirit before the Lord; and with tears and inward fupplication befought him, fo to open my understanding, that I might know his will concerning me; and, at length, my mind was fettled in filence : near the end of their bufinefs, a member of their meeting exprest a concern, that had fome time lain upon him, on account of friends fo much neglecting their duty in the education of their flaves; and propofed having meetings fometimes appointed for them on a weekday, to be only attended by fome friends to be named in their monthly-meetings : many prefent appeared to unite with the propofal: one faid, he had often wondered that they, being our fellow-creatures and capable of rcligious understanding, had been fo exceedingly neglected : another expressed the like concern, and appeared zealous, that friends, in future, might more clofely confider it ; at length length a minute was made; and the further confideration of it referred to their next monthly-meeting. The friend who made this propofal hath negroes : he told me, that he was at New-Garden; about two hundred and fifty miles from home, and came back alone; and that in this folitary journey, this exercife, in regard to the education of their negroes, was, from time to time, renewed in his mind. A friend of fome note in Virginia, who hath flaves, told me, that he being far from home on a lonefome journey, had many ferious thoughts about them; and that his mind was fo imprest therewith, that he believed that he faw a time coming, when Divine Providence would alter the circumftance of these people, respecting their condition as flaves.

From hence I went to Newbegun-Creek, and fat a confiderable time in much weaknefs; then I felt truth open the way to fpeak a little in much plainnefs and fimplicity, till, at length, through the increase of divine love amongst us, we had a feafoning opportunity. From thence to the head of Little-River on a first-day, where was a crouded meeting; and, I believe, was, thro? divine goodness, made profitable to fome. Thence to the Old-Neck; where I was led into a careful fearching out the fecret workings of the mystery of iniquity, which, un-der a cover of religion, exalts itself against that pure fpirit, which leads in the way of meeknefs and felf-denial. From thence to Piney-

Pineywoods : this was the laft meeting I was at in Carolina, and was large ; and my heart being deeply engaged, I was drawn forth into a fervent labour amongft them.

When I was at Newbegun-Creek, a friend was there who laboured for his living, having no negroes, and had been a minister many years: he came to me the next day; and as we rode together, he fignified that he wanted to talk with me concerning a difficulty he had been under, and related it near as follows: to wit, That as monies had of late years been raifed by a tax to carry on the wars, he had a fcruple in his mind in regard . to paying it, and chofe rather to fuffer diffraint of his goods than payit; and as he was the only perfon who refused it in those parts, and knew not that any one elfe was in the like circumftances, and fignified that it had been a heavy trial to him; and more fo, for that fome of his brethren had been uneafy with his conduct in that cafe : and added, that from a fympathy he felt with me yesterday in meeting, he found the freedom thus to open the matter, in the way of querying concerning friends in our parts : whereupon I told him the ftate of friends amongft us, as well as I was able; and alfo, that I had, for fome time, been under the like fcruple. I believed him to be one who was concerned to walk uprightly before the Lord; and effeemed it my duty to preferve this note concerning him Samuel Newby.

From hence I went back into Virginia, and had a meeting near James Cowpland's; it was was a time of inward fuffering; but, thro' the goodnefs of the Lord, I was made content: then to another meeting; where, thro' the renewings of pure love, we had a very comfortable feafon.

Travelling up and down of late, I have had renewed evidences, that to be faithful to the Lord, and content with his will concerning me, is a most necessary and useful leffon for me to be learning; looking lefs at the effects of my labour, than at the pure motion and reality of the concern, as it arifes from heavenly love. In the Lord Jehovah is everlafting ftrength; and as the mind, by a humble refignation, is united to him, and we -utter words from an inward knowledge that they arife from the heavenly fpring, though our way may be difficult, and require close attention to keep in it; and though the manner in which we may be led may tend to our own abasement; yet, if we continue in patience and meeknefs, heavenly peace is the reward of our labours.

From thence I went to Curles-meeting; which, though fmall, was reviving to the honeft-hearted. Thence to Black-Creek and Caroline meetings; from whence, accompanied by William Standley before-mentioned, we rode to Goofe-Creek, being much thro' the woods, and about one hundred miles.— We lodged, the first night, at a publickhouse; the fecond, in the woods; and the next day, we reached a friend's house, at Goose-Creek. In the woods we lay under fome fome difadvantage, having no fireworks nor bells for our horfes; but we ftopped a little before night, and let them feed on the wild grafs which was plenty; in the mean time cutting with our knives a ftore against night, and then tied them ; and gathering fome bufhes under an oak, we lay down ; but the mufquetoes being plenty and the ground damp; I flept but little : thus lying in the wildernefs, and looking at the ftars, I was led to contemplate on the condition of our first parents, when they were fent forth from the garden ; but the Almighty, though they had been disobedient, continued to be a father to them; and fhewed them what tended to their felicity as intelligent creatures; and was acceptable to him. To provide things relative to our outward living, in the way of true wifdom is good ; and the gift of improving in things useful, is a good gift, and comes from the Father of lights. Many have had this gift; and, from age to age, there have been improvements of this kind made in the world : but fome not keeping to the pure gift, have, in the creaturely cunning and felfexaltation, fought out many inventions; which inventions of men, as diffinct from that uprightness in which man was created, as the first motion to them was evil, fo the effects have been and are evil. That, at this day, it is as neceffary for us conftantly to attend on the heavenly gift, to be qualified to use rightly the good things in this life amidst great improvements, as it was for our firft first parents, when they were without any improvements, without any friend or father but God only.

I was at a meeting at Goofe-Creek; and next at a monthly-meeting at Fairfax; where, through the gracious dealing of the Almighty with us, his power prevailed over many hearts. Thence to Manoquacy and Pipe-Creek, in Maryland; at both which places I had caufe humbly to adore Him, who fupported me through many exercifes, and by whofe help I was enabled to reach the true witnefs in the hearts of others: there were fome hopeful young people in thofe parts. Thence I had meetings at John Everit's in Monalen, and at Huntingdon; and I was made humbly thankful to the Lord, who opened my heart amongft the people in thefe new fettlements, fo that it was a time of encouragement to the honeft-minded.

At Monalen, a friend gave me fome account of a religious fociety, among the Dutch, called mennonifts; and, amongft other things, related a paffage in fubftance as follows:— One of the mennonifts having acquaintance with a man of another fociety at a confiderable diftance, and being with his waggon on bufinefs near the houfe of his faid acquaintance, and night coming on, he had thoughts of putting up with him; but paffing by his fields, and obferving the diftreffed appearance of his flaves, he kindled a fire in the woods hard by, and lay there that night: his faid acquaintance hearing where he lodged, afterward meeting theme nnonist, told him of it; adding, he fhould have been heartily welcome at his house; and from their acquaintance in former time, wondered at his conduct in that cafe: the mennonist replied, ever fince I lodged by thy field, I have wanted an opportunity to fpeak with thee: the matter was; I intended to have come to thy houfe for entertainment, but feeing thy flaves at their work, and obferving the manner of their drefs, I had no liking to come to partake with thee: then admonifhed him to use them with more humanity; and added, as I lay by the fire that night, I thought that as I was a man of fubftance, thou would have received me freely; but if I had been as poor as one of thy flaves, and had no power to help myfelf, I should have received from thy hand no kinder usage than they.

Hence I was at three meetings in my way: and fo I went home, under a humbling fenfe of the gracious dealings of the Lord with me, in preferving me through many trials and afflictions in my journey. I was out about two months, and travelled about eleven hundred and fifty miles.

(Confiderations on the payment of a tax, laid for carrying on the war against the Indians — Some notes on Thomas à Kempis and John Huss-Meetings of the committee of the yearly-meeting at Philadelphia-The present circumstances of friends in Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, very different from those of our predecessory The draughting of the militia in New-Jersey to serve in the army; with some observations on the state of the members of our society at that time-His visit to friends in Pennsylvania, accompanied by Benjamin Jones-Proceedings at the monthly, quarterly and yearly meetings, in Philadelphia, respecting those who keep slaves.

A FEW years paft, money being made current in our province for carrying on wars, and to be called in again by taxes laid on the inhabitants, my mind was often affected with the thoughts of paying fuch taxes; and I believe it right for me to preferve a memorandum concerning it : I was told, that friends in England frequently paid taxes, when the money was applied to fuch purpofes : I had converfation with feveral noted friends on the fubject, who all favoured the payment of fuch taxes; fome of whom I preferred before myfelf, and this made me eafier for a time; yet there was in the deeps of my mind, a fcruple which I never could get over; and, at certain times, I was greatly diffreffed on that account.

I all along believed that there were fome upright-hearted men, who paid fuch taxes; but could not fee that their example was a fufficient reafon for me to do fo, while I believed that the fpirit of truth required of me, as an individual, to fuffer patiently the diffrefs of goods, rather than pay actively.

I have been informed that Thomas à Kempis lived and died in the profession of the Roman catholic religion: and in reading his writings, I have believed him to be a man of a true christian spirit; as fully so, as many who died martyrs because they could not join with some superstitions in that church.

All true chriftians are of the fame fpirit, but their gifts are diverfe; Jefus Chrift appointing to each one their peculiar office, agreeable to his infinite wifdom.

John Hufs contended againft the errors crept into the church, in oppofition to the council of Conftance; which the hiftorian reports to have confifted of fome thoufand perfons. He modeftly vindicated the caufe which he believed was right; and though his language and conduct toward his judges appear to have been refpectful, yet he never could be moved from the principles fettled in his mind. To ufe his own words: "This I moft humbly require and defire of you all, even for His fake who is the God of us all, that I be not compelled to the thing which my G conficience doth repugn or ftrive againft." And again, in his anfwer to the emperor: "I refule nothing, most noble emperor, whatfoever the council shall decree or determine upon me, only this one thing I except, that I do not offend God and my conficience." Fox's Acts and Monuments, page 233. At length, rather than act contrary to that which he believed the Lord required of him, he chose to suffer death by fire. Thomas à Kempis, without disputing against the articles then generally agreed to, appears to have laboured, by a pious example as well as by preaching and writing, to promote virtue and the inward spiritual religion: And I believe they were both fincere-hearted followers of Chrift.

True charity is an excellent virtue: and fincerely to labour for their good, whofe belief, in all points, doth not agree with ours, is a happy flate. To refuse the active payment of a tax which our fociety generally paid, was exceeding difagreeable; but to do a thing contrary to my confcience, appeared yet more dreadful. When this exercife came upon me, I knew of none under the like difficulty; and, in my diffrefs, I befought the Lord to enable me to give up all, that fo I might follow him wherefoever he was pleafed to lead me: and under this exercife, I went to our yearly-meeting at Philadelphia, in the year 1755; at which a committee was appointed of fome from each quarter, to correfpond with the meeting for fufferings in London ;

London, and another to vifit our monthly and quarterly-meetings; and after their appointment, before the laft adjournment of the meeting, it was agreed in the meeting, that thefe two committees fhould meet together in friends fchool-houfe in the city, at a time then concluded on, to confider fome things in which the caufe of truth was concerned; and thefe committees meeting together, had a weighty conference in the fear of the Lord; at which time, I perceived, there were many friends under a fcruple like that before-mentioned *.

As fcrupling to pay a tax on account of the application, hath feldom been heard of heretofore, even amongst men of integrity, who have steadily borne their testimony against outward wars in their time; I may here note fome things which have occurred to my mind, as I have been inwardly exercifed on that account: from the fleady oppofition which faithful friends, in early times, made to wrong things then approved of, they were hated and perfecuted by men living in the fpirit of this world; and fuffering with firmnefs, they were made a bleffing to the church, and the work profpered. It equally concerns men, in every age, to take heed to their own fpirit; and in comparing their fituation G 2

ation with ours, it looks to me there was lefs danger of their being infected with the fpirit of this world, in paying fuch taxes, than there is of us now : they had little or no fhare in civil government; and many of them declared, they were, through the power of God, feparated from the fpirit in which wars were; and being afflicted by the rulers on account of their testimony, there was less likelihood of uniting in fpirit with them in things inconfistent with the purity of truth. We, from the first settlement of this land, have known little or no troubles of that fort: their profession, for a time, was accounted reproachful; but, at length, the uprightness of our predeceffors being underftood by the rulers, and their innocent fufferings moving them, our way of worship was tolerated; and many of our members in these colonies became active in civil government. Being thus tried with favour and profperity, this world hath appeared inviting; our minds have been turned to the improvement of our country, to merchandize and fciences, amongst which are many things ufeful, being followed in pure wifdom; but in our prefent condition, that a carnal mind is gaining upon us, 'I befieve will not be denied. Some of our members, who are officers in civil government, are, in one cafe or other, called upon in their respective stations to affist in things relative to the wars; fuch being in doubt whether to act, or crave to be excused from their office, feeing their brethren united in the payment of a tax to carry on the faid wars, might think their cafe not much different, and fo quench the tender movings of the Holy Spirit in their minds; and thus, by finall degrees, there might be an approach toward that of fighting, till we came fo near it, as that the diffinction would be little elfe, but the name of a peaceable people.

It requires great felf-denial and refignation of ourfelves to God, to attain that state wherein we can freely ceafe from fighting when wrongfully invaded ; if, by our fighting, there were a probability of overcoming the invaders: whoever rightly attains to it, does, in fome degree, feel that fpirit in which our Redeemer gave his life for us; and, thro' divine goodnefs, many of our predeceffors, and many now living, have learned this bleffed leffon; but many others, having their religion chiefly by education, and not being enough acquainted with that crofs which crucifies to the world, do manifest a temper diftinguishable from that of an entire truft in God. In calmly confidering thefe things, it hath not appeared strange to me, that an exercise hath now fallen upon fome, which, as to the outward means of it, is different from what was known to many of those who went before us.

Some time after the yearly-meeting, a day being appointed, and letters wrote to diftant members, the faid committees met at Philadelphia; and, by adjournments, continued feveral days. The calamities of warf were now increasing; the frontier inhabitants of Penn-

Pennfylvania were frequently furprized, fome flain, and many taken captive by the Indians; and while thefe committees fat, the corps of one fo flain was brought in a waggon, and taken through the ftreets of the city, in his bloody garments, to alarm the people, and roufe them up to war.

Friends thus met were not all of one mind in relation to the tax; which to fuch who fcrupled it made the way more difficult. To refuse an active payment at fuch a time, might be construed an act of disloyalty, and appeared likely to difpleafe the rulers, not only here but in England; ftill there was a fcruple fo fastened 'upon the minds of many friends, that nothing moved it it was a conference the most weighty that ever I was at; and the hearts of many were bowed in reverence before the Moft High. Some friends of the faid committees who appeared eafy to pay the tax, after feveral adjournments, withdrew; others of them continued till the laft: at length, an epiftle of tender love and cau-tion, to friends in Pennfylvania, was drawn by fome friends concerned, on that fubject; and being read feveral times and corrected, was then figned by fuch of them as were free to fign it, and afterward fent to the monthly and quarterly-meetings.

On the ninth day of the eighth month, in the year 1757, at night, orders came to the military officers in our county, (Burlington) directing them to draft the militia, and prepare a number of men to go off as foldiers, to the relief, of the English at fort William-Henry, in New-York government : a few days after which, there was a general review of the militia at Mount-Holly, and a number of men chofen and fent off under fome officers. Shortly after, there came orders to draught three times as many, to hold themfelves in readinefs to march when fresh orders came: and on the feventeenth day of the eighth month, there was a meeting of the military officers at Mount-Holly, who agreed on a draught; and orders were fent to the men fo chofen, to meet their respective captains at fet times and places ; those in our township to meet at Mount-Holly; amongst whom were a confiderable number of our fociety. My mind being affected herewith, I had fresh opportunity to see and confider the advantage of living in the real fubstance of religion, where practice doth harmonize with principle. Amongst the officers are men of understanding, who have fome regard to fincerity where they fee it; and in the execution of their office, when they have men to deal with whom they believe to be upright-hearted, to put them to trouble on account of scruples of conscience, is a painful tafk, and likely to be avoided as much as eafily as may be: but where men profess to be fo meek and heavenly-minded, and to have their truft fo firmly fettled in God, that they cannot join in wars; and yet, by their fpirit and conduct in common life, manifest a con=

Officers in great anxiety endeavouring to get troops to answer the demands of their fuperiors, feeing men, who are infincere, pre-tend icruple of confcience, in hopes of being exculed from a dangerous employment, they are likely to be roughly handled. In this time of commotion fome of our young men left the parts, and tarried abroad till it was over; fome came, and propofed to go as foldiers; others appeared to have a real tender fcruple in their minds against joining in wars, and were much humbled under the apprehension of a trial fo near : I had converfation with feveral of them to my fatisfaction. At the fet time when the captain came to town, fome of those last-mentioned went and told him in fubftance as follows :--- That they could not bear arms for confciencefake; nor could they hire any to go in their places, being refigned as to the event of it : at length the captain acquainted them all, that they might return home for the prefent, and required them to provide themfelves as foldiers, and to be in readinefs to march when called upon. This was fuch a time as I had not feen before; and yet I may fay, with thankfulnefs to the Lord, that I believed this trial was intended for our good; and I was favoured with refignation to him. The French army taking the fort they were belieging, deftroyed it and went away: the company of men men first draughted, after fome days march, had orders to return home; and those on the fecond draught, were no more called upon on that occasion.

On the fourth day of the fourth month, in the year 1758, orders came to fome officers, in Mount-Holly, to prepare quarters, a fhort time, for about one hundred foldiers : and an officer and two other men, all inhabitants of our town, came to my house; and the officer told me, that he came to fpeak with me, to provide lodging and entertainment for two foldiers, there being fix shillings a week perman allowed as pay for it. The cafe being new and unexpected, I made no answer fuddenly; but fat a time filent, my mind being inward : I was fully convinced, that the proceedings in wars are inconfistent with the purity of the christian religion; and to be hired to entertain men, who were then under pay as foldiers, was a difficulty with me. I. expected they had legal authority for what they did; and, after a fhort time, I faid to the officer, if the men are fent here for entertainment, I believe I shall not refuse to admit them into my house; but the nature of the cafe is fuch, that I expect I cannot keep them on hire: one of the men intimated, that he thought I might do it confistent with my religious principles: to which I made no reply; as believing filence, at that time, beft for me. Though they fpake of two, there came only one, who tarried at my houfe about, two weeks, and behaved himfelf civilly; and when

when the officer came to pay me, I told him, I could not take pay for it, having admitted him into my houfe in a paffive obedience to authority. I was on horfeback when he fpake to me: and as I turned from him, he faid, he was obliged to me: to which I faid nothing; but thinking on the expression, I grew uneafy; and afterwards, being near where he lived, I went and told him on what grounds I refused taking pay for keeping the foldier.

Near the beginning of the year 1758, I went one evening, in company with a friend, to vifit a fick perfon; and before our return, we were told of a woman living near, who, of late, had feveral days been difconfolate, occafioned by a dream; wherein death, and the judgments of the Almighty after death, were reprefented to her mind in a moving manner: her fadnefs, on that account, being worn off; the friend, with whom I was in company, went to fee her, and had fome religious converfation with her and her hufband: with this vifit they were fomewhat affected; and the man, with many tears, expreffed his fatisfaction: and, in a fhort time after, the poor man being on the river in a ftorm of wind, he, with one more, was drowned.

In the eighth month of the year 1758, having had drawings in my mind to be at the quarterly-meeting in Chefter county, and at fome meetings in the county of Philadelphia, I went first to faid quarterly-meeting, which which was large; and feveral weighty matters came under confideration and debate; and the Lord was pleafed to qualify fome of his fervants with strength and firmness; to bear the burthen of the day : though I faid but little, my mind was deeply exercifed; and, under a fenfe of God's love, in the anointing and fitting fome young men for his work, I was comforted, and my heart was tendered before him. From hence I went to the youths meeting at Darby, where my beloved friend and brother Benjamin Jones met me, by an appointment before I left home, to join in the vifit : and we were at Radnor, Merion, Richland, North-Wales, Plymouth, and Abington meetings; and had caufe to bow in reverence before the Lord our gracious God, by whofe help way was opened for us from day to day. I was out about two weeks, and rode about two hundred miles.

The monthly-meeting of Philadelphia having been under a concern, on account of fome friends, who this fummer (1758) had bought negro flaves: the faid meeting moved it tothcir quarterly-meeting, to have the minute reconfidered in the yearly-meeting, which was made laft on that fubject: and the faid quarterly-meeting appointed a committee to confider it, and report to their next; which committee having met once and adjourned, and I going to Philadelphia to meet a committee of the yearly-meeting, was in town the evening on which the quarterly-meeting's com-committee met the fecond time ; and finding an inclination to fit with them, was, with fome others, admitted; and friends had a weighty conference on the fubject : and foon after their next quarterly-meeting, I heard that the cafe was coming to our yearly-meeting; which brought a weighty exercife upon me, and under a sense of my own infirmities, and the great danger I felt of turning afide from perfect purity, my mind was often drawn to retire alone, and put up my prayers to the Lord, that he would be gracioufly pleafed to ftrengthen me; that fetting afide all views of felf-interest and the friendfhip of this world, I might ftand fully refigned to his holy will.

In this yearly-meeting, feveral weighty matters were confidered; and toward the laft, that in relation to dealing with perfons who purchafe flaves. During the feveral fittings of the faid meeting, my mind was frequently covered with inward prayer; and I could fay with David, " that tears were my meat " day and night." The cafe of flave-keeping lay heavy upon me; nor did I find any engagement to fpeak directly to any other matter before the meeting. Now when this cafe was opened, feveral faithful friends fpake weightily thereto, with which I was comforted; and feeling a concern to caft in my mite, I faid, in fubftance, as follows:

" In the difficulties attending us in this life, nothing is more precious than the mind of truth inwardly manifested; and it is my earnest earneft defire, that in this weighty matter, we may be fo truly humbled as to be favoured with a clear underftanding of the mind of truth, and follow it; this would be of more advantage to the fociety, than any medium not in the clearnefs of divine wifdom. The cafe is difficult to fome who have them; but if fuch fet afide all felf-intereft, and come to be weaned from the defire of getting eftates, of even from holding them together, when truth requires the contrary, I believe way will open that they will know how to fteer through those difficulties."

Many friends appeared to be deeply bowed under the weight of the work ; and manifested much firmness in their love to the cause of truth, and universal righteousness on the earth: and though none did openly juftify the practice of flave-keeping in general, yet fome appeared concerned, left the meeting fhould go into fuch measures, as might give uneafinefs to many brethren; alledging, that if friends patiently continued under the exercise, the Lord, in time to come, might open a way for the deliverance of these people : and I finding an engagement to fpeak, faid, " My mind is often led to confider the purity of the Divine Being, and the juffice of his judgments; and herein my foul is co-vered with awfulnefs: I cannot omit to hint of fome cafes, where people 'have not been treated with the purity of justice, and the event hath been lamentable : Many flaves on this continent are oppreffed, and their cries have have reached the ears of the Most High. Such are the purity and certainty of his judgments; that he cannot be partial in our favour. In infinite love and goodnefs, he hath opened our understandings from one time to another, concerning our duty toward this people; and it is not a time for delay. Should we now be fenfible of what he requires of us, and through a refpect to the private interest of some persons, or through a regard to some friendships which do not stand on an immutable foundation, neglect to do our duty in firmnefs and conftancy, ftill waiting for fome extraordinary means to bring about their deliverance; it may be by terrible things in righteoufnefs, God may answer us in this matter."

Many faithful brethren laboured with great firmnefs; and the love of truth, in a good degree, prevailed. Several friends, who had negroes, expressed their defire that a rule might be made, to deal with fuch friends as offenders who bought flaves in future : to this it was answered, that the root of this evil would never be effectually ftruck at, until a thorough fearch was made into the circumftances of fuch friends who kept negroes, with refpect to the righteoufnefs of their motives in keeping them, that impartial juftice might be administered throughout. Several friends expressed their defire, that a visit might be made to fuch friends who kept flaves : and many friends faid, that they believed lieved liberty was the negroes right; to which, at length, no opposition was made publicly: a minute was made more full on that fubject, than any heretofore; and the names of feveral friends entered, who were free to join in a vifit to fuch who kept flaves.

CHAP. VI.

His wifiting the quarterly-meetings in Chefter county; and afterwards joining with Daniel Stanton and John Scarborough, in a vifit to fuch as kept flaves there—Some obfervations on the conduct fuch fhould maintain who are concerned to fpeak in meetings for difcipline— Several more vifits to fuch who kept flaves: and to friends near Salem—Some account of the yearly-meeting in the year 1759; and of the increasing concern in divers provinces, to labour against buying and keeping flaves— The yearly-meeting epistle—(His thoughts on the small-pox spreading—and on inoculation.)

ON the eleventh day of the eleventh month, in the year 1758, I fet out for Concord; the quarterly-meeting, heretofore held there, was now, by reafon of a great increase of members, divided into two by the agreement of friends, at our last yearly meeting. Here I met

I met with our beloved friends Samuel Spavold and Mary Kirby from England, and with Jofeph White from Bucks county, who had taken leave of his family in order to go on a religious vifit to friends in England; and, through divine goodnefs, we were favoured with a ftrengthening opportunity together.

After this meeting I joined with my friends Daniel Stanton and John Scarborough, in vifiting friends who had flaves; and at night we had a family meeting at William Trimble's, many young people being there; and it was a precious reviving opportunity. Next morning we had a comfortable fitting with a fick neighbour ; and thence to the buria! of the corpfe of a friend at Uwchland meeting, at which were many people, and it was a time of divine favour; after which, we vifited fome who had flaves; and, at night, had a family meeting at a friend's house, where the channel of gofpel love was opened, and my mind was comforted after a hard day's labour. The next day we were at Gofhen monthly-meeting: and thence, on the eighteenth day of the eleventh month, in the year 1758, attended the quarterly-meeting at London-Grove, it being the first held at that place. Here we met again with all the before-mentioned friends, and had fome edifying meetings : and near the conclusion of the meeting for bufinefs, friends were incited to conftancy in fupporting the teftimony of truth, and reminded of the necessity which the

the difciples of Chrift are under to attend principally to his bufinefs, as he is pleafed to open it to us : and to be particularly careful to have our minds redeemed from the love of wealth; to have our outward affairs in as little room as may be; that no temporal concerns may entangle our affections, or hinder us from from diligently following the dictates of truth, in labouring to promote the pure fpirit of meeknefs and heavenly-mindednefs amongft the children of men, in thefe days of calamity and diftrefs; wherein God is vifiting our land with his juft judgments.

Each of these quarterly-meetings were large, and fat near eight hours. Here I had occasion to confider, that it is a weighty thing to speak much in large meetings for business: first, except our minds are rightly prepared, and we clearly understand the case we speak to, instead of forwarding, we hinder businness, and make more labour for those on whom the burthen of the work is laid.

If felfifh views, or a partial fpirit, have any room in our minds, we are unfit for the Lord's work; if we have a clear profpect of the bufinefs, and proper weight on our minds to fpeak, it behoves us to avoid ufelefs apologies and repetitions: where people are gathered from far, and adjourning a meeting of bufinefs is attended with great difficulty, it behoves all to be cautious how they detain a meeting; effectially when they have fat fix or feven hours, and have a great dif-H tance to ride home. After this meeting I rode home.

In the beginning of the twelfth month of the year 1758, I joined in company with my friends John Sykes and Daniel Stanton, im, vifiting fuch who had flaves: fome, whole hearts were rightly exercised about them, appeared to be glad of our visit; but in some places our way was more difficult; and I often faw the necessity of keeping down to that root from whence our concern proceeded; and have cause, in reverent thankfulness, humbly to bow down before the Lord, who was near to me, and preferved my mind in calmness under some fharp conflicts, and begat a spirit of sympathy and tenderness in me, toward some who were grievously entangled by the spirit of this world.

In the first month of the year 1750, having found my mind drawn to vifit fome of the more active members, in our fociety at Philadelphia, who had flaves, I met my friend John Churchman there by an agreement; and we continued about a week in the city : we vifited fome that were fick, and fome widows and their families; and the other part of our time was mostly employed in visiting fuch who had flaves—It was a time of deep exercife, looking often to the Lord for his affistance; who, in unspeakable kindness, favoured us with the influence of that fpirit, which crucifies to the greatness and splendor of this world; and enabled us to go through fome 5112 fome heavy labours, in which we found peace.

On the twenty-fourth day of the third month, of this year, I was at our General fpring meeting at Philadelphia : after which, I again joined with John Churchman on a vifit to fome more, who had flaves in Philadelphia; and, with thankfulnefs to our heavenly Father, I may fay, that divine love and a true fympathizing tendernefs of heart, prevailed at times in this fervice.

Having, at times, perceived a flynefs in fome friends, of confiderable note, towards me, I found an engagement in gofpel love to pay a vifit to one of them; and as I dwelt under the exercife, I felt a refignednefs in my mind to go: fo I went, and told him in private; I had a defire to have an opportunity with him alone; to which he readily agreed: and then, in the fear of the Lord, things relating to that flynefs were fearched to the bottom; and we had a large conference, which, I believe, was of ufe to both of us; and am thankful that way was opened for it.

On the fourteenth day of the fixth month, in the fame year, having felt drawings in my mind to vifit friends about Salem, and having the approbation of our monthlymeeting therein, I attended their quarterlymeeting, and was out feven days, and at feven meetings; in fome of which I was chiefly filent, and in others, thro' the baptizing power of truth, my heart was en-H 2 larged larged in heavenly love, and found a near fellowship with the brethren and fisters, in the manifold trials attending their christian progress through this world.

In the feventh month, I found an increating concern on my mind to vifit fome active members in our fociety who had flaves; and having no opportunity of the company of fuch who were named on the minutes of the yearly-meeting, I went alone to their houfes, and, in the fear of the Lord, acquainted them with the exercise I was under: and thus, fometimes, by a few words, I found myself difcharged from a heavy burthen.

After this, our friend John Churchman coming into our province with a view to be at fome meetings, and to join again in the vifit to those who had flaves, I bore him company in the faid visit to fome active members, and found inward fatisfaction.

At our yearly-meeting in the year 1759, we had fome weighty feafons; where the power of truth was largely extended, to the ftrengthening of the honeft-minded. As friends read over the epiftles, to be fent to the yearly-meetings along this continent, I obferved in most of them, both this year and last, it was recommended to friends to labour against buying and keeping flaves; and in fome of them closely treated upon. As this practice hath long been a heavy exercise to me, and I have often waded through mortifying labours on that account; and, at times, times, in fome meetings been almost alone therein. Now observing the increasing con-cern in our religious fociety, and feeing how the Lord was raifing up and qualifying fervants for his work, not only in this refpect, but for promoting the caufe of truth in ge-neral, I was humbly bowed in thankfulnefs before him. This meeting continued near a week : and, for feveral days, in the forepart of it, my mind was drawn into a deep inward stillness; and being, at times, covered with the fpirit of fupplication, my heart was fecretly poured out before the Lord: and near the conclusion of the meeting for bufinefs way opened, that, in the pure flowings of divine love, I expressed what lay upon me; which, as it then arofe in my mind, was " first to shew how deep answers to deep in the hearts of the fincere and upright; though, in their different growths they may not all have attained to the fame clearnefs in fome points relating to our testimony : and I was led to mention the integrity and conftancy of many martyrs, who gave their lives for the teftimony of Jesus; and yet, in some points, held doctrines diftinguishable from fome which we hold: and that, in all ages where people were faithful to the light and underftanding which the Most High afforded them, they found acceptance with him; and that now, though there are different ways of thinking amongst us in fome particulars, yet, if we mutually kept to that fpirit and power which crucifies to the world, which teaches.

us to be content with things really needful, and to avoid all fuperfluities, giving up our hearts to fear and ferve the Lord, true unity may ftill be preferved amongft us : and that if fuch, who were, at times, under fufferings on account of fome fcruples of confcience, kept low and humble, and in their conduct in life manifefted a fpirit of true charity; it would be more likely to reach the witnefs in others, and be of more fervice in the church, than if their fufferings were attended with a contrary fpirit and conduct." In which exercise I was drawn into a fympathizing tendernefs with the fheep of Chrift, however diffinguithed one from another in this world; and the like difpofition appeared to fpread over others in the meeting. Great is the goodnefs of the Lord toward his poor creatures.

From

- From the yearly-meeting held at Philadelphia, for Pennfylvania and New-Jerfey, from the twenty-fecond day of the ninth month, to the twenty-eighth day of the fame, inclusive, 1759.
 - To the quarterly and monthly meetings of friends belonging to the faid yearly-meeting.

Dearly beloved friends and brethren,

"IN an awful fenfe of the wifdom and goodnefs of the Lord our God, whofe tender mercies have long been continued to us in this land, we affectionately falute you, with fincere and fervent defires, that we may reverently regard the difpenfations of his providence, and improve under them."

"The empires and kingdoms of the earth are fubject to his Almighty power : He is the God of the fpirits of all flefh; and deals with his people agreeable to that wifdom, the depth whereof is to us unfearchable : we, in thefe provinces, may fay, He hath, as a gracious and tender parent, dealt bountifully with us, even from the days of our fathers : it was He who ftrengthened them to labour through the difficulties attending the improvement of a wildernefs, and made way for them in the hearts of the natives; fo that by them they were comforted in times of want and diffrefs:

it was by the gracious influences of his holy fpirit, that they were difpofed to work righteoufnefs, and walk uprightly one towards another, and towards the natives, and in life and converfation to manifeft the excellency of the principles and doctrines of the chriftian religion; and thereby they retain their efteem and friendfhip : whilft they were labouring for the neceffaries of life, many of them were fervently engaged to promote piety and virtue in the earth, and educate their children in the fear of the Lord."

"If we carefully confider the peaceable meafures purfued in the firft fettlement of the land, and that freedom from the defolations of wars, which for a long time we enjoyed, we fhall find ourfelves under ftrong obligations to the Almighty, who, when the earth is fo generally polluted with wickednefs, gave us a being in a part fo fignally favoured with tranquillity and plenty, and in which the glad tidings of the gofpel of Chrift are fo freely publifhed, that we may juftly fay with the pfalmift, "What fhall "we render unto the Lord for all his bene-" fits ?"

"Our own real good, and the good of our pofterity in fome measure depends on the part we act; and it nearly concerns us to try our foundations impartially. Such are the different rewards of the just and unjust in a future state, that to attend diligently to the dictates of the spirit of Chriss, to devote ourfelves to his fervice, and engage fervently in his caufe, during our fhort ftay in this world, is a choice well becoming a free intelligent creature; we fhall thus clearly fee and confider that the dealings of God with mankind in a national capacity, as recorded in holy writ, do fufficiently evidence the truth of that faying, " it is righteoufnefs which ex-" alteth a nation ;" and though he doth not at all times fuddenly execute his judgments on a finful people in this life, yet we fee by many inftances, that where " men follow " lying vanities, they forfake their own mer-" cies;" and as a proud felfifh fpirit prevails and fpreads among a people, fo partial judgment, oppression, discord, envy and confufions increase, and provinces and kingdoms are made to drink the cup of adverfity as a reward of their own doings. Thus the infpired prophet, reafoning with the degenerated Jews, faith, " Thine own wickednefs " fhall correct thee, and thy backflidings " fhall reprove thee : know therefore, that " it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou " haft forfaken the Lord thy God, and " that my fear is not in thee, faith the Lord

"God of Hofts." Jer. ii. 19. "The God of our fathers, who hath beflowed on us many benefits, furnished a table for us in the wilderness, and made the defarts and folitary places to rejoice; he doth now mercifully call upon us to ferve him more faithfully—We may truly fay with the prophet, " it is his voice which crieth to the " city, and men of wildom fee his name: " They

" They regard the rod, and him who hath " appointed it" .- People who look chiefly at things outward, too little confider the original caufe of the prefent troubles; but fuch who fear the Lord, and think often upon his name, they fee and feel that a wrong fpirit is fpreading among the inhabitants of our country; that the hearts of many are waxed fat, and their ears dull of hearing; that the Most High, in his visitations to us, inftead of calling, he lifteth up his voice and crieth; he crieth to our country, and his voice waxeth louder and louder. In former wars between the English and other nations, fince the fettlement of our provinces, the calamities attending them have fallen chiefly on other places, but now of late they have reached to our borders ; many of our fellow fubjects have fuffered on and near our frontiers, some have been flain in battle, some killed in their houses, and fome in their fields, fome wounded and left in great mifery, and others feparated from their wives and little children, who have been carried captives among the Indians : We have feen men and women, who have been witneffes of thefe fcenes of forrow, and being reduced to want, have come to our houfes afking relief .-- It is not long fince it was the cafe of many young men in one of these provinces to be draughted, in order to be taken as foldiers; fome where at that time in great diffrefs, and had occasion to confider that their lives had been too little conformable to the purity and fpirituality fpirituality of that religion which we profefs, and found themfelves too little acquainted with that inward humility, in which true fortitude to endure hardness for the truth's fake is experienced.—Many parents were concerned for their children, and in that time of trial were led to confider, that their care to get outward treafure for them, had been greater than their care for their fettlement in that religion which crucifieth to the world, and enableth to bear a clear testimony to the peaceable government of the Meiliah. These troubles are removed, and for a time we are releafed from them."

" Let us not forget that "the Moft High hath " his way in the deep, in clouds and in thick " darknefs"--that it is his voice which crieth to the city and to the country; and oh! that thefe loud and awakening cries, may have a proper effect upon us, that heavier chaftifement may not become neceffary ! For though things, as to the outward, may, for a fhort time, afford a pleafing profpect; yet, while a felfish spirit, that is not subject to the cross of Chrift, continueth to fpread and prevail, there can be no long continuance in outward peace and tranquillity. If we defire an inheritance incorruptible, and to be at reft in that ftate of peace and happinefs, which ever continues; if we defire in this life to dwell under the favour and protection of that al-mighty Being, whofe habitation is in holinefs, whofe ways are all equal and whofe anger is now kindled, becaufe of our backflidings flidings; let us then awfully regard thefe beginnings of his fore judgments, and with abafement and humiliation turn to Him, whom we have offended."

"Contending with one equal in ftrength, is an uneafy exercife; but if the Lord is become our enemy, if we perfift to contend with Him who is Omnipotent, our overthrow will be unavoidable."

" Do we feel an affectionate regard to posterity; and are we employed to promote their happiness? Do our minds, in things outward, look beyond our own diffolution; and are we contriving for the profperity of our children after us? Let us then, like wife builders, lay the foundation deep; and by our conftant uniform regard to an inward piety and virtue, let them fee that we really value it : let us labour in the fear of the Lord, that their innocent minds, while young and tender, may be preferved from corruptions; that as they advance in age, they may rightly understand their true interest, may confider the uncertainty of temporal things, and, above all, have their hope and confidence firmly fettled in the bleffing of that Almighty Being, who inhabits eternity, and preferves and fupports the world."

" In all our cares about worldly treafures, let us fteadily bear in mind, that riches poffeffed by children, who do not truly ferve God, are likely to prove fnares that may more grievoufly entangle them in that fpirit of felfifhnefs and exaltation, which ftands in oppofi-opposition to real peace and happines; and renders them enemies to the cross of Christ, who submit to the influence of it."

" To keep a watchful eye towards real objects of charity, to visit the poor in their lonefome dwelling-places, to comfort them who, through the difpenfations of Divine Providence, are in strait and painful circumftances in this life, and steadily to endeavour to honour God with our fubstance, from a real fenfe of the love of Chrift influencing our minds thereto, is more likely to bring a bleffing to our children, and will afford more fatisfaction to a chriftian favoured with plenty, than an earnest defire to collect much wealth to leave behind us, for " here we have " no continuing city;" may we therefore diligently " feek one that is to come, whofe " builder and maker is God."

"Finally, brethren, whatfoever things are true, whatfoever things are juft, whatfoever things are pure, whatfoever things are lovely, whatfoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, if there be any praife, think on thefe things and do them, and the God of peace fhall be with you."

Signed by appointment, and on behalf of our faid meeting, by feven friends.

On

On the twenty-eighth day of the eleventh month, in the year 1759, I was at the quarterly-meeting in Bucks county: this day being the meeting of ministers and elders, my heart was enlarged in the love of Jefus Christ; and the favour of the Most High was extended to us in that and the ensuing meeting.

I had converfation, at my lodging, with my beloved friend Samuel Eaftburn; who expressed a concern to join in a visit to fome friends, in that county, who had negroes; and as I had felt a draught in my mind to that work in the faid county, I came home and put things in order: on the eleventh day of the twelfth month following, I went over the river; and on the next day was at Buckingham meeting; where, through the defcendings of heavenly dew, my mind was comforted, and drawn into a near unity with the flock of Jefus Chrift.

Entering upon this vifit appeared weighty: and before I left home my mind was often fad; under which exercife I felt, at times, the Holy Spirit which helps our infirmities; through which, in private, my prayers were; at times, put up to God, that he would be pleafed to purge me from all felfifhnefs, that I might be ftrengthened to difcharge my duty faithfully, how hard foever to the natural part. We proceeded on the vifit in a weighty frame of fpirit, and went to the houfes of the most active members, throughout the county, who had negroes; and, through through the goodness of the Lord, my mind was preferved in refignation in times of trial, and though the work was hard to nature, yet through the strength of that love which is stronger than death, tenderness of heart was often felt amongst us in our visits, and we parted from feveral families with greater fatisfaction than we expected.

We vifited Jofeph White's family, he being in England; had alfo a family fitting at the houfe of an elder who bore us company, and was at Makefield on a firft day: at all which times my heart was truly thankful to the Lord, who was gracioufly pleafed to renew his loving-kindnefs to us, his poor fervants, uniting us together in his work.

(In the winter of this year, the finall-pox being in our town, and many being inoculated, of which a few died, fome things were opened in my mind, which I wrote as follow:

The more fully our lives are conformable to the will of God, the better it is for us.— I have looked on the finall-pox as a meffenger from the Almighty, to be an affiftant in the caufe of virtue, and to incite us to confider whether we employ our time only in fuch things as are confiftent with perfect wifdom and goodnefs.

Building houfes fuitable to dwell in, for ourfelves and our creatures; preparing cloathing fuitable for the climate and feafon, and food convenient, are all duties incumbent on us: and under thefe general heads, are many branches of bufinefs, in which we may venture health and life, as neceffity may require.

This difeafe being in a houfe, and my bufinefs calling me to go near it, it incites me to think, whether this bufinefs is a real indifpenfible duty; whether it is not in conformity to fome cuftom, which would be better laid afide; or, whether it does not proceed from too eager a purfuit after fome outward treafure. If the bufinefs before me fprings not from a clear underftanding, and a regard to that ufe of things which perfect wifdom approves; to be brought to a fenfe of it, and ftopped in my purfuit, is a kindnefs; for when I proceed to bufinefs without fome evidence of duty, I have found, by experience, that it tends to weaknefs.

If I am fo fituated that there appears no probability of miffing the infection, it tends to make me think, whether my manner of life, in things outward, has nothing in it which may unfit my body to receive this meffenger in a way the most favourable to me. Do I use food and drink in no other fort, and in no other degree, than was defigned by Him, who gave thefe creatures for our fustenance? Do I never abuse my body by inordinate labour, striving to accomplish fome end which I have unwifely propofed ? Do I use action enough in some useful employ? Or, do I fit too much idle, while fome perfons, who labour to fupport me, have too great a share of it? If, in any of these things, things, I am deficient, to be incited to confider it, is a favour to me.

There is employ neceffary in focial life; and this infection, which often proves mortal, incites me to think, whether thefe focial acts of mine are real duties: if I go on a vifit to the widows and fatherlefs, do I go purely on a principle of charity, free from any felfifh views? If I go to a religious meeting, it puts me on thinking, whether I go in fincerity and in a clear fenfe of duty; or whether it is not partly in conformity to cuftom, or partly from a fenfible delight which my animal fpirits feel in the company of other people; and whether to fupport my reputation as a religious man, has no fhare in it.

Do affairs, relating to civil fociety, call me near this infection ? If I go, it is at the hazard of my health and life; and becomes me to think ferioufly, whether love to truth and righteoufnefs is the motive of my attending; whether the manner of proceeding, is altogether equitable; or whether aught of narrownefs, party intereft, refpect to outward dignities, names, or diffinctions among men, do not ftain the beauty of those affemblies, and render it doubtful, in point of duty, whether a disciple of Chrift ought to attend as a member united to the body or not.

Whenever there are blemifies which, for a feries of time, remain fuch; that which is a means of ftirring us up to look attentively on these blemistes, and to labour ac-I cording cording to our capacities, to have health and foundness restored in our country, we may justly account a kindness from our gracious Father, who appointed that mean.

The care of a wife and good man for his only fon, is inferior to the regard of the great Parent of the univerfe for his creatures. He hath the command of all the powers and operations in nature ; and " doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men :" chaftifement is intended for inftruction, and inftruction being received by gentle chaftifement, greater calamities are prevented.

By an earthquake hundreds of houfes are fometimes fhaken down in a few minutes, and multitudes of people perifh fuddenly; and many more being crufhed and bruifed in the ruins of the buildings, pine away and die in great mifery.

By the breaking in of enraged mercilefs armies, flourifhing countries have been laid wafte, and great numbers of people perifhed in a fhort time, and many more preffed with poverty and grief.

By the peftilence people have died fo faft in a city, that through fear, grief and confusion, those in health have found great difficulty in burying the dead, even without coffins.

By famine, great numbers of people, in fome places, have been brought to the utmost distrefs, and pined away for want of the neceffaries of life. Thus, where the kind invitations, and gentle chastifements, of a gracious gracious God have not been attended to, his fore judgments have, at times, been poured out upon people.

While fome rules approved in civil fociety, and conformable to human policy, fo called, are diftinguifhable from the purity of truth and righteoufnefs: while many profeffing truth, are declining from that ardent love and heavenly mindednefs, which was amongft the primitive followers of Jefus Chrift: it is a time for us to attend diligently to the intent of every chaftifement, and confider the most deep and inward defign of them.

The Moft High doth not often fpeak with an outward voice to our outward ears; but, if we humbly meditate on his perfections; confider that he is perfect wifdom and goodnefs, and to afflict his creatures to no purpofe, would be utterly reverse to his nature, we fhall hear and understand his language, both in his gentle and more heavy chastilements; and take heed that we do not, in the wisdom of this world, endeavour to escape his hand by means too powerful for us.

Had he endowed men with understanding to hinder the force of this difease by innocent means, which had never proved mortal nor hurtful to our bodies, fuch discovery might be confidered as the period of chastifement by this distemper, where that knowledge extended: but as life and health are his gifts, and not to be disposed of in our own wills, to take upon us, when in health, I 2 a distemper

a diftemper, of which fome die, requires great clearnefs of knowledge, that it is our duty to do fo.)

His visit, in company with Samuel Eastburn, to Long-Island, Rhode-Island, Boston, &c. in New-England — Remarks on the slavetrade at Newport, and his exercise on that account; also on lotteries—Some observations on the island of Nantucket.

H AVING, for fome time paft, felt a fympathy in my mind with friends Eaftward, I opened my concern in our monthly-meeting; and, obtaining a certificate, fet forward on the feventeenth day of the fourth month, in the year 1760, joining in company, by a previous agreement, with my beloved friend Samuel Eaftburn. We had meetings at Woodbridge, Rahaway and Plainfield; and were at their monthly-meeting of minifters and elders in Rahaway. We laboured under fome difcouragement; but, through the invifible power of truth, our vifit was made reviving to the lowly minded, with whom I felt a near unity of fpirit, being much reduced in my mind. We paffed on, and vifited chief of the meetings on Long-Ifland. It was my concern, from day to day, to fay no more nor lefs than what the fpirit of truth opened in me, being jealous over myfelf, left I fhould fpeak any thing to make my testimony look agreeable to that mind in people, which is not in pure obedience to the crofs of Chrift.

The fpring of the ministry was often low; and, through the fubjecting power of truth, we were kept low with it; and from place to place, fuch whofe hearts were truly concerned for the caufe of Christ, appeared to be comforted in our labours; and, though it was in general a time of abasement of the creature, yet, through His goodnefs, who is a helper of the poor, we had fome truly edifying feafons both in meetings, and in families where we tarried; and fometimes found ftrength to labour earneftly with the unfaithful, efpecially with those, whose station in families, or in the fociety was fuch, that their example had a powerful tendency to open the way for others to go alide from the purity and foundness of the bleffed truth. At Jericho, on Long-Island, I wrote home as follows ;

Dearly

24th of the 4th month, 1769.

Dearly beloved wife,

"WE are favoured with health; have been at fundry meetings in East-Jersey, and on this island: my mind hath been much in an inward watchful frame fince I left thee, greatly defiring that our proceedings may be fingly in the will of our heavenly Father."

" As the prefent appearance of things is not joyous, I have been much fhut up from outward chearfulnefs, remembering that promife, " Then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord :"-as this, from day to day, has been revived in my memory, I have confidered that his internal prefence on our minds, is a delight of all others the most pure; and that the honeft-hearted not only delight in this, but in the effect of it upon them. He who regards the helplefs and diftreffed, and reveals his love to his children under affliction, they delight in beholding his benevolence, and feeling divine charity moving upon them: of this I may fpeak a little; for though, fince I left you, I have often found an engaging love and affection toward thee and my daughter, and friends about home, that going out at this time, when fickness is fo great amongst you, is a trial upon me;

yet I often remember there are many widows and fatherlefs, many who have poor tutors, many who have evil examples before them, and many whofe minds are in captivity, for whofe fake my heart is, at times, moved with compaffion, that I feel my mind refigned to leave you for a feafon, to exercife that gift which the Lord hath beftowed on me; which, though finall, compared with fome, yet in this I rejoice, that I feel love unfeigned toward my fellow-creatures. I recommend you to the Almighty, who, I truft cares for you; and under a fenfe of his heavenly love, remain²²

" Thy loving hufband,"

" J. W."

We croffed from the eaft end of Long-Ifland to New-London, about thirty miles, in a large open boat; while we were out, the wind rifing high, the waves feveral times beat over us, that to me it appeared dangerons; but my mind was, at that time, turned to Him, who made and governs the deep, and my life was refigned to him; and as he was mercifully pleafed to preferve us, I had frefh occafion to confider every day as a day lent to me; and felt a renewed engagement to devote my time, and all I had, to Him who gave it.

We had five meetings in Narraganfet; and went thence to Newport on Rhode-Ifland, Our-

Our gracious Father preferved us in an humble dependance on him through deep exercifes, that were mortifying to the creaturely will. In feveral families in the country, where we lodged, I felt an engagement on my mind to have a conference with them in private concerning their flaves; and, thro' divine aid, I was favoured to give up thereto: though, in this concern, I appear fingular from many, whofe fervice in travelling, I believe, is greater than mine; I do not think hard of them for omitting it; I do not repine at having fo unpleafant a tafk affigned me, but look with awfulnefs to Him, who appoints to his fervants their refpective employments, and is good to all who ferve him fincerely.

We got to Newport in the evening: and on the next day vifited two fick perfons, and had comfortable fittings with them; and in the afternoon attended the burial of a friend.

The next day we were at meetings at Newport, in the forenoon and afternoon; where the fpring of the ministry was opened, and strength given to declare the Word of Life to the people.

The next day we went on our journey; but the great number of flaves in thefe parts, and the continuance of that trade from thence to Guinea, made deep impression on me; and my cries were often put up to my heavenly Father in fecret, that he would enable me to discharge my duty faithfully, in such way as he might be pleased to point out to me.

We

We took Swanfea, Freetown, and Tanton. in our way to Bofton; where alfo we had a meeting; our exercife was deep, and the love of truth prevailed, for which I blefs the Lord. We went eaftward about eighty miles beyond Bofton, taking meetings, and were in a good degree preferved in an humble dependance on that arm which drew us out: and, though we had fome hard labour with the difobedient, laying things home and clofe to fuch as were ftout against the truth ; yet, thro' the goodness of God, we had, at times, to partake of heavenly comfort with them who were meek, and were often favoured to part with friends in the nearnefs of true gofpel fellowship. We returned to Boston, and had another comfortable opportunity with friends there; and thence rode back a day's journey eastward of Boston; our guide being a heavy man, and the weather hot, and my companion and I confidering it, expressed our freedom to go on without him, to which he confented, and we respectfully took our leave of him; this we did, as believing the journey would have been hard to him and his horfe.

We vifited the meetings in those parts, and were meafurably baptized into a feeling of the flate of the fociety; and in bowedness of fpirit went to the yearly-meeting at Newport; where I understood that a large number of flaves were imported from Africa into that town, and then on fale by a member of our fociety. At this meeting we met with John Storer from England, Elizabeth Shipley, Ann Gaunt, Hannah Foster, and Mercy Redman from our parts, all ministers of the gospel, of whose company I was glad.

At this time my appetite failed, and I grew outwardly weak, and had a feeling of the condition of Habbakuk, as there expreffed. "When I heard my belly trembled, my lips quivered, I trembled in myfelf that I might reft in the day of trouble ;" I had many cogitations, and was forely diftreffed : and was defirous that friends might petition the legiflature, to ufe their endeavours to difcourage the future importation of flaves ; for I faw that this trade was a great evil, and tended to multiply troubles, and bring diftreffes on the people in thofe parts, for whofe welfare my heart was deeply concerned.

But I perceived feveral difficulties in regard to petitioning; and fuch was the exercise of my mind, that I had thought of endeavouring to get an opportunity to speak a few words in the House of Affembly, then setting in town. This exercise came upon me in the afternoon, on the second day of the yearlymeeting, and going to bed, I got no set till my mind was wholly resigned therein; and in the morning I enquired of a friend how long the Affembly were likely to continue fitting; who told me, they were expected to be prorogued that day or the next.

As I was defirous to attend the bufinefs of the meeting, and perceived the Affembly were likely to depart before the bufinefs was over; after confiderable exercife, humbly feeking feeking to the Lord for inftruction, my mind fettled to attend on the bufinefs of the meeting; on the laft day of which, I had prepared a flort effay of a petition to be prefented to the legiflature, if way opened : and being informed that there were fome appointed, by that yearly-meeting, to fpeak with those in authority, in cafes relating to the fociety, I opened my mind to feveral of them, and fhewed them the effay I had made; and afterward opened the cafe in the meeting for bufinefs, in fubftance as follows :

" I have been under a concern for fome time, on account of the great number of flaves which are imported into this colony; I am aware that it is a tender point to fpeak to, but apprehend I am not clear in the fight of heaven without fpeaking to it. I have prepared an effay of a petition, if way open, to be prefented to the legislature; and what I have to propofe to this meeting is, that fome friends may be named to withdraw and look over it, and report whether they believe it fuitable to be read in the meeting; if they fhould think well of reading it, it will remain for the meeting, after hearing it, to confider, whether to take any further notice of it as a meeting or not." After a fhort conference fome friends went out, and looking over it, expressed their willingness to have it read ; which being done, many expressed their unity with the proposal ; and some fig-nified, that to have the subjects of the petition enlarged upon, and to be figned out of meeting meeting by fuch who were free, would be more fuitable than to do it there: though I expected at first, that if it was done it would be in that way; yet, fuch was the exercife of my mind, that to move it in the hearing of friends when affembled, appeared to me as a duty; for my heart yearned toward the inhabitants of thefe parts; believing that by this trade there had been an increase of inquietude amongst them, and a way made eafy for the fpreading of a fpirit oppofite to that meeknefs and humility, which is a fure refting-place for the foul: and that the continuance of this trade would not only render their healing more difficult, but increase their malady.

Having thus far proceeded, I felt eafy to leave the effay amongst friends, for them to proceed in it as they believed beft. And now an exercife revived on my mind in relation to lotteries, which were common in those parts: I had once moved it in a former fitting of this meeting, when arguments were used in favour of friends being held excufed, who were only concerned in fuch lotteries as were agreeable to law: and now on moving it again, it was oppofed as before; but the hearts of fome folid friends appeared to be united to discourage the practice amongft their members; and the matter was zealoufly handled by fome on both fides. In this debate it appeared very clear to me, that the fpirit of lotteries was a fpirit of felfifhnefs, which tended to confusion and darknefs nefs of understanding; and that pleading for it in our meetings, fet apart for the Lord's work, was not right: and in the heat of zeal, I once made reply to what an antient friend faid, which when I fat down, I faw that my words were not enough feafoned with charity; and after this, I fpake no more on the fubject. At length a minute was made; a copy of which was agreed to be fent to their feveral quarterly-meetings, inciting friends to labour to difcourage the practice amongst all profeffing with us.

Some time after this minute was made, I remaining uneafy with the manner of my fpeaking to the antient friend, could not fee my way clear to conceal my uneafinefs, but was concerned that I might fay nothing to weaken the caufe in which I had laboured ; and then, after fome clofe exercife and hearty repentance, for that I had not attended clofely to the fafe guide, I ftood up, and reciting the paffage, acquainted friends, that tho' I dare not go from what I had faid as to the matter, yet I was uneafy with the manner of my speaking, as believing milder language would have been better. As this was uttered in fome degree of creaturely abafement, it appeared to have a good favor amongst us, after a warm debate.

The yearly-meeting being now over, there yet remained on my mind a fecret, though heavy, exercife in regard to fome leading active members about Newport, being in the practice of flave-keeping. This I mentioned to two antient friends, who came out of the country, and proposed to them, if way opened, to have some conversation with those friends: and thereupon, one of those country friends and I, confulted one of the most noted elders who had flaves; and he, in a respectful manner, encouraged me to pro-ceed to clear myself of what lay upon me. Now I had, near the beginning of the yearlymeeting, a private conference with this faid elder and his wife, concerning theirs; fo that the way feemed clear to me, to advife with him about the manner of proceeding : I told him, I was free to have a conference with them all together in a private house; or if he thought they would take it unkind to be asked to come together, and to be spoke with one in the hearing of another, I was free to fpend fome time among them, and vifit them all in their own houses : he expressed his liking to the first proposal, not doubting their willingness to come together : and as I propofed a vifit to only ministers, elders, and overfeers; he named fome others, whom he defired might be prefent alfo : and as a careful meffenger was wanted to acquaint them in a proper manner, he offered to go to all their houses to open the matter to them; and did fo. About the eighth hour the next morning, we met in the meeting-house chamber, and the last-mentioned country friend, alfo my companion, and John Storer, with us; when, after a fhort time of retirement, I acquainted them with the steps I had taken in procuring that meeting, and opened the concern I was under; and fo we proceeded to a free conference upon the fubject. My exercife was heavy, and I was deeply bowed in fpirit before the Lord, who was pleafed to favour with the feafoning virtue of truth, which wrought a tendernefs amongft us ; and the fubject was mutually handled in a calm and peaceable fpirit : and, at length, feeling my mind releafed from that burthen which I had been under, I took my leave of them,. in a good degree of fatisfaction; and by the tendernefs they manifested in regard to the practice, and the concern feveral of them expreffed in relation to the manner of difpoing of their negroes after their decease, I believed that a good exercife was fpreading amongft them; and I am humbly thankful to God, who fupported my mind, and preferved me in a good degree of refignation through these trials.

to

Thou, who fometimes travels in the work of the ministry, and art made very welcome by thy friends, feeft many tokens of their fatisfaction, in having thee for their gueft. It is good for thee to dwell deep, that thou mayeft feel and understand the spirits of people: if we believe truth points towards a conference on some subjects, in a private way, it is needful for us to take heed that their kindness, their freedom and affability, do not hinder us from the Lord's work. I have feen, that in the midst of kindness and smooth conduct, to speak close and home to them who who entertain us, on points that relate to their outward interest, is hard labour; and fometimes, when I have felt truth lead toward it, I have found myfelf difqualified by a fuperficial friendship; and as the sense thereof hath abafed me, and my cries have been to the Lord, fo I have been humbled and made content to appear weak, or as a fool for his fake; and thus a door hath opened to enter upon it. To attempt to do the Lord's work in our own way, and to fpeak of that which is the burthen of the word, in a way eafy to the natural part, doth not reach the bottom of the diforder. To fee the failings of our friends, and think hard of them, without opening that which we ought to open, and ftill carry a face of friendship, this tends to undermine the foundation of true unity.

The office of a minister of Christ is weighty; and they who now go forth as watchmen, had need to be steadily on their guard against the snares of prosperity and an outfide friendship.

After the yearly-meeting, we were at meetings at Newtown, Cufhnet, Long-Plain, Rochefter and Dartmouth : from thence we failed for Nantucket, in company with Ann Gaunt and Mercy Redman, and feveral other friends : the wind being flack, we only reached Tarpawling Cove the first day ; where, going on fhore, we found room in a publick-houfe, and beds for a few of us, the rest fleeping on the floor : we went on board again about break break of day; and though the wind was fmall, we were favoured to come within about four miles of Nantucket; and then about ten of us getting into our boat, we rowed to the harbour before dark; whereupon a large boat going off, brought in the reft of the paffengers about midnight: the next day but one was their yearly-meeting, which held four days; the last of which, was their monthly-meeting for bufinefs. We had a laborious time amongst them; our minds were clofely exercifed, and I believe it was a time of great fearching of heart: the longer I was on the island, the more I became fenfible that there was a confiderable number of valuable friends there, though an evil fpirit, tending to strife, had been at work amongst them : I was cautious of making any vifits, but as my mind was particularly drawn to them; and in that way we had fome fittings in friends houfes, where the heavenly wing was, at times, fpread over us, to our mutual comfort.

· My beloved companion had very acceptable fervice on this island.

When meeting was over, we all agreed to fail the next day, if the weather was fuitable and we well; and being called up the latter part of the night, we went on board a veffel, being in all about fifty; but the wind changing, the feamen thought beft to ftay in the harbour till it altered; fo we returned on fhore : and feeling clear as to any further vifits, I spent my time in our chamber chiefly K alones alone; and after fome hours, my heart being filled with the fpirit of fupplication, my prayers and tears were poured out before my heavenly Father, for his help and in-Aruction in the manifold difficulties which attended me in life: and while I was waiting upon the Lord, there came a meffenger from the women friends, who lodged at another house, defiring to confer with us about appointing a meeting, which to me appeared weighty, as we had been at fo many before; but after a thort conference, and advising with fome elderly friends, a meeting was appointed, in which the friend, who first moved it, and who had been much fhut up before, was largely opened in the love of the gofpel: and the next morning, about break of day, going again on board the veffel, we reached Falmouth on the Main before night; where our horfes being brought, we proceeded toward Sandwich quarterly-meeting.

Being two days in going to Nantucket, and having been there once before, I obferved many fhoals in their bay, which make failing more dangerous, efpecially in ftormy nights; alfo, that a great fhoal, which enclofes their harbour, prevents their going in with floops, except when the tide is up; waiting without which, for the rifing of the tide, is fometimes hazardous in ftorms: waiting within, they fometimes mifs a fair wind. I took notice, that on that finall ifland was a great number of inhabitants, and the foil not very fertile; the timber fo gone, that for veffels, fences, and firewood, they depend chiefly on the buying from the Main; the cost whereof, with most of their other expences, they depend principally upon the whale fifhery to anfwer. I confidered, that as towns grew larger, and lands near navigable waters more cleared, timber and wood would require more labour to get it: I understood that the whales being much hunted, and fometimes wounded and not killed, grew more fly and difficult to come at: I confidered that the formation of the earth, the feas, the iflands, bays and rivers, the motions of the winds and great waters, which caufe bars and shoals in particular places, were all the works of Him who is perfect wildom and goodnefs; and as people attend to his heavenly inftruction, and put their trust in him, he provides for them in all parts, where he gives them a being. And as in this vifit to thefe people, I felt a ftrong defire for their firm establishment on the fure foundation; befides what was faid more publickly, I was concerned to fpeak with the women friends, in their monthly-meeting of bufinefs, many being prefent; and in the fresh spring of pure love, to open before them the advantage, both inward and out-ward, of attending fingly to the pure guidance of the Holy Spirit, and therein to educate their children in true humility, and the difuse of all fuperfluities, reminding them of the difficulties their hufbands and fons were frequently exposed to at fea; and that the more K 2 plain plain and fimple their way of living was, the lefs need of running great hazards to fupport them in it; encouraging the young women in their neat decent way of attending themfelves on the affairs of the house; shewing, as the way opened, that where people were truly humble, used themselves to businefs, and were content with a plain way of life, that it had ever been attended with more true peace and calmnefs of mind, than they have had who, afpiring to greatnefs and outward fhew, have grafped hard for an income to fupport themfelves in it: and as I obferved, they had few or no flaves amongft them, I had to encourage them to be content without them; making mention of the numerous troubles and vexations, which frequently attend the minds of people, who depend on flaves to do their labour.

We attended the quarterly-meeting at Sandwich, in company with Ann Gaunt and Mercy Redman, which was preceeded by a monthly-meeting; and in the whole held three days: we were various ways exercifed amongft them, in gofpel love, according to the feveral gifts bestowed on us; and were, at times, overfhadowed with the virtue of truth, to the comfort of the fincere, and ftirring up of the negligent. Here we parted with Ann and Mercy, and went to Rhode-Island, taking one meeting in our way, which was a fatisfactory time; and reaching Newport the evening before their quarterly-meeting, we attended it; and after that.

that, had a meeting with our young people, feparated from those of other societies. We went thro' much labour in this town; and now, in taking leave of it, though I felt close inward exercise to the last, I found inward peace; and was, in some degree comforted, in a belief, that a good number remain in that place, who retain a fense of truth; and that there are some young people attentive to the voice of the heavenly Shepherd. The last meeting, in which friends from the several parts of the quarter came together, was a select meeting; and through the renewed manifestation of the Father's love, the hearts of the fincere were united together.

That poverty of fpirit and inward weaknefs, with which I was much tried the fore part of this journey, has of late appeared to me as a diffenfation of kindnefs. Appointing meetings, never appeared more weighty to me; and I was led into a deep fearch, whether in all things my mind was refigned to the will of God; often querying with myfelf, what fhould be the caufe of fuch inward poverty; and greatly defired, that no fecret referve in my heart might hinder my accefs to the divine fountain. In thefe humbling times I was made watchful, and excited to attend the fecret movings of the heavenly principle in my mind which prepared the way to fome duties, that in more eafy and profperous times as to the outward, I believe I fhould have been in danger of omitting.

From

From Newport we went to Greenwich, Shanticut, and Warwick; and were helped to labour amongst friends in the love of our gracious Redeemer: and then, accompanied by our friend John Cafey from Newport, we rode through Connecticut to Oblong, vifited the meetings of friends in those parts, and thence proceeded to the quarterly-meeting at Ryewoods; and, thro' the gracious extendings of divine help, had fome feafoning opportunities in those places : fo we visited friends at New-York and Flushing; and thence to Rahaway : and here our roads parting, I took leave of my beloved companion and true voke-mate Samuel Eaftburn; and reached home on the tenth day of the eighth month, 1760, where I found my family well: and for the favours and protection of the Lord, both inward and outward, extended to me in this journey, my heart is humbled in grateful acknowledgements; and find renewed defires to dwell and walk in refignednefs before him,

His visits to Pennfylvania, Shrewsbury and Squan—His publishing the second part of his confiderations on keeping negroes — (The grounds of his appearing in some respects singular in his dress)— His visiting the families of friends of Ancocas and Mount-Holly meetings — His visits to the Indians at Wehaloosing on the river Susquebannah.

TAVING felt my mind drawn toward a vifit to a few meetings in Pennfylvania, I was very defirous to be rightly inftructed as to the time of fetting off: and on the tenth day of the fifth month, 1761, being the first day of the week, I went to Haddonfield meeting, concluding to feek for heavenly inftruction, and come home or go on, as I might then believe best for me; and there, thro' the fpringing up of pure love, I felt encouragement, and fo croffed the river. In this vifit I was at two quarterly and three monthlymeetings; and, in the love of truth, felt my way open to labour with fome noted friends. who kept negroes : and as I was favoured to keep to the root, and endeavoured to difcharge what I believed was required of me, I found inward peace therein, from time to time; and thankfulnefs of heart to the Lord, who was gracioufly pleafed to be a guide to mė.

In

In the eighth month, 1761, having felt drawings in my mind to vifit friends in and about Shrewfbury; I went there, and was at their monthly-meeting, and their first-day meeting; and had a meeting at Squan, and another at Squankum; and, as way opened, had conversation with some noted friends concerning their flaves : and I returned home in a thankful sense of the goodness of the Lord.

From the care I felt growing in me fome years, I wrote Confiderations on keeping Negroes, part the fecond; which was printed this year, 1762. When the overfeers of the prefs had done with it, they offered to get a number printed to be paid for, out of the yearly-meeting flock, and to be given away; but I being most easy to publish them at my own expense, and offering my reasons they appeared fatisfied.

This flock is the contribution of the members of our religious fociety in general; amongft whom are fome who keep negroes, and being inclined to continue them in flavery, are not likely to be fatisfied with those books being fpread amongft a people where many of the flaves are taught to read, and efpecially not at their expence; and fuch, often receiving them as a gift, conceal them: But as they who make a purchase, generally buy that which they have a mind for, I believed it best to fell them; expecting, by that means, they would more generally be read with attention. Advertisements being figned by

by order of the overfeers of the prefs, directed to be read in monthly-meetings of bufinefs within our own yearly-meeting, informing where the books were, and that the price was no more than the coft of printing and binding them; many were taken off in our parts; fome I fent to Virginia, fome to New-York, and fome to Newport, to my acquaintance there; and fome I kept, expecting to give part of them away, where there appeared a profpect of fervice.

In my youth I was used to hard labour; and though I was middling healthy, yet my nature was not fitted to endure fo much as many others : that being often weary, I was prepared to fympathize with those whose circumftances in life, as free men, required conftant labour to answer the demands of their creditors; and with others under oppreffion. In the uneafiness of body, which I have many times felt by too much labour, not as a forced but a voluntary oppression, I have often been excited to think on the original caufe of that oppression, which is imposed on many in the world: and the latter part of the time wherein I laboured on our plantation, my heart, through the fresh visitations of heavenly love, being often tender; and my leifure time frequently fpent in reading the life and doctrines of our bleffed Redeemer, the account of the fufferings of martyrs, and the hiftory of the first rife of our fociety: a belief was gradually fettled in my mind, that if fuch who had great eftates, generally lived lived in that humility and plainnefs which belongs to a christian life, and laid much eafier rents and interefts on their lands and monies, and thus led the way to a right ufe of things, fo great a number of people might be employed in things useful, that labour both for men and other creatures would need to be no more than an agreeable employ; and divers branches of business, which ferve chiefly to pleafe the natural inclinations of our minds, and which, at prefent, feems neceffary to circulate that wealth which fome gather, might, in this way of pure wifdom, be difcontinued. And as I have thus confidered these things, a query, at times, hath arisen : Do I, in all my proceedings, keep to that use of things which is agreeable to universal righteoufnefs? And then there hath fome degree of fadnefs, at times, come over me; for that I accustomed myself to fome things, which occafioned more labour than I believe divine wifdom intends for us.

From my early acquaintance with truth, I have often felt an inward diftrefs, occafioned by the ftriving of a fpirit in me, againft the operation of the heavenly principle; and in this circumftance have been affected with a fenfe of my own wretchednefs, and in a mourning condition felt earneft longing for that divine help, which brings the foul into true liberty; and fometimes in this ftate, retiring into private places, the fpirit of fupplication hath been given me; and under a heavenly covering, have afked my gracious Father,

Father, to give me a heart in all things refigned to the direction of his wifdom, and in uttering language like this, the thoughts of my wearing hats and garments dyed with a dye hurtful to them, has made lafting imprefions on me.

In vifiting people of note in the fociety who had flaves, and labouring with them in brotherly love on that account, I have feen, and the fight has affected me, that a conformity to fome cuftoms, diftinguishable from pure wifdom, has entangled many: and the defire of gain to fupport thefe cuftoms, greatly oppofed the work of truth: and fometimes when the profpect of the work before me has been fuch, that in bowednefs of fpirit, I have been drawn into retired places, and befought the Lord with tears that he would take me wholly under his direction, and shew me the way in which I ought to walk; it hath revived with ftrength of conviction, that if I would be his faithful fervant, I must in all things attend to his wifdom, and be teachable; and fo ceafe from all cuftoms contrary thereto, however ufed amongst religious people.

As he is the perfection of power, of wifdom, and of goodnefs; fo I believe, he hath provided, that fo much labour fhall be neceffary for men's fupport, in this world, as would, being rightly divided, be a fuitable employment of their time; and that we cannot go into fuperfluities, or grafp after wealth in a way contrary to his wifdom, without having having connection with fome degree of oppreffion, and with that fpirit which leads to felf-exaltation and ftrife, and which frequently brings calamities on countries, by parties contending about their claims.

Being thus fully convinced, and feeling an increasing defire to live in the spirit of peace; being often forrowfully affected with the thinking on the unquiet fpirit in which wars are generally carried on, and with the miferies of many of my fellow-creatures engaged therein; fome fuddenly deftroyed; fome wounded, and after much pain remain cripples; fome deprived of all their outward fubftance, and reduced to want; and fome carried into captivity. Thinking often on thefe things, the use of hats and garments dyed with a dye hurtful to them, and wearing more cloaths in fummer than are ufeful, grew more uneafy to me; believing them to be cuftoms which have not their foundation in pure wildom. The apprehension of being fingular from my beloved friends, was a strait upon me; and thus I remained in the use of fome things contrary to my judgment.

On the thirty-first day of the fifth month, 1761, I was taken ill of a fever; and, after having it near a week, I was in great distress of body: and one day there was a cry raifed in me, that I might understand the cause why I was afflicted, and improve under it: and my conformity to some customs, which I believed were not right, were brought to my remembrance; and in the continuation of the exercife, I felt all the powers in me yield themfelves up into the hands of Him who gave me being; and was made thankful, that he had taken hold of me by his chaftifement: feeling the neceflity of further purifying, there was now no defire in me for health, until the defign of my correction was anfwered; and thus I lay in abafement and brokennefs of fpirit, and as I felt a finking down into a calm refignation, fo I felt, as in an inftant, an inward healing in my nature; and from that time forward I grew) better.

(Though I was thus fettled in mind in re-) lation to hurtful dyes, I felt eafy to wear my garments heretofore made; and fo continued about nine months. Then I thought of getting a hat the natural colour of the furr; but the apprehension of being looked upon as one affecting fingularity, felt uneafy to me : and here I had occafion to confider, that things, though fmall in themfelves, being clearly enjoined by divine authority, became great things to us; and I trufted that the Lord would fupport me in the trials that might attend fingularity, while that fingularity was only for his fake : on this account, I was under close exercise of mind in the time of our General fpring meeting 1762, greatly defiring to be rightly directed ; when being deeply bowed in fpirit before the Lord, I was made willing to fubmit to what I apprehended was required of me; and when I returned

(In attending meetings, this fingularity was a trial upon me, and more efpecially at this time, white hats being ufed by fome who were fond of following the changeable modes of drefs; and as fome friends, who knew not on what motives I wore it, carried fhy of me, I felt my way for a time fhut up in the exercife of the miniftry: and in this condition, my mind being turned toward my heavenly Father, with fervent cries that I might be preferved to walk before him in the meeknefs of wifdom, my heart was often tender in meetings; and I felt an inward confolation, which to me was very precious under thofe difficulties.)

(I had feveral dyed garments fit for ufe, which I believed it beft to wear, till I had occafion of new ones: and fome friends were apprehenfive, that my wearing fuch a hat favoured of an affected fingularity: and fuch who fpake with me in a friendly way, I generally informed in a few words, that I believed my wearing it, was not in my own will. I had, at times, been fenfible, that a fuperficial friendfhip had been dangerous to me; and many friends being now uneafy with me, I had an inclination to acquaint fome with the manner of my being led into thefe things; yet, upon a deeper thought, I was for a time moft eafy to omit it, believing the prefent difpenfation was profitable; and trufting, that if

if I kept my place, the Lord in his own time would open the hearts of friends toward me: fince which, I have had caufe to admire his goodnefs and loving-kindnefs, in leading about and inftructing, and opening and enlarging my heart in fome of our meetings.7

In the eleventh month of the year 1762, feeling an engagement of mind to vifit fome families in Mansfield : I joined my beloved friend Benjamin Jones, and we fpent a few days together in that fervice. In the fecond month 1763, I joined in company with Elizabeth Smith and Mary Noble, on a vifit to the families of friends at Ancocas; in both which vifits, through the baptizing power of truth, the fincere labourers were often comforted, and the hearts of friends opened. to receive us. And in the fourth month following, I accompanied fome friends in a vifit to the families of friends in Mount-Holly; in which my mind was often drawninto an inward awfulnefs, wherein ftrong defires were raifed for the everlafting welfare of my fellow-creatures; and, through the kindnefs of our heavenly Father, our hearts were, at times, enlarged, and friends invited in the flowings of divine love to attend to that which would fettle them on the fure foundation.

Having many years felt love in my heart toward the natives of this land, who dwell farback in the wildernefs, whole anceftors were the owners and poffeffors of the land where we dwell; and who, for a very fmall confi-deration, affigned their inheritance to us: and being at Philadelphia in the eighth month, 1761, on a vifit to fome friends who had flaves, I fell in company with fome of those natives who lived on the east branch of the river Sufquehannah, at an Indian town called Wehaloofing, two hundred miles from Philadelphia; and in conversation with them by an interpreter, as also by observations on their countenances and conduct, I believed fome of them were meafurably acquainted with that divine power which fubjects the rough and froward will of the creature: and, at times, I felt inward drawings toward a vifit to that place of which I told none except my dear wife, until it came to fome ripeness, and then in the winter, 1762, I laid it before friends at our monthly and quarterly, and afterwards at our General fpring meeting; and having the unity of friends, and being thoughtful about an Indian pilot. there came a man and three women from a little beyond that town to Philadelphia on businefs: and I being informed thereof by letter, met them in town in the fifth month, 1763; and after fome conversation, finding they were fober people, I, by the concurrence of friends in that place, agreed to join with them as companions in their return; and on the feventh day of the fixth month following, we appointed to meet at Samuel Foulk's, at Richland in Bucks county. Now as this visit felt weighty, and was performed at a time time when travelling appeared perilous, fo the difpenfations of Divine Providence, in preparing my mind for it, have been memorable; and I believe it good for me to give fome hints thereof.

After I had given up to go, the thoughts of the journey were often attended with un-ufual fadnefs; in which times, my heart was frequently turned to the Lord with inward breathings for his heavenly fupport, that I might not fail to follow him wherefoever he might lead me : and being at our youth's meeting at Chefterfield, about a week before the time I expected to fet off, was there led to fpeak on that prayer of our Redeemer to his Father: " I pray not that thou should ft " take them out of the world, but that thou " fhouldeft keep them from the evil." And in attending to the pure openings of truth, had to mention what He elsewhere faid to his Father; " I know that thou hearest me at all "times:" fo that, as fome of his followers kept their places, and as his prayer was granted, it followed neceffarily that they were kept from evil: and as fome of those met with great hardships and afflictions in this world, and at laft fuffered death by cruel men; it appears, that whatfoever befalls men while they live in pure obedience to God, as it certainly works for their good, fo it may not be confidered an evil as it relates to them. As I fpake on this fubject, my heart was much tendered, and great awfulnefs came over me; and then, on the first day L day of the next week, being at our own afternoon meeting, and my heart being enlarged in love, I was led to fpeak on the care and protection of the Lord over his people, and to make mention of that paffage where a band of Affyrians endeavouring to take captive the prophet were difappointed; and how the pfalmift faid, " the angel of the " Lord encampeth round about them that " fear him." And thus, in true love and tendernefs, I parted from friends, expecting the next morning to proceed on my journey; and being weary, went early to bed: and after I had been asleep a short time, I was awaked by a man calling at my door; and arifing, was invited to meet fome friends at a publick-houfe in our town, who came from Philadelphia fo late, that friends were generally gone to bed : thefe friends informed me, that an express arrived the last morning from Pittfburgh, and brought news that the Indians had taken a fort from the English westward, and flain and fcalped English people in divers places; fome near the faid Pittfburgh; and that fome elderly friends in Philadelphia, knowing the time of my expecting to fet off, had conferred together, and thought good to inform me of thefe things, before I left home, that I might confider them, and proceed as I believed beft; fo I, going again to bed, told not my wife till morning. My heart was turned to the Lord for his heavenly inftruction; and it was an humbling time to me, When I told my dear wife, fhe appeared to be deeply concerned about it; but in a few hours time, my mind became fettled in a belief, that it was my duty to proceed on my journey; and fhe bore it with a good degree of refignation. In this conflict of fpirit, there were great fearchings of heart, and ftrong cries to the Lord, that no motion might be in the leaft degree attended to, but that of the pure fpirit of truth.

The fubjects before-mentioned, on which I had fo lately fpoke in publick, were now very fresh before me; and I was brought inwardly to commit myfelf to the Lord, to be difpofed of as he faw beft. So I took leave of my family and neighbours, in much bowedness of spirit, and went to our monthly-meeting at Burlington; and after taking leave of friends there, I croffed the river, ac-companied by my friends Ifrael and John Pemberton; and parting the next morning with Ifrael, John bore me company to Samuel Foulk's; where I met the before-mentioned Indians, and we were glad to fee each other: here my friend Benjamin Parvin met me, and proposed joining as a companion, we having passed fome letters before on the fubject; and now on his account I had a fharp trial; for as the journey appeared perilous, I thought if he went chiefly to bear me company, and we fhould be taken cap-tive, my having been the means of draw-ing him into these difficulties, would add to my own afflictions : fo I told him my mind L 2 freely, freely, and let him know that I was refigned to go alone; but after all, if he really believed it to be his duty to go on, I believed his company would be very comfortable to me: it was indeed a time of deep exercife, and Benjamin appeared to be fo fastened to the vifit, that he could not be eafy to leave me; fo we went on, accompanied by our friends John Pemberton, and William Lightfoot of Pikeland, and lodged at Bethlehem; and there parting with John, William and we went forward on the ninth day of the fixth month, and got lodging on the floor of a houfe, about five miles from Fort-Allen; here we parted with William: and at this place we met with an Indian trader, lately come from Wioming; and in conversation with him, I perceived that many white people do often fell rum to the Indians, which, I believe, is a great evil; first, they being thereby deprived of the use of their reason, and their spirits violently agitated, quarrels often arife which end in mifchief; and the bitternefs and refentments occafioned hereby, are frequently of -long continuance : again, their fkins and furrs, gotten thro' much fatigue and hard trayels in hunting, with which they intended to buy cloathing, when they become in-toxicated, they often fell at a low rate for more rum; and afterward, when they fuffer for want of the necessaries of life, are angry with those who, for the fake of gain, took the advantage of their weaknefs: of this their chiefs have often complained, at their their treaties with the English. Where cunning people pass counterfeits, and impose that on others which is good for nothing, it is confidered as a wickednefs; but to fell that to people which we know does them harm, and which often works their ruin, for the fake of gain, manifests a hardened and corrupt heart; and is an evil, which de-mands the care of all true lovers of virtue to fupprefs : and while my mind, this evening, was thus employed, I alfo remembered, that the people on the frontiers, among whom this evil is too common, are often poor; who venture to the outfide of a colony, that they may live more independant on fuch who are wealthy, who often fet high rents on their land : being renewedly confirmed in a belief, that if all our inhabitants lived according to found wifdom, labouring to promote universal love and righ-teousness, and ceased from every inordinate defire after wealth, and from all cuftoms which are tinctured with luxury, the way would be eafy for our inhabitants, though much more numerous than at prefent, to live comfortably on honeft employments, without having that temptation they are often under of being drawn into fchemes to make fettlements on lands which have not been purchased of the Indians, or of applying to that wicked practice of felling rum to them.

On the tenth day of the month we fet out early in the morning, and croffed the weftern branch of Delaware, called the Great Lehie.

Lehie, near Fort-Allen; the water being high, we went over in a canoe: here we met an Indian, and had fome friendly converfation with him, and gave him fome bifcuit; and he having killed a deer, gave the Indians with us fome of it : then after travelling fome miles, we met feveral Indian men and women with a cow and horfe, and fome houfhold goods, who were lately come from their dwelling at Wioming, and going to fettle at another place; we made them fome fmall prefents; and fome of them un-derstanding English, I told them my motive in coming into their country; with which they appeared fatisfied : and one of our guides talking a while with an antient woman concerning us, the poor old woman came to my companion and me, and took her leave of us with an appearance of fincere affection.' So going on, we pitched our tent near the banks of the fame river, having laboured hard in croffing fome of those mountains called the Blue Ridge; and by the roughness of the stones, and the cavi-ties between them, and the steepness of the hills, it appeared dangerous : but we were preferved in fafety, through the kindnefs of Him whofe works in those mountainous deferts appeared awful; toward whom my heart was turned during this day's travel.

Near our tent, on the fides of large trees peeled for that purpofe, were various reprefentations of men going to, and returning from the wars, and of fome killed in battle. This

This being a path heretofore used by warriors; and as I walked about viewing those Indian histories, which were painted mostly in red but fome in black, and thinking on the innumerable afflictions which the proud, fierce spirit produceth in the world; thinking on the toils and fatigues of warriors, travelling over mountains and deferts; thinking on their miferies and diftreffes when wounded far from home by their enemies; and of their bruifes and great wearinefs in chafing one another over the rocks and mountains; and of their reftlefs, unquiet state of mind, who live in this spirit; and of the hatred which mutually grows up in the minds of the children of those nations engaged in war with each other: during these meditations, the defire to cherish the fpirit of love and peace amongst these people, arofe very fresh in me. This was the first night that we lodged in the woods; and being wet with travelling in the rain, the ground, our tent, and the bufhes which we purpofed to lay under our blankets alfo wet, all looked difcouraging; but I believed, that it was the Lord who had thus far brought me forward, and that he would difpose of me as he faw good, and therein I felt eafy: fo we kindled a fire, with our tent' open to it; and with fome bushes next the ground, and then our blankets, we made our bed; and lying down, got fome fleep: and in the morning, feeling a little unwell, I went

I went into the river; the water was cold, but foon after I felt fresh and well.

The eleventh day of the fixth month, the buffnes being wet, we tarried in our tent till about eight o'clock; when going on, croffed a high mountain fuppofed to be upward of four miles over; the fleepnefs on the north fide exceeding all the others: we alfo croffed two fwamps; and it raining near night, we pitched our tent and lodged.

About noon, on our way, we were overtaken by one of the moravian brethren, going to Wehaloofing, and an Indian man with him who could talk Englifh; and we being together while our horfes eat grafs, had fome friendly converfation; but they travelling fafter than we, foon left us. This moravian, I underftood, had fpent fome time this fpring at Wehaloofing; and was, by fome of the Indians, invited to come again.

The twelfth day of the fixth month, and first of the week, it being a rainy day, we continued in our tent; and here I was led to think on the nature of the exercise which hath attended me: Love was the first motion, and thence a concern arose to spend some time with the Indians, that I might feel and understand their life, and the spirit they live in, if haply I might receive some instruction from them, or they be in any degree helped forward by my following the leadings of truth amongst them: and as it pleased the Lord to make way for my going at a time when

when the troubles of war were increasing, and when, by reason of much wet weather, travelling was more difficult than usual at that feason, I looked upon it as a more favourable opportunity to feason my mind, and bring me into a nearer sympathy with them: and as mine eye was to the great Father of mercies, humbly defiring to learn what his will was concerning me, I was made quiet and content.

Our guide's horfe, though hoppled, went away in the night; and after finding our own, and fearching fome time for him, his footfteps were difcovered in the path going back again, whereupon my kind companion went off in the rain, and after about feven hours returned with him : and here we lodged again; tying up our horfes before we went to bed, and loofing them to feed about break of day.

On the thirteenth day of the fixth month, the fun appearing, we fet forward; and as I rode over the barren hills, my meditations were on the alterations of the circumftances of the natives of this land fince the coming in of the Englifh. The lands near the fea, are conveniently fituated for fifhing; the lands near the rivers, where the tides flow, and fome above, are in many places fertile, and not mountainous; while the running of the tides, makes paffing up and down eafy with any kind of traffick. Thofe natives have, in fome places, for trifling confiderations, fold their inheritance fo favourably fituated;

fituated; and in other places, been driven back by fuperior force: fo that, in many places, as their way of cloathing themfelves is now altered from what it was, and they, far remote from us, have to pafs over mountains, fwamps, and barren defarts, where travelling is very troublefome, in bringing their fkins and furrs to trade with us.

By the extending of English fettlements, and partly by English hunters, the wild beasts they chiefly depend on for a subsistance, are not so plenty as they were; and people too often, for the sake of gain, open a door for them to waste their skins and furrs, in purchasing a liquor which tends to the ruin of them and their families.

My own will and defires being now very much broken, and my heart, with much carneftnefs, turned to the Lord, to whom alone I looked for help in the dangers before me. I had a profpect of the English along the coaft, for upwards of nine hundred miles, where I have travelled; and the favourable fituation of the English, and the difficulties attending the natives in many places, and the negroes, were open before me; and a weighty and heavenly care came over my mind, and love filled my heart toward all mankind, in which I felt a ftrong engagement, that we might be obedient to the Lord while, in tender mercies, he is yet calling to us; and fo attend to pure univerfal righteoufnefs, as to give no just caufe of offence to the Gentiles, who do not profefs chriftianity, christianity, whether the blacks from Africa or the native inhabitants of this continent: and here I was led into a clofe, laborious enquiry, whether I, as an individual, kept clear from all things which tended to ftir up; or were connected with wars, either in this land or Africa; and my heart was deeply concerned, that in future I might in all things keep fleadily to the pure truth, and live and walk in the plainness and fimplicity of a fincere follower of Chrift. And in this lonely journey, I did, this day, greatly bewail the fpreading of a wrong fpirit, believing, that the profperous, convenient fituation of the English, requires a constant attention to divine love and wifdom to guide and fupport us in a way anfwerable to the will of that good, gracious, and almighty Being, who hath an equal regard to all mankind: and here, luxury and covetoufnefs, with the numerous oppreffions, and other evils attending them, appeared very afflicting to me; and I felt in that which is immutable, that the feeds of great calamity and defolation are fown and growing faft on this continent: nor have I words fufficient to fet forth that longing I then felt, that we, who are placed along the coaft, and have tafted the love and goodness of God, might arise in his ftrength; and, like faithful meffengers, labour to check the growth of thefe feeds, that they may not ripen to the ruin of our posterity.

We

We reached the Indian fettlement at Wioming : and here we were told, that an Indian runner had been at that place a day or two before us, and brought news of the Indians taking an Englifh fort weftward, and deftroying the people, and that they were endeavouring to take another; and alfo, that another Indian runner came there about the middle of the night before we got there, who came from a town about ten miles above Wehaloofing, and brought news, that fome Indian warriors, from diftant parts, came to that town with two Englifh fcalps; and told the people, that it was war with the Englifh.

Our guides took us to the houfe of a very antient man; and foon after we had put in our baggage, there came a man from another Indian house fome distance off; and I perceiving there was a man near the door, went out; and he having a tomahawk wrapped under his matchcoat out of fight, as I approached him, he took it in his hand; I, however, went forward, and fpeaking to him in a friendly way perceived he understood fome English: my companion then coming out, we had fome talk with him concerning the nature of our vifit in these parts; and then he going into the houfe with us, and talking with our guides, foon appeared friendly, and fat down and fmoaked his pipe. Tho' his taking his hatchet in his hand at the inftant I drew near to him, some out that whether guilder age had had a difagreeable appearance, I believe he had no other intent than to be in readinefs in cafe any violence was offered to him.

Hearing the news brought by thefe In-dian runners, and being told by the Indians where we lodged, that what Indians were about Wioming expected, in a few days, to move to fome larger towns, I thought that, to all outward appearance, it was dangerous travelling at this time; and was, after a hard day's journey, brought into a painful exercife at night, in which I had to trace back, and view over the fteps I had taken from my first moving in the visit; 'and tho' I had to bewail fome weakness which, at times, had attended me, yet I could not find that I had ever given way to a willful difobedience : and then as I believed I had, under a fenfe of duty, come thus far, I was now earnest in spirit beseeching the Lord to fhew me what I ought to do. In this great diftrefs I grew jealous of myfelf, lest the defire of reputation, as a man firmly fettled to perfevere through dangers, or the fear of difgrace arifing on my returning without performing the vi-fit, might have fome place in me: thus I lay, full of thoughts, great part of the night, while my beloved companion lay and flept by me; till the Lord, my gracious Father, who faw the conflicts of my foul, was pleafed to give quietnefs: then I was again ftrengthened to commit my life, and all things relating thereto, into his heavenly hands:

hands; and getting a little fleep toward day, when morning came we arofe.

On the fourteenth day of the fixth month, we fought out and vifited all the Indians hereabouts that we could meet with; they being chiefly in one place, about a mile from where we lodged, in all perhaps twenty. Here I expressed the care I had on my mind for their good; and told them, that true love had made me willing thus to leave my family to come and fee the Indians, and fpeak with them in their houfes. Some of them appeared kind and friendly. So we took our leave of thefe Indians: and went up the river Sufquehannah, about three miles, to the houfe of an Indian, called Jacob January, who had killed his hog; and the women were making ftore of bread, and preparing to move up the river. Here our pilots left their canoe when they came down in the fpring, which, lying dry, was leaky; fo that we, being detained fome hours, had a good deal of friendly conversation with the family; and eating dinner with them, we made them fome finall prefents. Then putting our baggage in the canoe, fome of them pushed flowly up the stream, and the reft of us rode our horfes; and fwimming them over a creek, called Lahawahamunk, we pitched our tent a little above it, being a fhower in the evening : and in a fenfe of God's goodness in helping me in my distress, fuftaining me under trials, and inclining my heart to truft in him, I lay down in an humble humble bowed frame of mind, and had a comfortable night's lodging.

On the fifteenth day of the fixth month, we proceeded forward till the afternoon; when a ftorm appearing, we met our canoe at an appointed place; and the rain continuing, we ftayed all night, which was fo heavy, that it beat through our tent, and wet us and our baggage.

On the fixteenth day, we found, on our way, abundance of trees blown down with the ftorm yefterday; and had occafion reverently to confider the kind dealings of the Lord, who provided a fafe place for us in a valley, while this ftorm continued. By the falling of abundance of trees acrofs our path, we were much hindered, and in fome fwamps our way was fo ftopped, that we got through with extream difficulty.

I had this day often to confider myfelf as a fojourner in this world; and a belief in the all-fufficiency of God to fupport his people in their pilgrimage felt comfortable to me; and I was industriously employed to get to a flate of perfect refignation.

We feldom faw our canoe but at appointed places, by reafon of the path going off from the river: and this afternoon, Job Chilaway, an Indian from Wehaloofing, who talks good Englifh, and is acquainted with feveral people in and about Philadelphia, met our people on the river; and underftanding where we expected to lodge, pufhed back about fix miles, and came to us after night; and

and in a while our own canoe came, it being hard work pufhing up ftream. Job told us, that an Indian came in hafte to their town yesterday, and told them, that three warriors, coming from fome diftance, lodged in a town above Wehaloofing a few nights past; and that these three men were going against the English at Juniata. Job was going down the river to the province-ftore at Shamokin. Though I was fo far favoured with health as to continue travelling, yet through the various difficulties in our journey, and the different way of living from what I had been ufed to, I grew fick: and the news of these warriors being on their march fo near us, and not knowing whe-ther we might not fall in with them, was a fresh trial of my faith; and tho', thro' the ftrength of divine love, I had feveral times been enabled to commit myfelf to the divine difpofal, I still found the want of my strength to be renewed, that I might perfevere therein; and my cries for help were put up to the Lord, who, in great mercy, gave me a refigned heart, in which I found quietnefs.

On the feventeenth day, parting from Job Chilaway, we went on, and reached Wehaloofing about the middle of the afternoon; and the first Indian that we faw, was a woman of a modest countenance, with a Bible, who first spake to our guide; and then, with a harmonious voice, expressed her gladness at teeing us, having before heard of our coming: then, by the direction of our guide, we fat down on a log; and he went to the town, to tell the people we were come. My companion and I fitting thus together, in a deep inward stillnefs, the poor woman came and fat near us; and great awfulnefs coming over us, we rejoiced in a fenfe of God's love manifested to our poor souls. After a while, we heard a conkfhell blow feveral times, and then came John Curtis, and another Indian man, who kindly invited us into a house near the town, where we found, I fuppofe, about fixty people fitting in filence; and after fitting a flort time, I flood up, and in fome tendernefs of fpirit acquainted them with the nature of my vifit, and that a concern for their good had made me willing to come thus far to fee them : all in a few fhort fentences, which fome of them understanding, interpreted to the others, and there appeared gladnefs amongft them. Then I shewed them my certificate, which was explained to them; and the moravian, who overtook us on the way, being now here, bade me welcome.

On the eighteenth day, we refted ourfelves this forenoon; and the Indians knowing that the moravian and I were of different religious focieties, and as fome of their people had encouraged him to come and ftay a while with them, were, I believe, concerned, that no jarring or difcord might be in their meetings: and they, I fuppofe, having conferred together, acquainted me, that the people, at my requeft, would, at any time, M come come together, and hold meetings; and alfo told me, that they expected the moravian would fpeak in their fettled meetings, which are commonly held morning and near evening. So I found liberty in my heart to fpeak to the moravian, and told him of the care I felt on my mind for the good of these people; and that I believed no ill effects would follow it, if I fometimes fpake in their meetings when love engaged me thereto, without calling them together at times when they did not meet of course : whereupon he expreffed his good-will toward my fpeaking at any time, all that I found in my heart to fay : fo near evening I was at their meeting, where the pure gofpel love was felt, to the tendering fome of our hearts; and the interpreters endeavouring to acquaint the people with what I faid, in thort fentences, found fome difficulty, as none of them were quite perfect in the English and Delaware tongues, fo they helped one another, and we laboured along, divine love attending: and afterwards feeling my mind covered with the fpirit of prayer, I told the interpreters that I found it in my heart to pray to God, and believed, if I prayed aright, he would hear me, and expressed my willingness for them to omit interpreting; fo our meeting ended with a degree of divine love: and before the people went out, I observed Papunchang (the man who had been zealous in labouring for a reformation in that town, being then very tender) fpoke to one of the interpreters :

interpreters : and I was afterwards told that he faid in fubftance as follows ; " I love to feel where words come from."

On the nineteenth day, and first of the week, this morning in the meeting the Indian who came with the moravian, being alfo a member of that fociety, prayed; and then the moravian fpake a fhort time to the people: and in the afternoon, they coming together, and my heart being filled with a heavenly care for their good, I fpake to them awhile by interpreters; but none of them being perfect in the work, and I feeling the current of love run ftrong, told the interpreters, that I believed fome of the people would understand me, and fo I proceeded : in which exercife, I believe the Holy Ghoft wrought on fome hearts to edification, where all the words were not understood. I looked upon it as a time of divine favour, and my heart was tendered and truly thankful before the Lord; and after I fat down, one of the interpreters feemed fpirited to give the Indians the fubftance of what I had faid.

Before our first meeting this morning, I was led to meditate on the manifold difficulties of these Indians, who, by the permission of the Six Nations, dwell in these parts; and a near sympathy with them was raised in me; and my heart being enlarged in the love of Christ, I thought that the affectionate care of a good man for his only brother in affliction, does not exceed what I then felt for that people.

I came

I came to this place through much trou-ble; and though, through the mercies of God, I believed, that if I died in the journey, it would be well with me; yet the thoughts of falling into the hands of Indian warriors, were, in times of weaknefs, afflict-ing to me; and being of a tender conftitu-tion of body, the thoughts of captivity amongst them were, at times, grievous; as fuppoling, that they being ftrong and hardy, might demand fervice of me beyond what I could well bear; but the Lord alone was my keeper; and I believed, if I went into captivity, it would be for fome good end; and thus, from time to time, my mind was centered in refignation, in which I always found quietnefs. And now, this day, though I had the fame dangerous wildernefs between me and home, I was inwardly joyful that the Lord had strengthened me to come on this visit, and manifested a fatherly care over me in my poor lowly condition, when in mine own eyes I appeared inferior to many amongst the Indians.

When the laft mentioned meeting was ended, it being night Papunehang went to bed; and one of the interpreters fitting by me, I obferved Papunehang fpoke with an harmonious voice, I fuppofe, a minute or two: and afking the interpreter, was told, that " he was expreffing his thankfulnefs to God for the favours he had received that day; and prayed that he would continue to favour him with that fame, which he had experienced experienced in that meeting." That though Papunehang had before agreed to receive the moravian, and join with them, he ftill appeared kind and loving to us.

On the twentieth day, I was at two meetings, and filent in them. The twenty-first day. This morning in meeting my heart was enlarged in pure love amongst them, and in short plain fentences expressed feveral things that rested upon me, which one of the interpreters gave the peo-ple pretty readily; after which the meeting ended in fupplication, and I had caufe humbly to acknowledge the loving-kindness of the Lord toward us; and then I believed that a door remained open for the faithful difciples of Jefus Chrift, to labour amongst these people.

I now feeling my mind at liberty to re-turn, took my leave of them in general, at the conclusion of what I faid in meeting; and fo we prepared to go homeward: but fome of their most active men told us, that when we were ready to move, the people would choofe to come and fhake hands with us; which those who usually came to meeting did: and from a fecret draught in my mind, I went amongst fome who did not use to go to meeting, and took my leave of them alfo: and the moravian and his Indian interpreter, appeared refpectful to us at parting. This town ftands on the bank of Sufquehannah, and confifts, I believe, of about forty houses, mostly compact together; some about about thirty feet long, and eighteen wide, fome bigger, fome lefs; mostly built of fplit plank, one end fet in the ground, and the other pinned to a plate, on which lay raf-ters, and covered with bark. I understand a great flood laft winter overflowed the chief part of the ground where the town ftands'; and fome were now about moving their houfes to higher ground.

We expected only two Indians to be our company; but when we were ready to go, we found many of them were going to Bethlehem with fkins and furrs, who chofe to go in company with us: fo they loaded two canoes, which they defired us to go in, telling us, that the waters were fo raifed with the rains, that the horfes fhould be taken by fuch who were better acquainted with the fording places: fo we, with feveral Indians, went in the canoes, and others went on horfes, there being feven befides ours. And we meeting with the horfemen once on the way by appointment, and then near night, a little below a branch called Tankhannah, we lodged there; and fome of the young men going out a little before dusk with their guns, brought in a deer.

On the twenty-fecond day, through diligence, we reached Wioming before night, and underftood the Indians were moftly gone from this place: here we went up a fmall creek into the woods with our canoes, and, pitching our tent, carried out our baggage; and before dark our horfes came to us. Tecn La.

On

On the twenty-third day in the morning their horfes were loaded, and we prepared our baggage and fo fet forward, being in all fourteen; and with diligent travelling were favoured to get near half way to Fort-Allen. The land on this road from Wioming to our frontier being moftly poor, and good grafs fcarce, they chofe a piece of low ground to lodge on, as the beft for grafing; and I having fweat much in travelling, and being weary flept found; I perceived in the night that I had taken cold, of which I was favoured to get better foon.

On the twenty-fourth day we paffed Fort-Allen, and lodged near it in the woods.

Having forded the wefterly branch of Delaware three times, and thereby had a florter way, and miffed going over the top of the blue mountains, called the Second Ridge. In the fecond time fording, where the river cuts thro' the mountain, the waters being rapid and pretty deep, and my companion's mare being a tall tractable animal, he fundry times drove her back thro' the river, and they loaded her with the burthens of fome finall horfes, which they thought not fufficient to come thro' with their loads.

The troubles weftward, and the difficulty for Indians to pafs thro' our frontier, I apprehend was one reafon why fo many came; as expecting that our being in company, would prevent the outfide inhabitants from being furprized.

Qn

On the twenty-fifth day we reached Bethlehem, taking care on the way to keep foremoft, and to acquaint people on and near the road who there Indians were: this we found very needful; for the frontier inhabitants were often alarmed at the report of English being killed by Indians weftward.

Amongft our company were fome who I did not remember to have feen at meeting, and fome of thefe at firft were very referved; but we being feveral days together, and behaving friendly toward them, and making them fuitable returns for the fervices they did us, they became more free and fociable.

On the twenty-fixth day and first of the week, having carefully endeavoured to fettle all affairs with the Indians relative to our journey; we took leave of them, and I thought they generally parted with us af-fectionately; fo we getting to Richland, had a very comfortable meeting amongst our friends: here I parted with my kind friend and companion Benjamin Parvin; and accompanied by my friend Samuel Foulk, we rode to John Cadwallader's, from whence I reached home the next day, where I found my family middling well; and they and my friends all along appeared glad to fee me return from a journey which they apprehended dangerous : but my mind, while I was out, had been to employed in ftriving for a perfect refignation, and I had fo often been confirmed in a belief, that whatever the Lord might be pleafed to allot for me, would work work for good: I was careful leaft I should admit any degree of felfifhnefs in being glad overmuch, and laboured to improve by those trials in fuch a manner as my gracious Father and protector intends for me. Between the English inhabitants and Wehaloofing, we had only a narrow path, which in many places is much grown up with bufhes, and interrupted by abundance of trees lying across it, these, together with the mountains, fwamps, and rough ftones, make it a difficult road to travel; and the more fo, for that rattlefnakes abound there, of which we killed four: that people who have never been in fuch places, have but an imperfect idea of them; but I was not only taught patience, but alfo made thankful to God, who thus led me about and instructed me, that I might have a quick and lively feeling of the afflictions of my fellow-creatures, whofe fituation in life is difficult.

OF JOHN WOOLMAN. 171 friends exercifing offices in civil government.

HE latter part of the fummer, 1763, there came a man to Mount-Holly, who had before published, by a printed advertisement, that at a certain publickhouse, he would shew many wonderful operations, which he therein enumerated.

This man, at the time appointed, did, by flight of hand, fundry things; which, to those gathered, appeared strange. The next day, I hearing of it, and understanding that the flew was to be continued the next night, and the people to mect about fun-fet, felt an exercife on that account: fo I went to the publick-house in the evening, and told the man of the house that I had an inclination to fpend a part of the evening there; with which he fignified that he was content. Then fitting down by the door, I fpake to the people as they came together, concerning this fhew; and more coming and fitting down with us, the feats at the door were moftly filled;' and I had conversation with them in the fear of the Lord, and laboured to convince them that thus affembling to fee those tricks or flights of hands, and bestowing their money to fupport men who in that capacity were of no use in the world, was contrary to the nature of the chriftian religion.

the reafonablenefs of their proceedings herein; but after confidering fome texts of fcripture, and calmly debating the matter, he gave up the point. So having fpent about an hour amongft them, and feeling my mind eafy, I departed.

At our yearly-meeting at Philadelphia, on the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, 1764, John Smith of Marlborough, aged upwards of eighty years, a faithful minister, tho' not eloquent, stood up in our meeting of ministers and elders, and appearing to be under a great exercife of fpirit, informed friends in fubstance as follows : to wit, " That he had been a member of the fociety upward of fixty years, and well remembered that in those early times friends were a plain lowly-minded people; and that there was much tenderness and contrition in their meetings.—That at twenty years from that time, the fociety increasing in wealth, and in fome degree conforming to the fashions of the world, true humility was lefs apparent, and their meetings in general not fo lively and edifying-That at the end of forty years, many of them were grown very rich; that wearing of fine coftly garments, and using of filver (and other) watches, became customary with them, their fons, and their daughters, and many of the fociety made a fpacious appearance in the world; which marks of outward wealth and greatnefs, appeared on fome in our meetings of ministers and elders; and as these things became more prevalent, fo the the powerful overfhadowings of the Holy Ghoft were lefs manifeft in the Society— That there had been a continued increafe of thefe ways of life even until now; and that the weaknefs which hath now overfpread the fociety, and the barrennefs manifeft amongft us, is matter of much forrow." He then mentioned the uncertainty of his attending thefe meetings in future, expecting his diffolution was now near; and having tenderly expreffed his concern for us, fignified that he had feen in the true light that the Lord would bring back his people from thefe things into which they were thus degenerated, but that his faithful fervants muft firft go thro' great and heavy exercifes therein.

On the twenty-ninth day, the committee appointed by the yearly-meeting to vifit the quarterly and monthly meetings, now gave an account in writing of their proceedings in that fervice; in which they fignified, that in the courfe of it, they had been apprehenfive that fome perfons holding of-. fices in government, inconfistent with our principles; and others who kept flaves, remaining active members in our meetings of difcipline, had been one means of weaknefs more and more prevailing in the management thereof in fome places. After this report was read, an exercife revived on my mind, which, at times, had attended me feveral years, and inward cries to the Lord were raifed in me, that the fear of man might might not prevent me from doing what he required of me; and ftanding up, I fpake in fubstance as follows: " I have felt a tendernefs in my mind toward perfons, in two circumftances mentioned in that report; that is, toward fuch active members who keep flaves, and fuch who hold offices in civil government; and have defired, that friends in all their conduct may be kindly affectioned one toward another. Many friends, who keep flaves, are under fome exercife on that account; and, at times, think about trying them with freedom; but find many things in their way: and the way of living, and annual expences of fome of them are fuch, that it feems impracticable for them to fet their flaves free, without changing their own way of life. It has been my lot to be often abroad; and I have obferved in fome places, at quarterly and yearly meetings, and at fome houfes where travelling friends and their horfes are often entertained, that the yearly expence of individuals therein is very confiderable : and friends in fome places crouding much on perfons in these circumstances for entertainment, hath often refted as a burthen on my mind for fome years paft; and I now exprefs it in the fear of the Lord, greatly defiring that friends now prefent may duly confider it."

In the fall of this year, having hired a man to work, I perceived in conversation that he had been a foldier in the late war on this this continent; and in the evening, giving a narrative of his captivity amongst the Indians, he informed me that he faw two of his fellow captives tortured to death in a very cruel manner.

This relation affected me with fadnefs, under which I went to bed; and the next morning, foon after I awoke, a frefh and living fenfe of divine love was fpread over my mind; in which I had a renewed profpect of the nature of that wifdom from above, which leads to a right ufe of all gifts, both fpiritual and temporal, and gives content therein: under a feeling thereof, I wrote as follows:

"Hath He, who gave me a being attended with many wants unknown to brutecreatures, given me a capacity fuperior to theirs? and fhewn me, that a moderate application to bufinefs is proper to my prefent condition; and that this, attended with his bleffing, may fupply all outward wants, while they remain within the bounds he hath fixed; and no imaginary wants proceeding from an evil fpirit, have any place in me? Attend then, O my foul! to this pure wifdom, as thy fure conductor thro' the manifold dangers in this world!"

"Doth pride lead to vanity ? Doth vanity form imaginary wants? Do thefe wants prompt men to exert their power in requiring that of others, which themfelves would rather be excufed from, were the fame required of them?"

" Do

"Do those proceedings beget hard thoughts? Do hard thoughts, when ripe, become malice? Does malice, when ripe, become revengeful; and in the end inflict terrible pains on their fellow-creatures, and fpread defolations in the world?"

"Doth mankind, walking in uprightnefs, delight in each other's happinefs? And do these creatures, capable of this attainment by giving way to an evil spirit, employ their wit and strength to afflict and destroy one another?"

"Remember then, O my foul! the quietude of those in whom Christ governs, and in all thy proceedings feel after it!"

"Doth he condefcend to blefs thee with his prefence? To move and influence to action? To dwell in thee, and walk in thee? Remember then thy flation, as a being facred to God; accept of the ftrength freely offered thee; and take heed that no weaknefs, in conforming to expensive, unwife, and hard-hearted cuftoms, gendering to difcord and ftrife, be given way to. Doth he claim my body as his temple? And gracioufly grant that I may be facred to him. Oh! that I may prize this favour; and that my whole life may be conformable to this character!"

"Remember, O my foul! that the prince of peace is thy Lord: that he communicates his unmixed wifdom to his family; that they living in perfect fimplicity, may give no no just cause of offence to any creature, but may walk as he walked!"

Having felt an opennels in my heart toward vifiting families in our own meeting, and efpecially in the town of Mount-Holly, the place of my abode, I mentioned it in our monthly-meeting the fore-part of the winter 1764; which being agreed to, and feveral friends of our meeting being united in the exercife; we proceeded therein; and through divine favour were helped in the work, fo that it appeared to me as a frefh reviving of godly care amongft friends : and the latter part of the fame winter, I joined my friend William Jones, in a vifit to friends families in Mansfield; in which labour, I had caufe to admire the goodnels of the Lord toward us.

Having felt my mind drawn toward a vifit to friends along the fea-coaft from Cape May to near Squan; and alfo to vifit fome people in those parts, amongst whom there is no fettled worship; I joined, with my beloved friend Benjamin Jones, in a visit there, having friends unity therein: and fetting off the twenty-fourth day of the tenth month, 1765, we had a prosperous and very fatisfactory journey; feeling, at times, thro' the goodness of the heavenly Shepherd, the gofpel to flow freely toward a poor people scattered in those places: and soon after our return, I joined my friends John Sleeper and Elizabeth Smith, in visiting friends families at Burlington, there being at this time about fifty families of our fociety in that city; and we had caufe humbly to adore our heavenly Father, who baptized us into a feeling of the ftate of the people, and ftrengthened us to labour in true gofpel love amongst them.

An exercife having, at times, for feveral years, attended me, in regard to paying a religious vifit to friends on the Eaftern Shore of Maryland : fuch was the nature of this exercife, that I believed the Lord moved me to travel on foot amongft them, that by fo travelling I might have a more lively feeling of the condition of the oppreffed flaves, fet an example of lowlinefs before the eyes of their mafters, and be more out of the way of temptation to unprofitable converfe.

The time now drawing near in which I believed it my duty to lay my concern before our monthly meeting, I perceived in converfation with my beloved friend John Sleeper, that he was under a concern to ravel the fame way, and alfo to travel on foot in the form of a fervant amongft them, as he expreft it. This he told me before he knew aught of my exercife.

We being thus drawn the fame way, laid our exercife and the nature of it before friends; and obtaining certificates, we fet off the fixth day of the fifth month, 1766; and were at meetings with friends at Wilmington, Duck-Creek, Little-Creek and Motherkill :

therkill; my heart being fundry times tendered under the divine influence, and enlarged in love toward the people amongft whom we travelled.

From Motherkill, we croffed the country about thirty-five miles to friends at Tuckahoe in Maryland, and had a meeting there and at Marfhy-Creek.

At thefe, our three laft meetings, were a confiderable number of people, followers of one Jofeph Nichols, a preacher; who, I underftand, is not in outward fellowfhip with any religious fociety of people, but profeffeth nearly the fame principles as our fociety doth, and often travels up and down appointing meetings, to which many people come. I heard fome friends fpeaking of fome of their neighbours, who had been irreligious people, that were now his followers, and were become fober well-behaved men and women.

Some irregularities, I hear, have been amongft the people at feveral of his meetings; but from the whole of what I have perceived, I believe the man and fome of his followers, are honeftly difpofed, but that fkilful fathers are wanting among them: from hence we went to Choptank and Third Haven; and thence to Queen Ann's. The weather having fome days paft been hot and dry, and we to attend meetings purfuant to appointment, having travelled pretty fteadily, and had hard labour in meetings, I grew N 2 weakly, weakly; at which I was for a time difcouraged; but looking over our journey, and thinking how the Lord had fupported our minds and bodies, fo that we got forward much fafter than I expected before we came out, I now faw that I had been in danger of too ftrongly defiring to get foon through the journey, and that this bodily weaknefs now attending me was a kindnefs to me; and then, in contrition of fpirit, I became very thankful to my gracious Father, for this manifeftation of his love; and in humble fubmiffion to his will, my truft was renewed in him.

VAMIOUW MILDI TO

On this part of our journey, I had many thoughts on the different circumftances of friends who inhabit Pennfylvania and Jerfey, from thofe who dwell in Maryland, Virginia, and Carolina. Pennfylvania and New-Jerfey were fettled by many friends, who were convinced of our principles in England in times of fufferings, and coming over bought lands of the natives, and applied themfelves to hufbandry in a peaceable way; and many of their children were taught to labour for their living.

Few friends, I believe, came from Engoland to fettle in any of thefe fouthern provinces; but by the faithful labours of travelling friends in early times, there was confiderable convincements amongst the inhabitants of thefe parts. Here I remembered my reading of the warlike difposition of many of the first fettlers in those provinces, and of their numerous engagements with the natives, in which much blood was fhed, even in the infancy of those colonies. These people, inhabiting those places, being grounded in cuftoms contrary to the pure truth, when fome of them were affected with the powerful preaching of the Word of Life, and joined in fellowship with our fociety, they had a great work to go through. It is obfervable in the Hiftory of the Reformation from Popery, that it had a gradual progrefs from age to age: the uprightness of the first reformers, in attending to the light and understanding given them, opened the way for fincere-hearted people to proceed further afterward; and thus each one truly fearing God, and labouring in those works of righteoufnefs appointed for them in their day, findeth acceptance with him: though, thro' the darknefs of the times, and the corruption of manners and cuftoms, fome upright men may have had little more for their day's work than to attend to the righteous principle in their minds, as it related to their own conduct in life, without pointing out to others the whole extent of that, which the fame principle would lead fucceeding ages into. Thus for inftance; amongst an imperious warlike people, fupported by oppreffed flaves, fome of these masters, I suppose, are awakened to feel and fee their error; and, thro' fincere repentance, ceafe from oppreffion.

fion, and become like fathers to their fervants; fhewing, by their example, a pattern of humility in living, and moderation in governing, for the inftruction and admonition of their opprefling neighbours; thofe without carrying the reformation further, I believe have found acceptance with the Lord. Such was the beginning; and thofe who fucceeded them, and have faithfully attended to the nature and fpirit of the reformation, have feen the neceffity of proceeding forward; and not only to inftruct others, by their example, in governing well, but alfo to ufe means to prevent their fueceffors from having fo much power to opprefs others,

Here I was renewedly confirmed in my mind, that the Lord (whofe tender mercies are over all his works, and whofe ear is open to the cries and groans of the opprefied) is gracioully moving on the hearts of people, to draw them off from the defire of wealth, and bring them into fuch an humble, lowly way of living, that they may fee their way clearly, to repair to the flandard of true righteoufnefs; and not only break the yoke of opprefion, but know him to be their ftrength and fupport in a time of outward affliction.

We paffing on croffed Chefter-River; and had a meeting there, and at Cecil and Saffafras. Thro' my bodily weaknefs, joined with a heavy exercise of mind, it was to me an humbling humbling difpenfation, and I had a very lively feeling of the ftate of the oppreffed; yet I often thought, that what I fuffered was little, compared with the fufferings of the bleffed Jefus, and many of his faithful followers; and may fay with thankfulnefs, I was made content. From Saffafras we went pretty directly

From Saffafras we went pretty directly home, where we found our families well; and for feveral weeks after our return, I had often to look over our journey: and tho' to me it appeared as a finall fervice, and that fome faithful meffengers will yet have more bitter cups to drink in thofe fouthern provinces for Chrift's fake than we had; yet I found peace in that I had been helped to walk in fincerity, according to the underftanding and ftrength given me.

On the thirteenth day of the eleventh month, 1766, with the unity of friends at our monthly-meeting, in company with my beloved friend Benjamin Jones, I fat out on a vifit to friends in the upper part of this province, having had drawings of love in my heart that way a confiderable time: we travelled as far as Hardwick; and I had inward peace in my labours of love amongft them.

Thro' the humbling difpenfations of Divine Providence, my mind hath been brought into a further feeling of the difficulties of friends and their fervants fouth-weftward: and being often engaged in fpirit on their account account, I believed it my duty to walk into fome parts of the weftern fhore of Maryland, on a religious vifit: and having obtained a certificate from friends of our monthly-meeting, I took my leave of my family under the heart-tendering operation of truth; and on the twentieth day of the fourth month, 1767, I rode to the ferry opposite to Philadelphia, and from thence walked to William Horne's at Derby that evening; and next day purfued my journey alone, and reached Concord week-day meeting.

Difcouragements and a weight of diffrefs had, at times, attended me in this lonefome walk; thro' which afflictions, I was mercifully preferved : and now fitting down with friends, my mind was turned toward the Lord, to wait for his holy leadings; who, in infinite love, was pleafed to foften my heart into humble contrition, and did renewedly ftrengthen me to go forward; that to me it was a time of heavenly refrefhment in a filent meeting.

The next day I came to New-Garden week-day meeting, in which I fat with bowednefs of fpirit; and being baptized into a feeling of the flate of fome prefent, the Lord gave us a heart-tendering feafon; to his name be the praife.

I paffed on, and was at Nottingham monthly-meeting; and at a meeting at Little Britain on first-day: and in the afternoon several friends came to the house where I lodged, lodged, and we had a little afternoon-meeting; and thro' the humbling power of truth, I had to admire the loving-kindness of the Lord manifested to us.

On the twenty-fixth day, I croffed Sufquehannah; and coming amongft people in outward eafe and greatnefs, chiefly on the labour of flaves, my heart was much affectcd; and in awful retirednefs, my mind was gathered inward to the Lord, being humbly engaged that in true refignation I might receive inftruction from him, refpecting my duty amongft this people.

Tho' travelling on foot was wearifome to my body; yet thus travelling, was agreeable to the ftate of my mind.

I went gently on, being weakly; and was covered with forrow and heavinefs, on account of the fpreading prevailing fpirit of this world, introducing cuftoms grievous and oppreflive on one hand, and cherishing pride and wantonnefs on the other. In this lonely walk, and state of abafement and humiliation, the state of the church in these parts was opened before me; and I may truly fay with the prophet, "I was bowed down at "the hearing of it; I was difinayed at the feeing of it." Under this exercife, I attended the quarterly-meeting at Gunpowder; and, in bowednefs of fpirit, I had to open, with much plainnefs, what I felt refpecting friends living in fullnefs, on the labours of the poor oppreffed negroes; and that that promife of the Moft High was now revived : "" I will gather all nations and " tongues; and they shall come and fee my "glory."-Here the fufferings of Chrift, and his tafting death for every man, and the travels, fufferings, and martyrdoms of the apoftles, and primitive christians, inclabouring for the conversion of the gentiles, was livingly revived in me; and according to the measure of strength afforded, I laboured in fome tenderness of spirit, being deeply affected amongst them : and thus the difference between the prefent treatment which thefe gentiles the negroes receive at our hands, and the labours of the primitive christians for the conversion of the gentiles; was preffed home, and the power of truth came over us; under a feeling of which, my mind was united to a tender-hearted people in those parts; and the meeting con-cluded in a fense of God's goodness toward his humble dependant children.

The next day was a general meeting for worfhip, much crouded; in which I was deeply engaged in inward cries to the Lord for help, that I might ftand wholly refigned, and move only as he might be pleafed to lead me: and I was mercifully helped to labour honeftly and fervently amongft them, in which I found inward peace; and the fincere were comforted.

From hence I turned toward Pipe-Creek, and paffed on to the Red-Lands; and had feveral feveral meetings amongh friends in those parts. My heart was often tenderly affected, under a fenfe of the Lord's goodnefs, in fanctifying my troubles and exercises, turning them to my comfort, and, I believe, to the benefit of many others; for, I may fay with thankfulnefs, that in this vifit, it appeared like a fresh tendering visitation in most places.

I paffed on to the western quarterly-meeting in Pennfylvania; during the feveral days of this meeting, I was mercifully preferved. in an inward feeling after the mind of truth, and my publick labours tended to my humiliation, with which I was content : and after the quarterly-meeting of worship ended, I felt drawings to go to the women's meeting of bufinefs; which was very full: and here the humility of Jefus Chrift, as a pat-tern for us to walk by, was livingly opened before me; and in treating on it, my heart was enlarged; and it was a baptizing time. From hence I went on; and was at meetings at Concord, Middletown, Providence, and Haddonfield, and fo home; where L found my family well. A fenfe of the Lord's merciful prefervation in this my journey, excites reverent thankfulnefs to him.

On the fecond day of the ninth month, 1767, with the unity of friends, I fet off on a vifit to friends in the upper part of Berks and Philadelphia counties; was at eleven meetings in about two weeks; and have have renewed caufe to bow in reverence before the Lord, who, by the powerful extendings of his humbling goodnefs, opened my way amongft friends, and made the meetings (I truft) profitable to us. And the winter following, I joined friends on a vifit to friends families, in fome part of our meeting; in which exercife, the pure influence of divine love, made our vifits reviving.

. On the fifth day of the fifth month, 1768, I left home, under the humbling hand of the Lord, having obtained a certificate, in order to vifit fome meetings in Maryland; and to proceed without a horfe looked cleareft to me. I was at the quarterly-meetings at Philadelphia and Concord; and then went on to Chefter river; and croffing the Bay with friends, was at the yearly-meeting at West-River : thence back to Chefter-River ; and taking a few meetings in my way, proceeded home. It was a journey of much inward waiting; and as my eye was to the Lord, way was, feveral times, opened to my humbling admiration, when things had appeared very difficult. Ede Tites

In my return, I felt a relief of mind, very comfortable to me; having, thro' divine help, laboured in much plainnefs, both with friends felected, and in the more publick meetings: fo that (I truft) the pure witnefs, in many minds, was reached.

The eleventh day of the fixth month, 1769. Sundry cafes have happened of late years,

JHE LIFE AND TRAVELS

years, within the limits of our monthlymeeting, refpecting that of exercifing pure righteoufnefs toward the negroes; in which I have lived under a labour of heart, that equity might be fleadily kept to. On this account, I have had fome clofe exercifes amongft friends; in which, I may thankfully fay, I find peace: and as my meditations have been on univerfal love, my own conduct in time paft, became of late very grievous to me.

As perfons fetting negroes free in our province, are bound by law to maintain them, in cafe they have need of relief; fome who fcrupled keeping flaves for term of life, in the time of my youth, were wont to detain their young negroes in their fervice till thirty years of age, without wages, on that account: and with this cuftom I fo far agreed, that I, being joined to another friend, in executing the will of a deceafed friend, once fold a negro lad till he might attain the age of thirty years, and applied the money to the ufe of the eftate.

With abafement of heart, I may now fay, that fometimes, as I have fet in a meeting, with my heart exercifed toward that awful Being, who refpecteth not perfons nor colours, and have looked upon this lad, I have felt that all was not clear in my mind refpecting him : and as I have attended to this exercife, and fervently fought the Lord, it hath appeared to me, that I fhould make fome fome restitution, but in what way I faw not till lately; when being under fome concern. that I may be refigned to go on a vifit to fome part of the Weft-Indies; and was under clofe engagement of fpirit, feeking to the Lord for counfel herein : that of my joining in the fale aforefaid, came heavily upon me; and my mind, for a time, was covered with darknefs and forrow; and under this fore affliction, my heart was foftened to receive inftruction : and here I first faw, that as I had been one of the two executors, who had fold this lad nine years longer than is common for our own children to ferve, fo I should now offer a part of my fubstance to redeem the last half of that nine years; but as the time was not yet come, I executed a bond, binding me, and my executors, to pay to the man he was fold to, what to candid men might appear equitable, for the last four years and a half of his time, in case the faid youth should be living, and in a condition likely to provide comfortably for himfelf.

The ninth day of the tenth month, 1769. My heart hath often been deeply afflicted under a feeling I have had, that the ftandard of pure righteoufnefs, is not lifted up to the people by us, as a fociety, in that clearnefs which it might have been, had we been fo faithful to the teachings of Chrift, as we ought to have been : and as my mind hath been inward to the Lord, the purity of Chrift's

Chrift's government hath been opened in my understanding; and under this exercife, that of friends being active in civil fociety, in putting laws in force which are not agreeable to the purity of righteoufnefs, hath, for feveral years, been an increasing burthen upon me; having felt, in the openings of univerfal love, that where a people convinced of the truth of the inward teachings of Chrift, are active in putting laws in execution, which are not confistent with pure wifdom, it hath a neceffary tendency to bring dimnefs over their minds : and as my heart hath been thus exercifed, and a tender fympathy in me toward my fellow members. I have, within a few months paft, in feveral meetings for discipline, expressed my concern on this fubject. party to the man of we fill do what to can-

THE twelfth day of the third month, having, for fome years paft, dieted myfelf on account of a lump gathering on my nofe; under this diet, I grew weak in body, and not of ability to travel by land as heretofore: I was, at times, favoured to look with awfulnefs toward the Lord, before whom are all my ways, who alone hath the power of life and death; and to feel thankfulnefs raifed in me, for this his fatherly chaftifement, believing, if I was truly humbled under der it, all would work for good. While I was under this bodily weaknefs, my mind being, at times, exercifed for my fellow-creatures in the Weft-Indies, I grew jealous over myfelf, left the difagreeablenefs of the profpect fhould hinder me from obediently attending thereto: for tho' I knew not that the Lord required me to go there; yet I believed, that refignation was now called for in that refpect : and feeling a danger of not being wholly devoted to him, I was frequently engaged to watch unto prayer, that I might be preferved; and upwards of a year having paffed, I walked one day in a foliry wood, my mind being covered with awfulnefs, cries were raifed in me to my merciful Father, that he would gracioufly keep me in faithfulness; and it then settled on my mind as a duty, to open my condition to friends at 'our monthly-meeting; which I did foon after, as follows:

"An exercife hath attended me for foine time paft, and of late been more weighty upon me; under which, I believe it is required of me to be refigned to go on a vifit to fome part of the Weft-Indies:" and in the quarterly and general fpring meeting, I found no clearnefs to exprefs any thing further, than that I believed refignation herein was required of me; and having obtained certificates from all faid meetings, I felt like a fojourner at my outward habitation, kept free from worldly encumbrances, and was O often often bowed in fpinit before the Lord, with inward breathings to him, that I might be rightly directed. And I may here note, that what I have before related of my being, when young, joined as an executor with another friend, in executing the will of the deceafed, our having fold a negro lad till he might attain the age of thirty years, was now the occafion of great forrow to me : and after having fettled matters relating to this youth, I provided a fea-ftore and bed, and things for the voyage; and hearing of a veffel likely to fail from Philadelphia for Barbadoes, I fpake with one of the owners at Burlington, and foon after went to Philadelphia on purpose to speak with him again: at which time he told me, there was a friend in town who was part owner of the faid veffel; but I felt no inclination to fpeak with him, but returned home: and a while after, I took leave of my family; and going to Philadelphia, had fome weighty conversation with the first-mentioned owner, and shewed him a writing, as follows :

"On the twenty-fifth day of the eleventh month, 1769, as an exercife, with refpect to a vifit to Barbadoes, hath been weighty on my mind, I may express fome of the tryals which have attended me; under these tryals I have, at times, rejoiced, in that I have felt my own felf-will subjected."

" I once, some years ago, retailed rum, sugar, and molasses, the fruits of the labour.

of flaves; but then, had not much concern about them, fave only that the rum might be used in moderation; nor was this concern fo weightily attended to, as I now believe it ought to have been: but of late years being further informed, refpecting the oppretfions too generally exercifed in these islands, and thinking often on the degrees that are in connections of interest and fellowship with the works of darknefs, Ephe. v. 11. And feeling an increasing concern to be wholly given up to the leadings of the Holy Spirit, it hath appeared, that the fmall gain I got by this branch of trade, should be applied in promoting righteoufnefs on the earth; and were the first motion toward a visit to Barbadoes: I believed the outward fubftance I poffes fhould be applied in paying my paf-fage, if I go, and providing things in a low-ly way for my fubfistance; but when the time drew near, in which, I believed, it required of me to be in readinefs, a difficulty arofe, which hath been a continued tryal for fome months paft; under which, I have, with abasement of mind, from day to day, fought the Lord for instruction; and often had a feeling of the condition of one formerly, who bewailed himfelf, for that the Lord hid his face from him.-During thefe exercifes, my heart hath been often contrite; and I have had a tender feeling of the temptations of my fellow-creatures, labouring under those expensive customs distinguishable Q 2 from from the fimplicity that there is in Chrift, zCor. ii. 3. and fometimes in the renewings of gofpel love, have been helped to minister to others."

"That which hath fo clofely engaged my mind, in feeking to the Lord for inftruction is, whether, after fo full information of the opprefilient the flaves in the Weft-Indies lie under, who raife the Weft-India produce, as I had in reading a caution and warning to Great-Britain and her colonies, wrote by Anthony Benezet) it is right for me to take a paffage in a veffel, employed in the Weft-India trade?"

" To trade freely with oppreffors, and without labouring to diffuade from fuch unkind treatment, seek for gain by such traffick, tends, I believe, to make them more eafy, refpecting their conduct, than they would be, if the caufe of universal righteousness was humbly and firmly attended to, by those in general with whom they have commerce; and that complaint of the Lord by his prophet, " They have ftrengthened the hands " of the wicked," hath very often revived in my mind; and I may here add fome circumftances preceding any profpect of a vifit there : the cafe of David hath often been before me of late years : he longed for fome water in a well beyond an army of Philiftines, at war with Ifrael; and fome of his men, to pleafe him, ventured their lives in passing thro' this army, and brought that 66 Tr. water.

" It doth not appear that the Ifraelites were then scarce of water, but rather, that David gave way to delicacy of tafte; but having thought on the danger thefe men were exposed to, he confidered this water as their blood, and his heart finote him that he could not drink it, but poured it out to the Lord. And the oppression of the flaves, which I have feen in feveral journies fouthward, on this continent, and the report of their treat-ment in the West-Indies hath deeply affected me; and a care to live in the fpirit of peace, and minister just cause of offence to none of my fellow-creatures, hath, from time to time, livingly revived on my mind ; and under this exercife, I, for fome years paft, declined to gratify my palate with those fugars."

"I do not cenfure my brethren in thefe things; but believe the Father of mercies, to whom all mankind by creation are equally related, hath heard the groans of thefe opprefied people; and is preparing foon to have a tender feeling of their condition: and the trading in, or frequent ufe of, any produce known to be raifed by the labours of thofe who are under fuch lamentable oppreffion, hath appeared to be a fubject which may yet more require the ferious confideration of the humble followers of Chrift, the prince of peace."

"After long and mournful exercife, I am now free to mention how things have opened ed in my mind, with defires that if it may pleafe the Lord, to further open his will to any of his children in this matter, they may faithfully follow him in fuch further manifeftation."

"The number of those who decline the use of the West-India produce, on account of the hard usage of the flaves who raise it, appears small, even amongst people truly pious; and the labours in christian love, on that subject, of those who do, not very extensive."

"Were the trade from this continent to the Weft-Indies to be quite ftopped at once, I believe many there would fuffer for want of bread."

"Did we on this continent, and the inhabitants of the West-Indies, generally dwell in pure righteoufners, I believe a fmall trade between us might be right: that under these confiderations, when the thoughts of wholly declining the use of trading vesses, and of trying to hire a vessel to go under ballast have arose in my mind, I have believed that the labours in gospel love, yet bestowed in the cause of universal righteousners, are not arrived to that height."

"If the trade to the Weft-Indies were no more than was confiftent with pure wifdom," I believe the paffage-money would, for good reafons, be higher than it is now; and here, under deep exercife of mind, I have believed, that I fhould not take the advantage of this great trade, and fmall paffage-money; but

OF JOHN WOOLMAN. 199 as a testimony in favour of less trading, should pay more than is common for others to pay, if I go at this time."

The first-mentioned owner having read the paper, expressed a willingness to go with me to the other owner; and we going, the faid other owner read over the paper, and we had some folid conversation; under which, I felt my foul bowed in reverence before the Most-High: and, at length, one of them asked me, if I would go and see the vessel? but I had not clearness in my mind to go; but went to my lodgings, and retired in private. I was now under great exercise of mind;

I was now under great exercise of mind; and my tears were poured out before the Lord, with inward cries, that he would gracioufly help me under these trials.

cioufly help me under thefe trials. In this cafe, I believe my mind was refigned, but did not feel clearnefs to procced; and my own weaknefs, and the neceffity of divine, inftruction, was imprefied upon me.

I was, for a time, as one who knew not what to do, and was tolled as in a tempeft; under which affliction, the doctrine of Chrift "Take no thought for the morrow," arofe livingly before me. I remembered it was fome days before they expected the veifel to fail, and was favoured to get into a good degree of ftillnefs; and having been near two days in town, I believe my obedience to my heavenly Father confifted in returning homehomeward; and then I went over amongh friends on the Jerfey fhore, and tarried till the morning on which they had appointed to fail: and as I lay in bed the latter part of that night, my mind was comforted; and I felt what I effecemed a frefh confirmation, that it was the Lord's will, that I fhould pafs through fome further exercises near home.

So I went home, and ftill felt like a fojourner with my family: and in the frefh fpring of pure love, had fome labours in a private way amongft friends, on a fubject relating to truth's teftimony; under which, I had frequently been exercifed in heart for fome years. I remember, as I walked on the road under this exercife, that paffage in Ezekiel came frefh before me: "Whitherfoever "their faces were turned, thither they went." and I was gracioufly helped to difcharge my duty, in the fear and dread of the Almighty.

mighty. After a few weeks, it pleafed the Lord to vifit me with a pleurify; and after I had lain a few days, and felt the diforder very grievous, I was thoughtful how it might end.

I had of late, through various exercifes, been much weaned from the pleafant things of this life; and I now thought, if it was the Lord's will to put an end to my labours, and gracioully receive me into the arms of his mercy, death would be acceptable to me;

but

but if it was his will to farther refine me. under affliction, and make me, in any degree, useful in his church, I defired not to die. I may, with thankfulnefs, fay, that in this cafe I felt refignednefs wrought in me, and had no inclination to fend for a doctor; believing, if it was the Lord's will, thro' outward means, to raife me up, fome fympathizing friends would be fent to minifter to me; which were accordingly: but though I was carefully attended, yet the dif-order was, at times, fo heavy, that I had no thoughts of recovery : one night in particular, my bodily diftrefs was great; my feet grew cold, and cold increafed up my legs toward my body; and, at that time, I had no inclination to alk my nurfe to apply any-thing warm to my feet, expecting my end was near: and after I had lain near ten hours in this condition, I clofed my eyes, thinking whether I might now be delivered out of the body; but in these awful moments, my mind was livingly opened to behold the church; and ftrong engagements were begotten in me, for the everlasting well-being of my fellow-creatures: and I felt, in the fpring of pure love, that I might remain fome time longer in the body, in filling up, according to my measure, that which remains of the afflictions of Christ, and in labouring for the good of the church; after which, I requested my nurse to apply warmth to my feet; and I revived : and the next night, night, feeling a weighty exercise of spirit, and having a solid friend sitting up with me, I requested him to write what I said; which he did, as sollows:

"Fourth day of the firft month, 1770, about five in the morning.—I have feen in the Light of the Lord, that the day is approaching, when the man that is the moft wife in human policy, fhall be the greateft fool; and the arm that is mighty to fupport injuffice, fhall be broken to pieces: the enemies of righteoufnefs fhall make a terrible rattle, and fhall mightily torment one another; for He that is omnipotent is rifing up to judgment, and will plead the caufe of the opprefied; and he commanded me to open the vision."

Near a week after this, feeling my mind livingly opened, I fent for a neighbour, who, at my requeft, wrote as follows :

"The place of prayer is a precious habitation; for I now faw that the prayers of the faints was precious incenfe: and a trumpet was given me, that I might found forth this language; that the children might hear it, and be invited together to this precious habitation, where the prayers of the faints, as precious incenfe, arifeth up before the throne of God and the Lamb—I faw this habitation to be fafe; to be inwardly quiet, when there were great ftirrings and commotions in the world."

CHAP. XI.

His preparing to vifit friends in England—His embarking at Chefter, in company with Samuel Emlen, in a ship bound to London—His deep exercise, in observing the difficulties and hardships the common sailors are exposed to— Considerations on the dangers to which youth are exposed, in being trained to a sea-faring life; and its inconfishency with a pious education—His thoughts in a storm at sea: with many instructive contemplations on the voyage —And his arrival at London.

HAVING been fome time under a religious concern to prepare for croffing the feas, in order to vifit friends in the northern parts of England, and more particularly in Yorkfhire : after weighty confideration, I thought it expedient to inform friends, at our monthly-monthly-meeting at Burlington, of it; who, having unity with me therein, gave me a certificate; and I afterwards communicated the fame to our quarterly-meeting, and they likewife certified their concurrence therewith. Some time after which, at the general fpringmeeting of minifters and elders, I thought it my duty to acquaint them of the religious exercife which attended my mind; with which, they likewife fignified their unity by a certificate, dated the twenty-fourth day of the commonth, 1772, directed to friends in Great-Britain.

In the fourth month following, I thought the time was come for me to make fome enquiry for a fuitable conveyance; being apprehensive, that as my concern was principally toward the northern parts of England, it would be most proper to go in a veffel bound to Liverpool or Whitehaven: and while I was at Philadelphia, deliberating on this occasion, I was informed, that my beloved friend Samuel Emlen, jun. intending to go to London; and having taken a paffage for himfelf' in the cabbin of the fhip, called Mary and Elizabeth, of which James Sparks was master, and John Head, of the city of Philadelphia, one of the owners; and I feeling a draft in my mind toward the steerage of the fame ship, went first and opened to Samuel the feeling I had concerning it.

My beloved friend wept when I fpake to him, and appeared glad that I had thoughts of of going in the veffel with him, though my prospect was toward the steerage; and he offering to go with me, we went on board, first into the cabbin, a commodious room, and then into the steerage; where we fat down on a chest, the failors being bufy about us: then the owner of the steerage, and fat down with us.

Here my mind was turned toward Chrift, the heavenly counfellor; and I feeling, at this time, my own will fubjected, my heart was contrite before him.

A motion was made by the owner, to go and fet in the cabbin, as a place more retired; but I felt eafy to leave the thip, and made no agreement as to a paffage in her; but told the owner, if I took a paffage in the fhip, I believed it would be in the fteerage; but did not fay much as to my exercife in that cafe.

After I went to my lodgings, and the cafe was a little known in town, a friend laid before me the great inconvenience attending a paffage in the fteerage; which, for a time, appeared very difcouraging to me.

I foon after went to bed, and my mind was under a deep exercife before the Lord; whofe helping hand was manifested to me as I flept that night, and his love strengthened my heart: and in the morning, I went with two friends on board the vessel again; and after a short time spent therein, I went with Samuel Emlen to the house of the owner;

owner; to whom, in the hearing of Samuel only, I opened my exercife, in fubftance as follows, in relation to a fcruple I felt with regard to a paffage in the cabbin :

I told the owner, that on the outfide of that part of the fhip where the cabbin was, I obferved fundry forts of carved work and imagery; and that in the cabbin I obferved fome fuperfluity of workmanfhip of feveral forts; and that according to the ways of men's reckoning, the fum of money to be paid for a paffage in that apartment, hath fome relation to the expence in furnifhing it to pleafe the minds of fuch who give way to a conformity to this world; and that in this cafe, as in other cafes, the monies received from the paffengers, are calculated to anfwer every expence relating to their paffage, and amongft the reft of thefe fuperfluities : and that in this cafe, I felt a foruple with regard to paying my money to defray fuch expences.

As my mind was now opened, I told the owner, that I had, at feveral times in my travels, feen great oppreffions on this continent; at which my heart had been much affected, and brought into a feeling of the ftate of the fufferers. And having many times been engaged, in the fear and love of God, to labour with thofe under whom the oppreffed have been borne down and afflicted; I have often perceived, that a view to get riches, and provide eftates for children, to live conformable to cuftoms, which fland in that fpirit wherein men have regard to the honours of this world—that in the purfuit of thefe things, I had feen many entangled in the fpirit of opprefilion; and the exercife of my foul had been fuch, that I could not find peace, in joining in any thing which I faw was against that wisdom which is pure.

After this, I agreed for a paffage in the fteerage; and hearing in town that Jofeph White had a defire to fee me, I felt the reviving of a defire to fee him, and went then to his houfe, and next day home; where I tarried two nights: and then early in the morning, I parted with my family, under a fenfe of the humbling hand of God upon me; and going to Philadelphia, had opportunity with feveral of my beloved friends; who appeared to be concerned for me, on account of the unpleafant fituation of that part of the veffel, where I was likely to lodge.

In these opportunities, my mind, through the mercies of the Lord, was kept low, in an inward waiting for his help; and friends having expressed their defire, that I might have a place more convenient than the steerage, did not urge, but appeared disposed to leave me to the Lord.

Having ftayed two nights in Philadelphia, I went the next day to Derby monthly-meeting; where, through the ftrength of divine love, love, my heart was enlarged toward the youth then prefent; under which I was helped to labour in fome tendernefs of fpirit. Then lodging at William Horne's, I, with one friend, went to Chefter; where meeting with Samuel Emlen, we went on board the first day of the fifth month, 1772: and as I fat down alone, on a feat on the deck, I felt a fatisfactory evidence, that my proceedings were not in my own will, but under the power of the crofs of Christ.

Seventh day of the fifth month: have had rough weather, moftly fince I came on board; and the paffengers, James Reynolds, John Till-Adams, Sarah Logan and her hired maid, and John Bifpham, all fea-fick, more or lefs, at times; from which ficknefs; thro' the tender mercies of my heavenly Father, I have been preferved: my afflictions now being of another kind.

There appeared an opennels in the minds of the mafter of the fhip and in the cabbin paffengers toward me; we were often together on the deck, and fometimes in the cabbin.

My mind, thro' the merciful help of the Lord, hath been preferved in a good degree watchful, and inward; and have, this day, great caufe to be thankful, in that I remain to feel quietnefs of mind.

As my lodgings in the steerage, now near a week, hath afforded me fundry opportunities of seeing, hearing, and seeling, with respect refpect to the life and fpirit of many poor failors: an inward exercise of foul hath attended me, in regard to placing out children and youth where they may be likely to be exampled and instructed in the pure fear of the Lord; and I being much amongst the feamen, have from a motion of love, fundry times taken opportunities, with one of them at a time alone; and in a free conversation, laboured to turn their minds toward the fear of the Lord: and this day we had a meeting in the cabbin, where my heart was contrite under a feeling of divine love.

Now concerning lads being trained up as feamen: I believe a communication from one part of the world to fome other parts of it, by fea, is, at times, confiftent with the will of our heavenly Father; and to educate fome youth in the practice of failing, I believe may be right: but how lamentable is the prefent corruption of the world! how impure are the channels thro' which trade hath a conveyance! how great is that danger, to which poor lads are now exposed, when placed on fhipboard to learn the art of failing ?

Five lads, training up for the feas, were now on board this fhip; two of them brought up amongft our fociety; one of which hath a right amongft friends, by name James Nailor, to whofe father James Nailor, mentioned in Sewel's hiftory, appears to have been uncle.

I often

I often feel a tendernefs of heart toward thefe poor lads; and, at times, look at them as though they were my children according to the flefh.

O that all may take heed and beware of covetoufnefs! O that all may learn of Chrift, who was meek and low of heart! Then in faithfully following him, he will teach us to be content with food and raiment, without refpect to the cuftoms or honours of this world.

Men thus redeemed, will feel a tender concern for their fellow-creatures, and a defire that those in the lowest stations may be affisted and encouraged; and where owners of statin to the perfect law of liberty, and are doers of the word, these will be bleffed in their deeds.

A fhip at fea commonly fails all night, and the feamen take their watches four hours at a time.

Rifing to work in the night, is not commonly pleafant in any cafe; but in dark rainy nights it is very difagreeable, even though each man were furnifhed with all conveniences: but if men muft go out at midnight to help manage the fhip in' the rain, and having finall room to fleep and lay their garments in, are often befet to furnifh themfelves for the watch; their garments or fome thing relating to their bufinefs being wanting, and not eafily found; when from the urgency occafioned by high winds, they are haftened and called up fuddenly: here is a tryal tryal of patience on the poor failors, and the poor lads their companions.

If after they have been on deck feveral hours in the night, and come down into the fteerage foaking wet, and are fo clofe ftowed that proper convenience for change of gar-ment is not eafily come at, but for want of proper room their wet garments thrown in heaps, and fometimes, through much crowd-. ing, are trodden under foot, in going to their lodgings and getting out of them, and great difficulties, at times, each one to find his own: here are tryals on the poor failors.

Now as I have been with them in my lodge, my heart hath often yearned for them; and tender defires been raifed in me. that all owners and mafters of veffels may dwell in the love of God, and therein act uprightly; and by feeking lefs for gain, and looking carefully to their ways, may earneftly labour to remove all caufe of provocation from the poor feamen, either to fret or use excess of strong drink; for, indeed, the poor creatures, at times, in the wet and cold, feem to apply to ftrong drink to fupply the want of other convenience.

Great reformation in the world is wanting, and the neceffity of it, amongst these who do bufinefs on great waters, hath, at this time, been abundantly opened before me.

The eighth day of the fifth month.-This morning the clouds gathered, the wind blew P 2 ftrong ftrong from fouth-eastward, and before noon increased to that degree that failing appeared dangerous : the seamen then bound up fome of their fails, and took down fome ; and the ftorm increasing, they put the dead lights, fo called, into the cabbin-windows, and lighted a lamp as at night.

The wind now blew vehemently, and the fea wrought to that degree, that an awful ferioufnefs prevailed in the cabbin, in which I fpent, I believe, about feventeen hours; for I believed the poor wet toiling feamen, had need of all the room in the crouded fteerage, and the cabbin paffengers had given me frequent invitations.

They ceafed now from failing; and put the veffel in the pofture, called lying-to.

My mind in this tempeft, thro' the gracious affiftance of the Lord, was preferved in a good degree of refignation; and I felt, at times, a few words in his love to my fhip-mates, in regard to the all-fufficiency of Him who formed the great deep, and whofe care is fo extensive, that a fparrow falls not without his notice : and thus in a tender frame of mind, fpake to them of the neceffity of our yielding, in true obedience, to the inftructions of our heavenly Father, who fometimes, through adversities, intendeth our refinement.

About eleven at night, I went out on the deck, when the fea wrought exceedingly, and the high foaming waves, all round about, had had in fome fort the appearance of fire; but did not give much, if any, light.

The failor, then at the helm, faid, he lately faw a corpofant at the head of the maft.

About this time I obferved the mafter of the fhip ordered the carpenter to keep on the deck; and tho' he faid little, I apprehended his care was, that the carpenter with his axe might be in readiness, in case of any extremity.

Soon after this, the vehemency of the wind abated; and before morning, they again put the fhip under fail.

The tenth day of the month, and first of the week, it being fine weather, we had a meeting in the cabbin, at which most of the seamen were present: this meeting to me was a strengthening time.

The thirteenth day of the month. As I continue to lodge in the fteerage, I feel an opennefs this morning, to express fomething further of the ftate of my mind, in refpect to poor lads bound apprentice to learn the art of failing. As I believe failing is of fome use in the world, a labour of foul attends me, that the pure counfel of truth may be humbly waited for in this cafe, by all concerned in the business of the feas.

A pious father, whofe mind is exercifed for the everlafting welfare of his child, may not, with a peaceable mind, place him out to an employment amongft a people, whofe common common courfe of life is manifeftly corrupt and prophane; fo great is the prefent defect amongft fea-faring men, in regard to piety and virtue: and through an abundant traffick, and many fhips of war, fo many people are employed on the fea, that this fubject of placing lads to the employment appears very weighty.

Prophane examples are very corrupting, and very forcible. And as my mind, day after day, and night after night, hath been affected with a fympathizing tendernefs toward poor children, put to the employment of failors, I have fometimes had weighty converfation with the failors in the fteerage, who were moftly refpectful to me, and more and more fo the longer I was with them: they moftly appeared to take kindly what I faid to them; but their minds have appeared to be fo deeply imprefied with that almoft univerfal depravity amongft failors, that the poor creatures in their anfwers to me on this fubject, have revived in my remembrance, that of the degenerate Jews a little before the captivity, as repeated by Jeremiah the prophet, " There is no hope."

Now under this exercife, a fenfe of the defire of outward gain prevailing amongft us, hath felt grievous; and a ftrong call to the profeffed followers of Chrift, hath been raifed in me; that all may take heed, left, through loving this prefent world, they be found in a continued neglect of duty, with refpect refpect to a faithful labour for a reformation.

Silence, as to every motion proceeding from the love of money, and an humble waiting upon God, to know his will concerning us, hath now appeared neceffary: he alone is able to ftrengthen us to dig deep, to remove all which lies between us and the fafe foundation, and fo direct us in our outward employments, that pure univerfal love may fhine forth in our proceedings.

Defires arifing from the fpirit of truth, are pure defires ; and when a mind, divinely opened toward a young generation, is made fenfible of corrupting examples, powerfully working, and extensively fpreading amongit them, how moving is the prospect!

A great trade to the coaft of Africa for flaves; of which I now heard frequent converfation among the failors !

A great trade in that which is raifed and prepared thro' grievous oppression!

A great trade in fuperfluity of workmanfhip, formed to pleafe the pride and vanity of people's minds!

Great and extensive is that depravity, which prevails amongst the poor failors !

When I remember that faying of the Moft High, through his prophet, "This people "have I formed for myfelf; they fhall fhew "forth my praife:" and think of placing children amongst them, to learn the practice of failing, the confistency of it with a pious educaeducation, feems to me like that mentioned by the propher, " There is no anfwer from " God."

In a world of dangers and difficulties, like a defolate thorny wildernefs, how precious! how comfortable! how fafe! are the leadnogs of Chrift, the good fhepherd ; who faid, "I know my fheep; and am known of mine."

The fixteenth day of the month. Wind for feveral days past often high, what the failors call fqually, rough fea and frequent rains. This last night a very trying night to the poor feamen; the water, chief part of the night, running over the main deck, and fometimes breaking waves came on the quarter deck. The latter part of the night, as I lay in bed, my mind was humbled under the power of divine love; and refignednefs to the great Creator of the earth and the feas, renewedly wrought in me, whofe fatherly care over his children felt precious to my foul : and defires were now renewed in me, to embrace every opportunity of being inwardly acquainted with the hardfhips and difficulties of my fellow-creatures, and to labour in his love for the fpreading of pure universal rightcousness on the earth. The opportunities being frequent of hearing conversation amongst the sailors, in respect to the voyages to Africa, and the manner of bringing the deeply oppressed flaves into our islands. The thoughts of their condition, frequently in chains and fetters on board the veffels,.

veffels, with hearts loaded with grief, under the apprehensions of miserable flavery; my mind was frequently opened to meditate on these things.

On the feventeenth day of the month, and first of the week, we had a meeting in the cabbin; to which the feamen generally came. My spirit was contrite before the Lord; whose love, at this time, affected my heart.

This afternoon I felt a tender fympathy of foul, with my poor wife and family left behind; in which ftate, my heart was enlarged in defires, that they may walk in that humble obedience wherein the everiafting Father may be their guide and fupport, thro' all the difficulties in this world; and a fenfe of that gracious affiftance, thro' which my mind hath been ftrengthened to take up the crofs and leave them, to travel in the love of truth, hath begotten thankfulnefs in my heart to our great Helper.

On the twenty-fourth day of the month, and first of the week, a clear pleasant morning: and as I fat on deck, I felt a reviving in my nature; which, through much rainy weather, and high winds, being shut up in a close unhealthy air, was weakened.

Several nights of late I felt breathing difficult; that a little after the rifing of the fecond watch (which is about midnight) I got up, and ftood, I believe, near an hour, with my face near the hatchway, to get the fresh air at the finall vacancy under the hatch hatch door; which is commonly flut down, partly to keep out rain, and fometimes to keep the breaking waves from dashing into the steerage.

I may, with thankfulnefs to the Father of mercies, acknowledge, that in my prefent weak ftate, my mind hath been fupported to bear the affliction with patience; and have looked at the prefent difpenfation as a kindnefs from the great Father of mankind, who, in this my floating pilgrimage, is in fome degree bringing me to feel that, which many thoufands of my fellow-creatures often fuffer in a greater degree.

My appetite failing, the tryal hath been the heavier; and I have felt tender breathings in my foul after God, the fountain of comfort, whofe inward help hath fupplied, at times, the want of outward convenience : and ftrong defires have attended me, that his family, who are acquainted with the movings of his Holy Spirit, may be fo redeemed from the love of money, and from that fpirit in which men feek honour one of another; that in all bufinefs, by fea or land, we may conftantly keep in view the coming of his kingdom on earth, as it is in heaven; and by faithfully following this fafe guide, fhew forth examples, tending to lead out of that under which the creation groans !

This day we had a meeting in the cabbin; in which I was favoured in fome degree to experience the fulfilling of that faying of the the prophet, "The Lord hath been a ftrength "to the poor, a ftrength to the needy in "their diftrefs;" for which, my heart is bowed in thankfulnefs before him.

The twenty-eighth day of the month: wet weather of late, finall winds inclining to calms; our feamen have caft a lead, I fuppofe about one hundred fathom, but find no bottom: foggy weather this morning.

Through the kindness of the great Preferver of men, my mind remains quiet; and a degree of exercise, from day to day, attends me, that the pure peaceable government of Christ may spread and prevail amongst mankind.

The leading on of a young generation, in that pure way, in which the wifdom of this world hath no place: where parents and tutors, humbly waiting for the heavenly Counfellor, may example them in the truth, as it is in Jefus. This, for feveral days, hath been the exercife of my mind; O how fafe, how quiet is that ftate, where the foul ftands in pure obedience to the voice of Chrift, and a watchful care is maintained, not to follow the voice of the ftranger!

Here Chrift is felt to be our fhepherd ; and under his leading, people are brought to a ftability : and where he doth not lead forward, we are bound in the bonds of purc love, to ftand ftill and wait upon him. In the love of money, and in the wifdom of this world, bufinefs is propofed, then the urgency urgency of affairs pulh forward; nor can the mind, in this flate, difcern the good and perfect will of God concerning us.

The love of God is manifefted, in gracioufly calling us to come out of that which ftands in confusion; but if we bow not in the name of Jefus; if we give not up those prospects of gain, which, in the wisdom of this world, are open before us, but fay in our hearts, I must needs go on; and in going on, I hope to keep as near to the purity of truth, as the business before me will admit of: here the mind remains entangled, and the shining of the light of life into the foul is obstructed.

This query opens in my mind in the love of Chrift. Where fhall a pious father place his fon apprentice, to be inftructed in the practice of croffing the feas; and have faith to believe, that Chrift, our holy Shepherd, leads him to place his fon there ?

Surely the Lord calls to mourning and deep humiliation, that in his fear we may be infiructed, and led fafely on through the great difficulties and perplexities in this prefent age.

In an entire fubjection of our wills, the Lord gracioufly opens a way for his people, where all their wants are bounded by his wifdom; and here we experience the fubftance of what Mofes the prophet figured out in the water of feparation, as a purification from fin.

Efau

Efau is mentioned as a child red all over, like a hairy garment : in Efau is reprefented the natural will of man. In preparing the water of feparation, a red heifer without blemifh, on which there had been no yoke, was to be flain, and her blood fprinkled by the prieft feven times toward the tabernacle of the congregation : then her fkin, her flefh, and all pertaining to her, was to be burnt without the camp ; and of her afhes the water was prepared. Thus the crucifying the old man, or natural will, is reprefented; and hence comes a feparation from that carnal mind, which is death.

"He who toucheth the dead body of a man, and purifieth not himfelf with the water of feparation, he defileth the tabernacle of the Lord; he is unclean." Numb. xix. 13.

If any, through the love of gain, go forth into bulinefs, wherein they dwell as amongft the tombs, and touch the bodies of those who are dead: if these, through the infinite love of God, feel the power of the cross of Christ to crucify them to the world, and therein learn humbly to follow the divine leader :--here is the judgment of this world--here the prince of this world is cast out.

The water of feparation is felt; and tho' we have been amongst the flain, and thro' the defire of gain have touched the dead body of a man; yet, in the purifying love of Chrift, Chrift, we are washed in the water of feparation, are brought off from that business, from that gain, and from that fellowship, which was not agreeable to his holy will: and I have felt a renewed confirmation in the time of this voyage, that the Lord, in his infinite love, is calling to his visited children, fo to give up all outward possifions, and means of getting treasures, that his Holy Spirit may have free course in their hearts, and direct them in all their proceedings.

To feel the fubstance pointed at in this figure, man must know death, as to his own will.

"No man can fee God, and live:" This was fpoken by the Almighty to Mofes the prophet; and opened by our bleffed Redeemer.

As death comes on our own wills, and a new life is formed in us, the heart is purified, and prepared to underftand clearly. "Bleff-"ed are the pure in heart, for they fhall "fee God." In purity of heart, the mind is divinely opened to behold the nature of univerfal righteoufnefs, or the rightcoufnefs of the kingdom of God. "No man hath feen "the Father, fave he that is of God; he "hath feen the Father."

The natural mind is active about the things of this life; and in this natural activity, bufinefs is propofed, and a will in us to go forward in it. And as long as this natural will remains unfubjected, fo long there remains remains an obftruction againft the clearnefs of divine light operating in us; but when we love God with all our heart, and with all our ftrength, then, in this love, we love our neighbours as ourfelves; and a tendernefs of heart is felt toward all people for whom Chrift died, even fuch who as to outward circumftances may be to us as the Jews were to the Samaritans. Who is my neighbour? See this queftion anfwered by our Saviour, Luke x. 30.

In this love we can fay, that Jefus is the Lord; and the reformation in our fouls, manifefted in a full reformation of our lives, wherein all things are new, and all things are of God; 2 Cor. v. 18. in this the defire of gain is fubjected.

• When employment is honeftly followed in the light of truth; and people become diligent in business, " fervent in spirit; ferving " the Lord :" Rom. xii. 11. Here the name is opened : " This is the name by which he " shall be called, THE LORD OUR " RIGHTEOUSNESS." Jere. xxiii. 6. Oh, how precious is this name! It is like ointment poured out. The chafte virgins are in love with the Redeemer; and for the promoting his peaceable kingdom in the world, are content to endure hardnefs like good foldiers; and are fo feparated in fpirit, from the defire of riches, that in their employments, they become extensively careful to give none offence, neither to Jews nor heathen, nor the church of Chrift. On

On the thirty-first day of the month, and first of the week, we had a meeting in the cabbin, with near all the ship's company; the whole being near thirty. In this meeting the Lord, in mercy, favoured us with the extendings of his love.

The fecond day of the fixth month. Last evening the feamen found bottom at about feventy fathom.

This morning fair wind, and pleafant: and as I fat on deck, my heart was overcome with the love of Chrift, and melted into contrition before him: and in this ftate, the profpect of that work, to which I have felt my mind drawn when in my native land, being in fome degree opened before me, I felt like a little child; and my cries were put up to my heavenly Father for prefervation, that in a humble dependance on him, my foul may be ftrengthened in his love, and kept inwardly waiting for his counfel.

This afternoon we faw that part of England called the Lizard.

Some dunghill fowls yet remained of those the paffengers took for their fea-flore: I believe about fourteen perished in the florms at fea, by the waves breaking over the quarter-deck; and a confiderable number with fickness, at different times.— I observed the cocks crow coming down the Delaware, and while we were near the land; but afterward, I think I did not hear one of them crow crow till we came near the land in England, when they again crowed a few times.

In obferving their dull appearance at fea, and the pining ficknefs of fome of them, I often remembered the fountain of goodnefs; who gave being to all creatures, and whofe love extends to that of caring for the fparrows; and believe, where the love of God is verily perfected, and the true fpirit of government watchfully attended to, a tendernefs toward all creatures made fubject to us will be experienced; and a care felt in us, that we do not leffen that fweetnefs of life, in the animal creation, which the great Creator intends for them under our government.

The fourth day of the month. Wet weather, high winds, and fo dark that we could fee but a little way. I perceived our feamen were apprehenfive of danger of miffing the Channel; which, I underftood, was narrow. In a while, it grew lighter; and they faw the land, and they knew where we were. Thus the Father of mercies was pleafed to try us with the fight of dangers; and then gracioufly, from time to time, deliver from them : thus fparing our lives, that in humility and reverence, we may walk before him, and put our truft in him.

About noon a pilot came off from Dover; where my beloved friend Samuel Emlen went on fhore, and thence to London, about feventy-two miles by land; but I felt eafy in flaying in the fhip.

The

The feventh day of the month, and firft of the week. Clear morning, lay at anchor for the tide, and had a parting meeting with the fhip's company; in which, my heart was enlarged in a fervent concern for them, that they may come to experience falvation thro' Chrift.— Had a head wind up the Thames; lay fometimes at anchor; faw many fhips paffing, and fome at anchor near; and had large opportunity of feeling the fpirit in which the poor bewildered failors too generally live.— That lamentable degeneracy, which fo much prevails on the people employed on the feas, fo affected my heart, that I may not eafily convey the feeling I have had to another.

The prefent state of the fea-faring life in general, appears fo opposite to that of a pi-ous education; fo full of corruption, and extreme alienation from God; fo full of examples, the most dangerous to young people, that in looking toward a young generation, I feel a care for them, that they may have an education different from the prefent education of lads at fea : and that all of us, who are acquainted with the pure gofpel fpirit, may lay this cafe to heart, may remember the lamentable corruptions which attends the conveyance of merchandize across the feas, and fo abide in the love of Chrift, that being delivered from the love of money, from the entangling expences of a curious, delicate luxurious life, we may learn contentment with a little; and promote the fea-faring life no further, than that fpirit, which leads into all truth, attends us in our proceedings.

His attending the yearly-meeting in London; and after it, proceeding towards York/hire; wifiting feveral quarterly and other meetings in the counties of Hertford, Warwick, Oxford, Nottingham, York, and Weftmoreland; and thence again into York/hire, and to the city of York; with fome inftructive thoughts and obfervations, and letters on divers fubjects — His hearing of the deceafe of William Hunt; and fome account of him — His ficknefs at York; and end of his pilgrimage there.

ON the eighth day of the fixth month, 1772, we landed at London; and I went ftraightway to the yearly-meeting of minifters and elders, which had been gathered (I fuppofe) about half an hour.

In this meeting, my mind was humbly contrite : in the afternoon, the meeting of O 2 bufinefs bufinefs opened; which, by adjournments, held near a week.—In thefe meetings, I often felt a living concern for the eftablifhment of friends in the pure life of truth: and my heart was enlarged in the meeting of minifters, meeting of bufinefs, and in feveral meetings of publick worfhip; and I felt my mind united in true love, to the faithful labourers now gathered at this yearly-meeting.

On the fifteenth day of the month, I left London, and went to a quarterly-meeting at Hertford.

The first day of the feventh month. I have been at quarterly-meetings at Sherrington, Northampton, Banbury and Shipton; and had fundry meetings between: my mind hath been bowed under a fense of divine goodness manifested amongst us; my heart hath been often enlarged in true love, both amongst ministers and elders, and in publick meetings; that through the Lord's goodness, I believe it hath been a fresh visitation to many, in particular to the youth.

The feventeenth day of the month. Was this day at Birmingham: have been at meetings at Coventry, Warwick, in Oxfordfhire, and fundry other places; have felt the humbling hand of the Lord upon me; and thro' his tender mercies find peace in the labours I have gone through. The twenty-fixth day of the month. I ing meetings: was this day at Nottingham; which, in the forenoon efpecially, was, thro' divine love, a heart-tendering feafon: next day had a meeting in a friend's houfe with friends children and fome friends; this, thro' the ftrengthening arm of the Lord, was a time to be thankfully remembered.

The fecond day of the eighth month, and first of the week, was this day at Sheffield, a large inland town: have been at fundry meetings last week; and feel inward thankfulness for that divine support, which hath been graciously extended to me.

The ninth day of the month, and first of the week, was at Rushworth: have lately passed through fome painful labour; but have been comforted, under a fense of that divine visitation, which I feel extended toward many young people.

The fixteenth day of the month, and first of the week, was at Settle: it hath of late been a time of inward poverty; under which, my mind hath been preferved in a watchful tender state, feeling for the mind of the holy Leader, and find peace in the labours I have passed through.

On enquiry, in many places, I find the price of rye about five fhillings, wheat about eight fhillings, per bufhel; oatmeal twelve fhillings for an hundred and twenty pounds; mutton from three-pence to five-pence per pound; bacon, from feven-pence to ninepence; cheefe, from four-pence to fix-pence; butter, butter, from eight-pence to ten-pence; houferent, for a poor man, from twenty-five fhillings to forty fhillings per year, to be paid weekly; wood, for fire, very fearce and dear; coal, in fome places, two fhillings and fixpence per hundred weight; but near the pits, not a quarter fo much. O, may the wealthy confider the poor!

The wages of labouring men in feveral counties toward London, is ten-pence per day in common bufinefs, the employer finds finall-beer, and the labourer finds his own food ; but in harvest and hay time, wages is about one shilling per day, and the labourer hath all his diet. In fome parts of the north of England, poor labouring men have their food where they work; and appear, in common, to do rather better than nearer London : industrious women, who fpin in the factories, get fome four-pence, fome five-pence, and fo on to fix, feven, eight, nine or ten-pence per day, and find their own houfe-room and diet. Great numbers of poor people live chiefly on bread and water in the fouthern parts of England, and fome in the northern parts; and there are many poor children not taught even to read. May those who have plenty, lay these things to heart !

Stage-coaches frequently go upwards of an hundred miles in twenty-four hours; and I have heard friends fay, in feveral places, that it is common for horfes to be killed with hard hard driving, and many others driven till they grow blind.

Polt-boys purfue their bufinels, each one to his ftage, all night thro' the winter : fome boys, who ride long ftages, fuffer greatly on winter nights ; and, at feveral places, I have heard of their being froze to death. So great is the hurry in the fpirit of this world, that in aiming to do bufinels quick, and to gain wealth, the creation, at this day, doth loudly groan !

As my journey hath been without a horfe, I have had feveral offers of being affifted on my way in thefe ftage-coaches; but have not been in them: nor have I had freedom to fend letters by thefe pofts, in the prefent way of their riding; the ftages being fo fixed, and one boy dependant on another as to time, that they commonly go upward of one hundred miles in twenty-four hours; and in the cold long winter nights, the poor boys fuffer much.

I heard in America of the way of thefe posts; and cautioned friends in the general meeting of ministers and elders at Philadelphia, and in the yearly-meeting of ministers and elders at London, not to fend letters to me on any common occasion by post. And though, on this account, I may be likely to hear feldomer from my family left behind; yet, for righteoussers fake, I am, thro' divine favour, made content.

I have felt great diftress of mind, fince I came on this island, on account of the members of our fociety being mixed with the world in various forts of bufinefs and traffick, carried on in impure channels. Great is the trade to Africa for flaves! and in loading these ships, abundance of people are employed in the factories; amongst whom are many of our fociety. Friends, in early times, refufed, on a religious principle, to make or trade in fuperfluities; of which, we have many large testimonies on record : but for want of faithfulnefs, some gave way; even fome, whole examples were of note in our fociety; and from thence others took more liberty. Members of our fociety worked in fuperfluities, and bought and fold them; and thus dimnefs of fight came over many : at length, friends got into the use of some fuperfluities in dress, and in the furniture of their houses; and this hath spread from less to more, till superfluity of some kinds is common amongft us.

In this declining flate, many look at the example one of another, and too much neglect the pure feeling of truth. Of late years, a deep exercife hath attended my mind, that friends may dig deep, may carefully caft forth the loofe matter, and get down to the Rock, the fure foundation, and there hearken to that divine voice which gives a clear and certain found; and I have felt in that which doth doth not deceive, that if friends, who have known the truth, keep in that tendernefs of heart, where all views of outward gain are given up, and their truft is only on the Lord, he will gracioufly lead fome to be patterns of deep felf-denial in things relating to trade and handicraft labour; and that fome, who have plenty of the treafures of this world, will example in a plain frugal life, and pay wages to fuch whom they may hire, more liberally than is now cuftomary in fome places.

The twenty-third day of the month, was this day at Prefton-Patrick, and had a comfortable meeting. I have, feveral times, been entertained at the houfes of friends, who had fundry things about them which had the appearance of outward greatnefs; and as I have kept inward, way hath opened for converfation with fuch in private, in which divine goodnefs hath favoured us together, with heart-tendering times.

The twenty-fixth day of the month. Being now at George Crosfields, in the county of Weftmoreland, I feel a concern to commit to writing, that which to me hath been a cafe uncommon.

In a time of ficknefs with the pleurify, a little upward of two years and a half ago, I was brought fo near the gates of death, that I forgot my name : being then defirous to know who I was, I faw a mafs of matter of a dull gloomy colour, between the fouth and

and the eaft; and was informed, that this mafs was human beings in as great mifery as they could be, and live; and that I was mixed in with them, and that henceforth I might not confider myfelf as a diftinct or deparate being. In this flate I remained feveral hours. I then heard a foft melodious voice, more pure and harmonious than any I had heard with my ears before; I believcd it was the voice of an angel, who fpake to the other angels: the words were—John Woolman is dead. I foon remembered that I once was John Woolman; and being affured that I was alive in the body, I greatly wondered what that heavenly voice could mean.

I believed, beyond doubting, that it was the voice of an holy angel; but, as yet, it was a myftery to me.

I was then carried in fpirit to the mines, where poor opprefied people were digging rich treafures for those called christians; and heard them blaspheme the name of Christ, at which I was grieved; for his name to me was precious.

Then I was informed, that there heathen were told, that those who oppressed them were the followers of Christ; and they faid amongst themselves, If Christ directed them to use us in this fort, then Christ is a cruel tyrant.

All this time the fong of the angel remained a myftery; and in the morning, my dear wife and fome others coming to my bedfide, fide, I afked them, if they knew who I was: and they telling me, I was John Woolman, thought I was light-headed : for I told them not what the angel faid, nor was I difpofed to talk much to any one; but was very defirous to get fo deep, that I might underftand this myftery.

My tongue was often fo dry, that I could not fpeak till I had moved it about and gathered fome moifture, and as I lay ftill for a time, at length I felt divine power prepare my mouth that I could fpeak; and then I faid, " I am crucified with Chrift, never-" thelefs I live; yet not I, but Chrift that " liveth in me: and the life I now live in " the flefh, is by faith in the Son of God, " who loved me, and gave himfelf for me."

Then the mystery was opened; and I perceived there was joy in heaven over a finner who had repented; and that that language (John Woolman is dead) meant no more than the death of my own will.

Soon after this I coughed, and raifed much bloody matter; which I had not done during this vision: and now my natural understanding returned as before. — Here I faw, that people getting filver vessels to fet off their tables at entertainments, was often stained with worldly glory; and that in the prefent state of things, I should take heed how I fed myfelf from out of filver vessels.

Soon after my recovery, I, going to our monthly-meeting, dined at a friend's houfe where where drink was brought in filver veffels, and not in any other; and I wanting fome drink, told him my cafe with weeping: and he ordered fome drink for me in another veffel.

The like I afterwards went through in feveral friend's houfes in America, and have alfo in England, fince I came here: and have caufe, with humble reverence, to acknowledge the loving-kindnefs of my heavenly Father, who hath preferved me in fuch a tender frame of mind, that none, I believe, have ever been offended at what I have faid on that occafion.

After this ficknefs, I fpake not in publick meetings for worfhip for near one year; but my mind was very often in company with the opprefied flaves, as I fat in meetings: and tho', under this difpenfation, I was flut up from fpeaking, yet the fpring of the gofpel miniftry was, many times, livingly opened in me; and the divine gift operated by abundance of weeping, in feeling the opprefion of this people. It being fo long fince I paffed thro' this difpenfation, and the matter remaining frefh and livingly in my mind, I believe it fafeft for me to commit it to writing.

The thirtieth day of the month. This morning I wrote a letter, in fubftance as follows:

Beloved

Beloved friend,

MY mind is often affected as I país along, under a fente of the ftate of many poor people, who fit under that fort of ministry which requires much outward labour to fupport it; and the loving-kindnefs of our heavenly Father, in opening a pure gospel ministry in this nation, hath often raised thankfulness in my heart to him. I often remember the conflicts of the faithful under perfecution, and now look at the free exercise of the pure gift uninterrupted by outward laws, as a truft committed to us : which requires our deepest gratitude, and most careful attention. I feel a tender concern, that the work of reformation, fo profperoufly carried on in this land within a few ages paft, may go forward and fpread amongst the nations ; and may not go backward, thro' dust gathering on our garments, who have been called to a work fo great and fo precious." is.

" Last evening I had a little opportunity at thy house, with some of thy family, in thy absence; in which I rejoiced: and seeling a fweetness on my mind toward thee, I now endeavour to open a little of the seeling I had there."

"I have heard, that you, in thefe parts, have, at certain feafons, meetings of conference, in relation to friends living up to our principles, in which feveral meetings unite in

in one; with which I feel unity: I having, in fome meafure, felt truth lead that way amongft friends in America; and have found, my dear friend, that in these labours all fuperfluities in our own living, are against us. I feel that pure love toward thee, in which there is freedom."

" I look at that precious gift beftowed on thee, with awfulnefs before Him who gave it: and feel a care, that we may be fo feparated to the gofpel of Chrift, that those things which proceed from the fpirit of this world, may have no place amongft us."

" Thy friend,

" John Woolman."

I refted a few days, in body and mind, with our friend Jane Crosfield; who was once in America: was, on the fixth day of the week, at Kendal in Weftmoreland; and at Greyrig meeting the thirtieth day of the month, and first of the week.

I have known poverty of late; and been graciously supported to keep in the patience: and am thankful, under a fense of the goodness of the Lord toward those that are of a contrite spirit.

The fixth day of the ninth month, and first of the week, was this day at Counterfide; a large meeting-house, and very full: and thro' the opening of pure love, it was a strengthen-a ftrengthening time to me, and (I believe) to many more.

The thirteenth day of the month. Was this day at Richmond, a finall meeting; but the town's people coming in, the houfe was crowded: it was a time of heavy labour; and (I believe) was a profitable meeting.

At this place I heard that my kinfman William Hunt from North-Carolina, who was on a religious vifit to friends in England, departed this life on the ninth day of the ninth month, inftant, of the finall-pox, at Newcaftle.—He appeared in the miniftry when a youth; and his labours therein were of good favor. He travelled much in that work in America. I once heard him fay in public teftimony, that his concern was (in that vifit) to be devoted to the fervice of Chrift fo fully, that he might not fpend one minute in pleafing himfelf: which words, joined with his example, was a means of ftirring up the pure mind in me.

Having of late travelled often in wet weather, thro' narrow freets in towns and villages, where dirtinefs under foot, and the fcent arifing from that filth, which more or lefs infects the air of all thick fettled towns; and I being but weakly, have felt diffrefs both in body and mind with that which is impure.

In these journies I have been where much cloth hath been dyed; and fundry times walked walked over ground, where much of their dye stuffs have drained away.

Here I have felt a longing in my mind, that people might come into cleannels of fpirit, cleannels of perfon, cleannels about their houfes and garments.

Some, who are great, carry delicacy to a great height themfelves, and yet the real cleanlinefs is not generally promoted. Dyes being invented partly to pleafe the eye, and partly to hide dirt, I have felt in this weak ftate, travelling in dirtinefs and affected with unwholefome fcents, a ftrong defire that the nature of dyeing cloth to hide dirt may be more fully confidered.

To hide dirt in our garments, appears oppofite to real cleanlinefs.

To wafh garments, and keep them fweet, this appears cleanly.

Thro' giving way to hiding dirt in our garments, a fpirit which would cover that which is difagreeable, is ftrengthened.

Real cleannefs becometh a holy people: but hiding that which is not clean by colouring our garments, appears contrary to the fweetnefs of fincerity.

Thro' fome forts of dyes, cloth is lefs uleful; and if the value of dye-ftuffs, the expence of dyeing, and the damage done to cloth, were all added together, and that expence applied to keep all fweet and clean, how much more cleanly would people be.

Near

On this vifit to England I have felt fome inftructions fealed on my mind, which I am concerned to leave in writing, for the use of fuch who are called to the station of a minifter of Christ.

Chrift being the Prince of Peace, and we being no more than minifters, I find it neceffary for us, not only to feel a concern in our first going forth, but to experience the renewing thereof, in the appointment of meetings.

I felt a concern in America, to prepare for this voyage; and being through the mercy of God, brought fafe here, my heart was like a veffel that wanted vent; and for feveral weeks at firft, when my mouth was opened in meetings, it often felt like the raifing of a gate in a water courfe, where a weight of water lay upon it; and in these labours there appeared a fresh visitation to many; especially the youth; but sometimes after this, I felt empty and poor, and yet felt a necefiity to appoint meetings.

In this ftate I was exercised to abide in the pure life of truth, and in all my labours to watch diligently against the motions of felf in my own mind.

I have frequently felt a neceffity to ftand up, when the fpring of the ministry was low, and to speak from the neceffity, in that which subjecteth the will of the creature; and herein I was united with the fuffering feed, and found inward sweetness in these mortifying labours.

242 THE LIFE AND TRAVELS

As I have been preferved in a watchful attention to the divine leader, under thefe difpenfations, enlargement at times hath followed, and the power of truth hath rofe higher in fome meetings, than I ever knew it before through me.

Thus I have been more and more inftructed, as to the neceffity of depending, not upon a concern which I felt in America, to come on a vifit to England; but upon the fresh instructions of Christ the Prince of Peace, from day to day.

Now of late, I felt a ftop in the appointment of meetings, not wholly but in part; and I do not feel liberty to appoint them fo quick one after another as I have heretofore.

The work of the ministry, being a work of divine love, I feel that the openings thereof are to be waited for, in all our appointments.

Oh how deep is divine wifdom ! Chrift puts forth his ministers, and goeth before them ; and oh how great is the danger of departing from the pure feeling of that which leadeth fafely !

Chrift knoweth the ftate of the people, and in the pure feeling of the gofpel ministry, their ftates are opened to his fervants.

Chrift knoweth when the fruit-bearing branches themfelves have need of purging.

Oh that these lessons may be remembered by me! and that all who appoint meetings, may proceed in the pure feeling of duty.

I have

I have fometimes felt a neceffity to ftand up, but that fpirit which is of the world hath fo much prevailed in many, and the pure life of truth been fo prefied down, that I have gone forward, not as one travelling in a road caft up, and well prepared, but as a man walking through a miry place, in which are ftones here and there, fafe to ftep on; but fo fituated that one ftep being taken, time is neceffary to fee where to ftep next.

Now I find that in the pure obedience, the mind learns contentment, in appearing weak and foolifh to that wifdom which is of the world; and in thefe lowly labours, they who ftand in a low place, rightly exercifed under the crofs, will find nourifhment.

The gift is pure, and while the eye is fingle in attending thereto, the underftanding is preferved clear; felf is kept out; we rejoice in filling up that which remains of the afflictions of Chrift, for his body's fake, which is the church.

The natural man loveth eloquence, and many love to hear eloquent orations; and if there is not a careful attention to the gift, men who have once labour'd in the pure gofpel ministry, growing weary of fuffering, and assumed of appearing weak, may kindle a fire, compass themfelves about with sparks, and walk in the light; not of Christ who is under fuffering; but of that fire, which they, going from the gift, have kindled: And that in hearers, which is gone from the meek suffering state, into the worldly wission, may R 2 be be warmed with this fire, and fpeak highly of these labours. That which is of God gathers to God; and that which is of the world is owned by the world.

In this journey a labour hath attended my mind, that the minifters amongft us may be preferved in the meek feeling life of truth, where we may have no defire, but to follow Chrift and be with him; that when he is under fuffering we may fuffer with him; and never defire to rife up in dominion, but as he by the virtue of his own fpirit may raife us.

A few days after writing thefe confiderations, our dear friend in the courfe of his religious vifits, came to the eity of York, and attended moft of the fittings of the quarterly meeting there; but before it was over, was taken ill of the fmall-pox. Our friend Thomas Priestman and others who attended him, preferved the following minutes of his expreffions in the time of his fickness, and of his decease.

Ift day, the 27th of the 9th month 1772. His diforder appeared to be the fmall-pox: being afked to have a doctor's advice, he fignified he had not freedom or liberty in his mind fo to do, ftanding wholly refigned to his will, who gave him life, and whole power he had witneffed to raife and heal him in ficknefs before, when he feemed nigh unto death; and if he was to wind up now, he was was perfectly refigned, having no will either to live or die, and did not choofe any fhould be fent for to him: but a young man, an apothecary, coming of his own accord the next day, and defiring to do fomething for him, he faid he found a freedom to confer with him and the other friends about him, and if any thing fhould be propofed, as to medicine that did not come thro' defiled channels or oppreffive hands, he fhould be willing to confider and take it, fo far as he found freedom.

2d day. He faid he felt the diforder to affect his head, fo that he could think little, and but as a child; and defired if his underftanding fhould be more affected, to have nothing given him that those about knew he had a testimony against.

Third-day he uttered the following prayer .-- O Lord my God, the amazing horrors of darknefs were gathered around me and covered me all over, and I faw no way to go forth; I felt the depth and extent of the mifery of my fellow creatures feparated from the divine harmony, and it was heavier than I could bear, and I was crushed down under it, I lifted up my hand, I ftretched out my arm, but there was none to help me; I looked round about and was amazed; in the depths of mifery, O Lord! I remembered that thou art omnipotent, that I had called thee Father, and I felt that I loved thee, and I was made quiet in thy will, and I waited for deliverance from thee; thou hadft pity upon upon me when no man could help me; I faw that meeknefs under fuffering was fhewed to us in the most affecting example of thy Son, and thou taught me to follow him, and I faid " thy will O Father be done." Fourth day morning, being asked how he felt himfelf, he meekly answered, I don't know that I have flept this night, I feel the diforder making its progrefs, but my mind is mercifully preferved in ftillnefs and peace: fometime after he faid he was fenfible the pains of death muft be hard to bear, but if he escaped them now, he must sometime pass thro' them, and he did not know that he could be better prepared, but had no will in it. He faid he had fettled his outward affairs to his mind, had taken leave of his wife and family as never to return, leaving them to the divine protection; adding, and tho' I feel them near to me at this time, yet I freely give them up, having a hope that they will be provided for. And a little after faid, This trial is made eafier than I could have thought, my will being wholly taken away; for if I was anxious for the event it would have been harder, but I am not, and my mind enjoys a perfect calm.

In the night a young woman having given him fomething to drink, he faid, My child thou feems very kind to me a poor creature, the Lord will reward thee for it. Awhile after he cried out with great earneftnefs of fpirit, Oh my Father ! my Father ! and foon after he faid, Oh my Father ! my Father !

how comfortable art thou to my foul in this trying feafon. Being asked if he could take a little nourishment; after some pause he replied, my child I cannot tell what to fay to it; I feem nearly arrived where my foul fhall have reft from all its troubles. After giving in fomething to be inferted in his journal, he faid, I believe the Lord will now excufe me from exercifes of this kind; and I fee no work but one which is to be the laft wrought by me in this world, the meffenger will come that will release me from all these troubles; but it must be in the Lord's time, which I am waiting for. He faid he had laboured to do whatever was required, according to the ability received, in the remembrance of which he had peace; and tho' the diforder was ftrong at times, and would like a whirlwind come over his mind ; yet it had hitherto been kept fleady and center'd in everlafting love; adding, and if that be mercifully continued, I ask nor defire no more. Another time he faid, he had long had a view of vifiting this nation, and fometime before he came had a dream, in which he faw himfelf in the northern parts of it, and that the fpring of the gofpel was opened in him much as in the beginning of friends, fuch as George Fox and William Dewiberry, and he faw the different states of the people, as clear as he had ever feen flowers in a garden; but in his going along he was fuddenly ftopt, tho' he could not fee for what end; but looking looking towards home, fell into a flood of tears which waked him.

At another time he faid, my draught feemed ftrongeft towards the North, and I mentioned in my own monthly-meeting, that attending the quarterly-meeting at York, and being there looked like home to me. Fifth-day night, having repeatedly confented to take medicine with a view to fettle his ftomach, but without effect ; the friend then waiting on him, faid thro' diffrefs, what fhall I do now ? He anfwered with great compositive, Rejoice ever more, and in every thing give thanks; but added a little after, this is fometimes hard to come at.

Sixth-day morning he broke forth early in fupplication on this wife, O Lord it was thy power that enabled me to forfake fin in my youth, and I have felt thy bruifes for difobedience ; but as I bowed under them thou healed me, continuing a father and a friend; I feel thy power now, and I beg that in the approaching trying moment Thou wilt keep my heart stedfast unto thee. Upon his giv, ing directions to a friend concerning fome little things, the faid I will take care, but hope thou wilt live to order them thyfelf; he reply'd, my hope is in Chrift, and tho' I may feem a little better, a change in the diforder may foon happen, and my little ftrength be diffolved, and if it fo happens, I shall be gathered to my everlafting reft. On her faying the did not doubt that, but could not help mourning to see fo many faithful fervants vants removed at fo low a time; he faid all good cometh from the Lord, whofe power is the fame, and can work as he fees beft. The fame day he had given directions about wrapping his corpfe; perceiving a friend to weep, he faid I would rather thou wouldft guard againft weeping for me, my fifter, I forrow not, the'I have had fome painful conflicts, but now they feem over and matters well fettled, and I look at the face of my dear redeemer, for fweet is his voice and his countenance is comely.

First-day, fourth of the tenth month, being very weak and in general difficult to be understood, he uttered a few words in commemoration of the Lord's goodnefs; and added, how tenderly have I been waited on in this time of affliction, in which I may fay in Job's words, Tedious days and wearifome nights are appointed unto me, and how many are spending their time and money in vanity and superfluities, while thousands and tens of thousands want the neceflaries of life, who might be relieved by them, and their distress at such a time as this, in some degree fostened by the administring fuitable things.

Second-day morning the apothecary who appeared very anxious to affift him, being. prefent, he queried about the probability of fuch a load of matter being thrown off his weak body, and the apothecary making fome remarks implying he thought it might; he fpoke with an audible voice on this wife, My

My dependance is on the Lord Jefus, who I truft will forgive my fins, which is all I hope for, and if it be his will to raife up this body again, I am content; and if to die, I am refigned; and if thou canft not be eafy without trying to affift nature, I fubmit : after which his throat was fo much affected, that it was very difficult for him to fpeak fo as to be underftood, and frequently wrote when he wanted any thing. About the fecond hour on fourth-day morning he afked for pen and ink, and at feveral times with much difficulty wrote thus, I believe my being here is in the wifdom of Chrift, I know not as to life or death.

About a quarter before fix the fame morning he feemed to fall into an eafy fleep, which continued about half an hour, when feeming to awake, he breathed a few times with more difficulty, and expired without figh, groan, or ftruggle.

INTRODUCTION.

CUSTOMS generally approved, and opinions received by youth from their fuperiors, become like the natural produce of a foil, efpecially when they are fuited to favourite inclinations: but as the judgments of God are without partiality, by which the flate of the foul must be tried, it would be the highest wifdom to forego customs and popular opinions, and try the treasures of the foul by the infallible standard truth.

Natural affection needs a careful examination: operating upon us in a foft manner, it kindles defires of love and tendernefs, and there is danger of taking it for fomething higher. To me me it appears an inflinct like that which inferior creatures have; each of them, we see, by the ties of nature, love felf best; that which is a part of felf, they love by the same tie or instinct. In them it, in some measure, does the offices of reason, by which, among other things, they watchfully keep, and orderly feed their helpless offspring. Thus natural affection appears to be a branch of felf-love, good in the animal race, in us likewise, with proper limitations; but otherwise is productive of evil, by exciting desires to promote fome by means prejudicial to others.

Our bleffed Saviour feems to give a check to this irregular fondness in nature, and, at the Jame time, a precedent for us: " Who is my " mother, and who are my brethren?" thereby intimating, that the earthly ties of relation-Ship, are, comparatively, inconsiderable to such, who, thro' a steady course of obedience, have come to the happy experience of the spirit of God bearing witness with their spirits that they are his children : -- " And he stretched forth " his hands towards his difciples, and faid, " Behold my mother, and my brethren : For " whofoever shall do the will of my Fa-" ther which is in heaven (arrives at the more noble part of true relation (hip.) cording to the agreeableness of things on principles unalterable and in themselves perfect.

If endeavouring to have my children eminent, among ft men after my death, be that which no reafons grounded on those principles can be brought to support; then to be temperate in my pursuit after gain, and to keep always within the bounds of those principles, is an indispensable duty, and to depart from it, a dark unfruitful toil.

In our present condition, to love our children is necdful; but except this love proceeds from the true heavenly principle which sees beyond earthly treasures, it will rather be injurious than of any real advantage to them: where the fountain is corrupt, the streams must necessarily be impure.

That important injunction of our Saviour, Matt. vi. 33. with the Promife annexed, contains a fhort but comprehensive view of our duty and happines:—If then the business of mankind in this life, is, to first feek another; if this cannot be done, but by attending to the means; if a fummary of the means is, Not to do that to another which, in like circumstances, we would not have done unto us, then these are points of moment, and worthy of our most ferious confideration.

What I write on this fubject is with reluctance, and the hints given are in as general terms as my concern would allow: I know it is a point about which, in all its branches, men that appear to aim well are not generally agreed;

MATT. XXV. 40:

Forasinuch as ye did it to the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me:)

S many times there are different motives to the fame actions; and one does that from a generous heart, which another does for felfifh ends.—The like may be faid in this cafe.

There are various circumftances amongft them that keep negroes, and different ways by which they fall under their care; and, I doubt not, there are many well-difpofed perfons amongft them who defire rather to manage wifely and juftly in this difficult matter, than to make gain of it.

But the general difadvantage which thefe poor Africans lie under in an enlight'ned chriftian country, having often filled me with real faduefs, and been like undigefted matter on my mind, I now think it my duty, thro' divine aid, to offer fome thoughts thereon to the confideration of others.

When

When we remember that all nations are of one blood, Gen iii. 20. that in this world we are but fojourners, that we are fubject to the like afflictions and infirmities of body, the like diforders and frailties in mind, the like temptations, the fame death, and the fame judgment, and, that the all-wife Being is Judge and Lord over us all, it feems to raife an idea of a general brotherhood, and a difpolition easy to be touched with a feeling of each others afflictions: but when we forget those things, and look chiefly at our outward circumftances, in this and fome ages paft, conftantly retaining in our minds the distinction betwixt us and them, with refpect to our knowledge and improvement in things divine, natural and artificial, our breafts being apt to be filled with fond no-tions of fuperiority, there is danger of err-ing in our conduct toward them.

We allow them to be of the fame fpecies with ourfelves; the odds is, we are in a higher flation, and enjoy greater favours than they. And when it is thus, that our heavenly Father endoweth fome of his children with diftinguished gifts, they are intended for good ends; but if those thus gifted are thereby lifted up above their brethren, not confidering themselves as debtors to the weak, nor behaving themselves as faithful ftewards, none, who judge impartially can fuppose them free from ingratitude.

When a people dwell under the liberal difribution of favours from heaven, it behoves hoves them carefully to infpect their ways, and confider the purpofes for which those favours were bestowed, left, thro' forgetfulness of God, and misufing his gifts, they incur his heavy displeasure, whose judgments are just and equal, who exalteth and humbleth to the dust as he see the meet.

It appears, by Holy Record, that men under high favours have been apt to err in their opinions concerning others. Thus Ifrael, according to the defcription of the prophet, Ifa. lxv. 5. when exceedingly corrupted and degenerated, yet remembered they were the chofen people of God; and could fay, "Stand " by thyfelf, come not near me, for I am ho-" lier than thou." That this was no chance language, but their common opinion of other people, more fully appears, by confidering the circumftances which attended when God was beginning to fulfil his precious promifes concerning the gathering of the Gentiles.

The Most-High, in a vision, undeceived Peter, first prepared his heart to believe; and, at the house of Cornelius, shewed him of a certainty that God was no respecter of persons.

The effusion of the Holy Choft upon a people, with whom they, the Jewish chriftians would not fo much as eat, was strange to them: All they of the circumcifion were astonished to fee it; and the apostles and brethren of Judea contended with Peter about it, till he, having rehearsed the whole matter, and fully shewn that the Father's love S 2 was was unlimited, they are thereat ftruck with admiration, and cry out, " Then hath God " alfo to the Gentiles granted repentance " unto life !"

The opinion of peculiar favours being confined to them, was deeply rooted, or elfe the above inftance had been lefs ftrange to them, for thefe reafons: Firft, They were generally acquainted with the writings of the prophets, by whom this time was repeatedly fpoken of, and pointed at. Secondly, Our bleffed Lord fhortly before exprefly faid, " I " have other fheep, not of this fold, them " alfo muft I bring," &c. Laftly, His words to them after his refurrection, at the very time of his afcenfion, " Ye fhall be witneffes " to me, not only in Jerufalem, Judea, and " Samaria, but to the uttermoft parts of the " earth."

Those concurring circumstances, one would think, might have raifed a strong expectation of seeing such a time; yet, when it came, it proved matter of offence and astonishment.

To confider mankind otherwife than brethren, to think favours are peculiar to one nation, and exclude others, plainly fuppofes a darknefs in the underftanding: for as God's love is univerfal, fo where the mind is fufficiently influenced by it, it begets a likenefs of itfelf, and the heart is enlarged towards all men. Again, to conclude a people froward, perverfe, and worfe by nature than others (who ungratefully receive favours, and apply them to bad ends) this will excite a behaviour a behaviour toward them unbecoming the excellence of true religion.

To prevent fuch error, let us calmly confider their circumstance; and, the better to do it, make their cafe ours. Suppofe, then, that our anceftors and we had been exposed to conftant fervitude, in the more fervile and inferior employments of life; that we had been deftitute of the help of reading and good company; that amongst ourfelves we had had few wife and pious inftructors ; that the religious amongst our superiors feldom took notice of us; that while others, in cafe, have plentifully heaped up the fruit of our labour, we had received barely enough to relieve nature; and being wholly at the command of others, had generally been treated as a contemptible, ignorant part of mankind : fhould we, in that cafe, be lefs abject than they now are? Again, If oppreffion be fo hard to bear, that a wife man is made mad by it, Eccl. vii. 7. then a feries of those things altering the behaviour and manners of a people, is what may reafonably be expected.

When our property is taken contrary to our mind, by means appearing to us unjuft, it is only through divine influence, and the enlargement of heart from thence proceeding, that we can love our reputed oppreffors: if the Negroes fall thort in this, an uneafy, if not a difconfolate difpolition, will be awakened, and remain like feeds in their minds, producing floth and many other habits bits appearing odious to us; with which, being free men, they, perhaps, had not been chargeable. Thefe, and other circumstances, rightly confidered, will leffen that too great difparity, which fome make between us and them.

Integrity of heart hath appeared in fome of them; fo that, if we continue in the word of Chrift (previous to discipleship, John viii. 31.) and our conduct towards them be fea-. foned with his love, we may hope to fee the good effect of it: the which, in a good degree, is the cafe with fome into whole hands they have fallen: but that too many treat them otherwife, not feeming confcious of any neglect, is, alas ! too evident.

When felf-love prefides in our minds, our opinions are biassed in our own favour; in this condition, being concerned with a people fo fituated, that they have no voice to plead their own caufe, there's danger of ufing ourfelves to an undifturbed partiality, till, by long cuftom, the mind becomes reconciled with it, and the judgment itfelf infected.

To humbly apply to God for wifdom, that we may thereby be enabled to fee things as they are, and ought to be, is very needful; hereby the hidden things of darkness may be brought to light, and the judgment made clear : we shall then confider mankind as brethren. Though different degrees and a variety of qualifications and abilities, one dependant on another, be admitted, yet high thoughts thoughts will be laid afide, and all men treated as becometh the fons of one father, agreeable to the doctrine of Chrift Jefus.

"" He hath laid down the best criterion. by which mankind ought to judge of their own conduct, and others judge for them of theirs, one towards another, viz. " What-" foever ye would that men fhould do unto you, do ye even fo to them." I take it, that all men by nature, are equally entitled to the equity of this rule, and under the indispensable obligations of it. One man ought not to look upon another man, or fociety of men, as fo far beneath him; but that he fhould put himfelf in their place, in all his actions towards them, and bring all to this teft, viz. How should I approve of this conduct, were I in their circumstance, and they in mine?" A. Arfcot's Confiderations, p. III. fol. 107.

This doctrine being of a moral unchangeable nature, hath been likewife inculcated in the former difpenfation; "If a ftranger fo-"journ with thee in your land, ye fhall not "vex him; but the ftranger that dwelleth "with you, fhall be as one born amongft "you, and thou fhalt love him as thyfelf," Lev. xix. 33, 34. Had thefe people come voluntary and dwelt amongft us, to have called them ftrangers would be proper; and their being brought by force, with regret, and a languifhing mind, may well raife compafion in a heart rightly difpofed : but there is nothing in fuch treatment, which upon a wife and and judicious confideration, will any ways leften their right of being treated as ftrangers. If the treatment which many of them meet with, be rightly examined and compared with those precepts, "Thou shalt not "vex him nor oppress him; he shall be as "one born amongst you, and thou shalt love "him as thyself," Lev. xix. 33. Deut. xxvii. 19. there will appear an important difference betwixt them.

It may be objected there is cost of purchafe, and rifque of their lives to them who poffels 'em, and therefore needful that they make the best use of their time : in a practice just and reasonable, fuch objections may have weight; but if the work be wrong from the beginning, there is little or no force in them. If I purchase a man who hath never forfeited his liberty, the natural right of freedom is in him; and fhall I keep him and his posterity in fervitude and ignorance? " How should I approve of this conduct, were I in his circumstances, and he in mine?" It may be thought, that to treat them as we would willingly be treated, our gain by them would be inconfiderable : and it were, in divers respects, better that there were none in our country.

We may further confider, that they are now amongft us, and those of our nation the cause of their being here; that whatsoever, difficulty accrues thereon, we are justly chargeable with, and to bear all inconveniencies attending it, with a ferious and weighty concern of mind to do our duty by them, is the beft we can do. To feek a remedy by continuing the opprefilion, becaufe we have power to do it, and fee others do it, will, I apprehend, not be doing as we would be done by.

How deeply foever men are involved in the most exquisite difficulties, fincerity of heart, and upright walking before God, freely submitting to his providence, is the most fure remedy: He only is able to relieve, not only perfons, but nations, in their greatest calamities.

David, in a great ftrait, when the fenfe of his paft error, and the full expectation of an impending calamity, as the reward of it, were united to the aggravating his diftrefs, after fome deliberation, faith, " Let me fall " now into the hands of the Lord, for very " great are his mercies; let me not fall in-" to the hand of man." I Chron. xxi. 13.

To act continually with integrity of heart, above all narrow or felfifh motives, is a fure token of our being partakers of that falvation which "God hath appointed for walls "and bulwarks," Ifa. v. 26. Rom. xv. 8. and is, beyond all contradiction, a more happy fituation than can ever be promifed by the utmost reach of art and power united, not proceeding from heavenly wifdom.

A fupply to nature's lawful wants, joined with a peaceful, humble mind, is the trueft happines in this life; and if here we arrive to this, and remain to walk in the path of the

the juft, our cafe will be truly happy : and though herein we may part with, or mifs of fome glaring fhews of riches, and leave our children little elfe but wife inftructions, a good example, and the knowledge of fome honeft employment; thefe, with the bleffing of Providence, are fufficient for their happinefs, and are more likely to prove fo, than laying up treasures for them, which are often rather a fnare, than any real benefit ; efpecially to them, who, inftead of being exampled to temperance, are in all things taught to prefer the getting of riches, and to eye the temporal diftinctions they give, as the principal bufinefs of this life. Thefe readily overlook the true happiness of man, as it refults from the enjoyment of all things in the fear of God, and, miferably fubftituting an inferior good, dangerous in the acquir-ing, and uncertain in the fruition, they are fubject to many difappointments, and every fweet carries its fting.

It is the conclusion of our bleffed Lord and his apofles, as appears by their lives and doctrines, that the higheft delights of fenfe, or moft pleafing objects visible, ought ever to be accounted infinitely inferior to that real intellectual happines fuited to man in his primitive innocence, and now to be found in true renovation of mind; and that the comforts of our present life, the things most grateful to us, ought always to be received with temperance, and never made the chief objects of our defire, hope, 'or love: but that our

our whole heart and affections be principally looking to that " city, which hath founda-" tions, whofe maker and builder is God." Did we fo improve the gifts beftowed on us, that our children might have an education fuited to thefe doctrines, and our example to confirm it, we might rejoice in hopes of their being heirs of an inheritance incorruptible.

This inheritance, as chriftians, we efteen the most valuable; and how then can we fail to defire it for our children? O that we were confistent with ourselves, in pursuing means neceffary to obtain it!

It appears, by experience, that where children are educated in fulnefs, eafe and idlenefs, evil habits are more prevalent, than in common amongft fuch who are prudently employed in the neceffary affairs of life: and if children are not only educated in the way of fo great temptation, but have alfo the opportunity of lording it over their fellowcreatures, and being mafters of men in their childhood, how can we hope otherwife than that their tender minds will be poffeffed with thoughts too high for them ? which, by continuance, gaining firength, will prove, like a flow current, gradually feparating them from (or keeping from acquaintance with) that humility and meeknefs in which alone lafting happinefs can be enjoyed.

Man is born to labour, and experience abundantly fheweth, that it is for our good: but where the powerful lay the burthen on the inferior, without affording a chriftian education, education, and fuitable opportunity of improving the mind, and a treatment which we, in their cafe, fhould approve, that themfelves may live at eafe, and fare fumptuoufly, and lay up riches for their portunity, this feems to contradict the defign of Providence, and, I doubt, is fometimes the effect of a perverted mind: for while the life of one is made grievous by the rigour of another, it entails mifery on both.

Amongst the manifold works of Providence, difplayed in the different ages of the world, these which follow (with many others) may afford instruction.

Abraham was called of God to leave his country and kindred, to fojourn amongft ftrangers: through famine, and danger of death, he was forced to flee from one kingdom to another: he, at length, not only had affurance of being the father of many nations, but became a mighty prince. Genefis xxiii. 6.

Remarkable were the dealings of God with Jacob in a low eftate, the just fense he retained of them after his advancement, appears by his words : " I am not worthy of " the least of all thy mercies." Genesis xxxii. 10. xlviii. 15.

The numerous afflictions of Joseph are very fingular; the particular providence of God therein, no less manifest: he, at length, became governor of Egypt, and famous for wisdom and v.rtue.

The

The feries of troubles David paffed thro', few amongst us are ignorant of; and yet he afterwards became as one of the great men of the earth.

Some evidences of the divine wifdom ap-pears in those things, in that fuch who are intended for high stations, have first been very low and dejected, that truth might be fealed on their hearts; and that the characters there imprinted by bitternefs and adverfity, might in after years remain, fuggesting compassionate ideas, and, in their profperity, quicken their regard to those in the like condition : which yet further appears in the cafe of Ifrael : they were well acquainted with grievous fufferings, a long and rigorous fervitude; then, thro' many notable events, were made chief amongst the nations : to them we find a repetition of precepts to the purpose abovesaid: though, for ends agreeable to infinite wifdom, they were chofe as a peculiar people for a time; yet the Most High acquaints them, that his love is not confined, but extends to the ftranger; and, to excite their compassion, reminds them of times past, " Ye were strangers in the land " of Egypt," Deut. x. 19. Again, " Thou " fhalt not opprefs a ftranger, for ye know " the heart of a ftranger, feeing ye were " ftrangers in the land of Egypt," Exod. xxiii. 9.

If we call to mind our beginning, fome of us may find a time, wherein our fathers were under under afflictions, reproaches, and manifold fufferings.

Refpecting our progrefs in this land, the time is fhort fince our beginning was finall and number few, compared with the native inhabitants. He that fleeps not by day nor night, hath watched over us, and kept us as the apple of his eye. His almighty arm hath been round about us, and faved us from dangers.

The wildernefs and folitary defarts in which our fathers paffed the days of their pilgrimage, are now turned into pleafant fields; the natives are gone from before us, and we established peaceably in the possession of the land, enjoying our civil and religious liberties; and, while many parts of the world have groaned under the heavy calamities of war, our habitation remains quiet, and our land fruitful.

When we trace back the fteps we have trodden, and fee how the Lord hath opened a way in the wildernefs for us, to the wife it will eafily appear, that all this was not done to be buried in oblivion; but to prepare a people for more fruitful returns, and the remembrance thereof, ought to humble us in profperity, and excite in us a chriftian benevolence towards our inferiors.

If we do not confider thefe things aright, but, through a flupid indolence, conceive views of intereft, feparate from the general good of the great brotherhood, and, in purtuance thereof, treat our inferiors with ri-gour, to increafe our wealth, and gain riches for our children; "What then shall we do "when God rifeth up? and when he vifit-"eth, what shall we answer him? did not "he that made us, make them? and did not "one fashion us in the womb?" Job xxxi. 13, 14.

To our great mafter we ftand or fall, to judge or condemn us as is most fuitable toh is wifdom or authority; my inclination is to perfuade, and intreat, and fimply give hints of my way of thinking.

If the chriftian religion be confidered, both refpecting its doctrines, and the happy influence which it hath on the minds and manners of all real chriftians, it looks reafonable to think, that the miraculous manifeftation thereof to the world, is a kindnefs beyond expression.

Are we the people thus favoured? are we they whofe minds are opened, influenced, and governed by the Spirit of Chrift, and thereby made fons of God? is it not a fair conclution, that we, like our heavenly Father, ought, in our degree, to be active in the fame great caufe, of the eternal happinefs of, at leaft, our whole families, and more, if thereto capacitated ?

If we, by the operation of the Spirit of Chrift, become heirs with him in the kingdom of his Father, and are redeemed from the alluring counterfeit joys of this world, and the joy of Chrift remain in us, to fuppofe that one remaining in this happy condition, dition, can, for the fake of earthly riches, not only deprive his fellow-creatures of the fweetness of freedom, (which, rightly used, is one of the greatest temporal bleffings) but therewith neglect using proper means, for their acquaintance with the Holy Scriptures, and the advantage of true religion, seems, at least, a contradiction to reason.

Whoever rightly advocates the caufe of fome, thereby promotes the good of all. The ftate of mankind was harmonious in the beginning, and though fin hath introduced difcord, yet, through the wonderful love of God, in Chrift Jefus our Lord, the way is open for our redemption, and means appointed to reftore us to primitive harmony. That if one fuffer by the unfaithfulnefs of another, the mind, the moft noble part of him that occasions the difcord, is thereby alienated from its true and real happinefs.

Our duty and intereft is infeparably united, and when we neglect or mifule our talents, we neceffarily depart from the heavenly fellowship, and are in the way to the greatest of evils.

Therefore to examine and prove ourfelves, to find what harmony the power prefiding in us bears with the divine nature, is a duty not more incumbent and neceffary, than it would be beneficial.

In Holy Writ the Divine Being faith of himfelf, "I am the Lord, which exercise "loving-kindnefs, judgment and righteouf-" nefs

" nefs in the earth; for in thefe things I de-" light, faith the Lord," Jer. ix. 24. Again, fpeaking in the way of man; to thew his compation to Ifrael, whole wickednefs had occafioned a calamity, and then being humbled under it, it is faid, " His foul was " grieved for their miferies," Judges x. 16. If we confider the life of our bleffed Saviour when on earth, as it is recorded by his followers, we fhall find, that one uniform defire for the eternal, and temporal good of mankind, difcovered itfelf in all his actions.

If we observe men, both apostles and others, in many different ages, who have really come to the unity of the Spirit, and the fellowship of the faints, there still appears the like disposition, and in them the defire of the real happines of mankind, has outbalanced the defire of ease; liberty, and, many times, life itself.

If upon a true fearch, we find that our natures are fo far renewed, that to exercife righteoufnefs and loving-kindnefs (according to our ability) towards all men, without refpect of perfons, is eafy to us, or is our delight; if our love be fo orderly, and regular, that he who doeth the will of our Father, who is in heaven, appears in our view, to be our neareft relation, our brother, and fifter, and mother; if this be our cafe, there is a good foundation to hope, that the bleffing of God will fweeten our treafures during our ftay in this life, and our memory be favory, when we are entered into reft.

274 CONSIDERATIONS, &c. O O

To conclude, 'Tis a truth most certain, that a life guided by wildom from above, agreeable with justice, equity, and mercy, is throughout confistent and amiable, and truly beneficial to fociety; the ferenity and calmnefs of mind in it, affords an unparallelled comfort in this life, and the end of it is bleffed.

And, no lefs true, that they, who in the midft of high favours, remain ungrateful, and under all the advantages that a chriftian can defire, are felfifh, earthly, and fenfual, do mifs the true fountain of happinefs, and wander in a maze of dark anxiety, where all their treafures are infufficient to quiet their minds : hence, from an infatiable craving, they neglect doing good with what they have acquired, and too often add opprefilion to vanity, that they may compafs more.

ALL our actions are of like nature with their root; and the Most High weigheth them more skilfully than Men can weigh them one for another.

I believe that one Supreme Being made and fupports the world; nor can I wor/hip any other Deity without being an idolater, and guilty of wickedness. He

Many nations have believed in, and worshipped a plurality of deities; but I do not believe they were therefore all wicked. Idolatry indeed is wickedness; but it is the thing, not the name, which is so. Real idolatry is to pay that adoration to a creature, which is known to be due only to the true God.

He who professet to believe one Almighty Creator, and in his Son Jefus Christ, and is yet more intent on the honours, profits and friendships of the world, than he is in singleness of heart to ftand faithful to the christian religion, is in the channel of idolatry; while the Gentile, who, under some mistaken opinions, is notwithstanding established in the true principle of virtue, and humbly adores an almighty power, may be of that number who fear God, and work righteousness.

I believe the bishop of Rome assumes a power, that does not belong to any officer in the church of Christ; and if I should knowingly do any thing, tending to strengthen him in that capacity, it would be great iniquity. There are many thousands of people, who by their profession acknowledge him to be the representative of sefus Christ on earth; and to say that none of them are upright in heart, would be contrary to my fentiments.

Men who fincerely apply their minds to true virtue, and find an inward fupport from above, by which all vicious inclinations are made fubject; that they love God fincerely, and prefer the real good of mankind univerfally to their own own private intereft; though these, through the firength of education and tradition, may remain under some speculative and great errors, it would be uncharitable to say, that therefore God rejects them.—He who creates, supports and gives understanding to all men, his knowledge and goodness is superior to the various cases and circumflances of his creatures, which to us appear the most difficult.

The apofiles and primitive christians did not censure all the Gentiles as wicked men, Rom. ii. 14. Col. iii. 11. but as they were favoured with a gift to discern things more clearly, respecting the worship of the true God, they with much firmness declared against the worshipping of Idols; and with true patience endured many sufferings, on that account.

Great numbers of faithful Protestants have contended for the truth, in opposition to papal errors; and with true fortitude laid down their lives in the conflict, without faying, That no man was faved who made profession of that religion.

While we have no right to keep men as fervants for term of life, but that of fuperior power; to do this, with defign by their labour to profit ourfelves and our families, I believe is wrong; but I do not believe that all who have kept flaves, have therefore been chargeable with guilt. If their motives thereto were free from felfiftnefs, and their flaves content, they were a fort of freemen; which I believe hath fometimes been the cafe.

Yet others, who live in the fame spirit of charity, from a clear convincement, may see the relation of one thing to another, and the necessary tendency of each; and hence it may be abfolutely binding on them to defift from some parts of conduct, which some good men have been in.

NEGROES.

The start the SECOND. We enter the SECOND.

A S fome in moft religious focieties amongft the Englifh are concerned in importing or purchafing the inhabitants of Africa as flaves; and as the profeffors of chriftianity of feveral other nations do the like; thefe circumftances tend to make people lefs apt to examine the practice fo clofely as they would, if fuch a thing had not been, but was now propofed to be entered upon. It is however our duty, and what concerns us individually, as creatures accountable to our Creator, to employ rightly the underftanding which he hath given us, in humbly endeavouring to be acquainted with his will concerning us, and with the nature and tendency of thofe things which we practife: for as juffice remains to be juftice, fo many people, of reputation in the world world, joining with wrong things, do not excufe others in joining with them, nor make the confequence of their proceedings, lefs dreadful in the final iffue, than it would be otherwife.

Where unrighteoufnefs is juftified from one age to another, it is like dark matter gathering into clouds over us. We may know that this gloom will remain till the caufe be removed by a reformation, or change of times; and may feel a defire, from a love of equity, to fpeak on the occafion; yet where error is fo ftrong, that it may not be fpoken againft, without fome profpect of inconvenience to the fpeaker, this difficulty is likely to operate on our weaknefs, and quench the good defires in us; except we dwell fo fteadily under the weight of it, as to be made willing to " endure hardnefs" on that account.

Where men exert their talents againft vices generally accounted fuch, the ill effects whereof are prefently perceived in a government, all men who regard their own temporal good, are likely to approve the work. But when that which is inconfiftent with perfect equity, hath the law, or countenance of the great in its favour, though the tendency thereof be quite contrary to the true happiness of mankind in an equal, if not greater, degree, than many things accounted reproachful to christians; yet, as these ill effects are not generally perceived, they who labour to diffuade from fuch things, which people people believe accord with their interest, have many difficulties to encounter.

The repeated charges, which God gave to his prophets, imply the danger they were in of erring on this Hand. " Be not afraid of " their faces; for I am with thee, to deliver " thee, faith the Lord." Jer. i. 8. " Speak " all the words that I command thee to " fpeak to them; diminifh not a word." Jer. xxvi. 2. " And thou, fon of man, be not " afraid of them, nor difmayed at their " looks. Speak my words to them, whether " they will hear or forbear." Ezek. ii. 6, 7.

Under an apprehension of duty, I offer fome further confiderations on this fubject, having endeavoured fome years to confider it candidly. I have observed people of our own colour, whofe abilities have been inferior to the affairs which relate to their convenient fubfistence, who have been taken care of by others, and the profit of fuch work as they could do, applied toward their fupport.-I believe there are fuch amongst negroes; and that fome people, in whofe hands they are, keep them with no view of outward profit, do not confider them as black men, who, as fuch, ought to ferve white men; but account them perfons who have need of guardians, and as fuch take care of them: yet where equal care is taken in all parts of education, I do not apprehend cafes of this fort are likely to occur more frequently amongst one fort of people than another.

It looks to me that the flave trade was founded, and hath generally been carried on, in a wrong fpirit; that the effects of it are detrimental to the real profperity of our country; and will be more fo, except we ceafe from the common motives of keeping them, and treat them in future agreeable to truth and pure juffice. Negroes may be imported, who, for their

Negroes may be imported, who, for their cruelty to their countrymen, and the evil difpofition of their minds, may be unfit to be at liberty; and if we, as lovers of righteoufnefs, undertake the management of them, we fhould have a full and clear knowledge of their crimes, and of those circumftances which might operate in their favour; but the difficulty of obtaining this is fo great, that we have great reason to be cautious therein. But, should it plainly appear that absolute subjection was a condition the most proper for the perfon who is purchased, yet the innocent children ought not to be made flaves, because their parents finned.

We have account in holy fcripture of fome families fuffering, where mention is only made of the heads of the family committing wickednefs; and it is likely that the degenerate Jews, mifunderstanding fome occurrences of this kind, took occasion to charge God with being unequal; fo that a faying became common, " The Fathers have eaten four grapes, " and the children's teeth are fet on edge." Jeremiah and Ezekiel, two of the infpired prophets, who lived near the fame time, were concerned concerned to correct this error. Ezekiel is large on the fubject. First, he reproves them for their error. "What mean ye, that ye "do fo," chap. xviii. verse 2. "As I live; " faith the Lord God, ye fhall not have oc-" cafion any more to use this proverb in If-" rael." The words, " any more," have reference to time past; intimating, that tho' they had not rightly understood some things they had heard or seen, and thence supposed the proverb to be well grounded; yet henceforth they might know of a certainty, that the ways of God are all equal; that as fure as the Moft High liveth, fo fure men are only answerable for their own fins.-He thus fums up the matter, ver. 20. " The foul that " finneth, it shall die. The fon shall not bear " the iniquity of the father ; neither shall the " father bear the iniquity of the fon. The ". righteousness of the righteous shall be up-" on him; and the wickedness of the wicked " fhall be upon him.

Where men are wicked, they commonly are a means of corrupting the fucceeding age; and thereby haften those outward columities, which fall on nations, when their iniquities are full.

Men may purfue means which are not agreeable to perfect purity, with a view to increafe the wealth and happinefs of their offfpring, and thereby make the way of virtue more difficult to them. And though the ill example of a parent, or a multitude, does not excufe a man in doing evil, yet the mind being ing early impressed with vicious notions and practices, and nurtured up in ways of getting treasure, which are not the ways of truth; this wrong fpirit getting first possesfion, and being thus ftrengthened, frequently prevents due attention to the true fpirit of wifdom, fo that they exceed in wickedness those who lived before them. And in this channel, though parents labour, as they think, to forward the happiness of their children, it proves a means of forwarding their calamity. This being the cafe in the age next before the grievous calamity in the fiege of Jerufalem, and carrying Judah captive to Babylon, they might fay with propriety, This came upon us, becaufe our fathers forfook God, and becaufe we did worfe than our fathers. See Jer. vii. 26.

As the generation next before them inwardly turned away from God, who yet waited to be gracious; and as they in that age contineed in those things which neceffarily separated from perfect goodness, growing more flubborn, till the judgments of God were poured out upon them; they might properly fay, "Our fathers have finned, and we have "borne their iniquities." Lam. v. 7. And yet, wicked as their fathers were, had they not flucceeded them in their wickedness, they had not borne their iniquities.

To fuppofe it right, that an innocent man fhall at this day be excluded from the common rules of juffice; be deprived of that liberty, which is the natural right of human greatures; and be a flave to others during life, on account of a fin committed by his immediate parents; or a fin committed by Ham, the fon of Noah; is a fuppolition too grofs to be admitted into the mind of any perfon, who fincerely defires to be governed by folid principles.

It is alledged, in favour of the practice, that Joshua made flaves of the Gibeonites.

What men do by the command of God, and what comes to país as a confequence of their neglect, are different; fuch as the latter cafe now mentioned was.

. It was the express command of the Almighty to Ifrael, concerning the inhabitants of the promifed land, " Thou shalt make no " covenant with them, nor with their Gods: " They shall not dwell in thy land," Exod. xxiii. 32. Those Gibeonites came craftily, telling Joshua, that they were come from a far country ; that their elders had fent them to make a league with the people of Ifrael; and as an evidence of their being foreigners, fhewed their old cloaths, &c. "And the " men took of their victuals, and afked not " counfel at the mouth of the Lord; and "Jofhua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live ; and "the princes fware to them." Jofh. xcvi. 14, 15.

When the imposition was discovered, the congregation murmured against the princes: "But all the princes faid to all the congrega-"tion, we have fworn to them by the Lord "God of Israel; now therefore we may not "touch them; we will even let them live, "the left

" left wrath be upon us; but let them be hewers of wood, and drawers of water un-

" to the congregation on and a chart dress Omitting to afk counfel, involved them in great difficulty. The Gibconites were of those cities, of which the Lord faid, "Thou shalt " fave alive nothing that breatheth ;" and of the stock of the Hivites, concerning whom he commanded by name, "Thou shalt finite " them, and utterly deftroy them: Thou " fhalt make no covenant with them, nor " fhew mercy unto them," Deut. vii. 1. Thus Joshua and the princes, not knowing them. had made a league with them, to let them live; and in this ftrait they refolve to make them fervants. Joshua and the princes fuf-pected them to be deceivers : " Peradventure " you dwell amongft us :, and how shall we " make a league with you ?" Which words fhew, that they remembered the command before mentioned; and yet did not enquire at the mouth of the Lord, as Moses directed. Joshua, when he gave him a charge refpecting his duty as chief man among that people. Numb. xxvii. 21. By this omiffion things became fo fituated, that Joshua and the princes could not execute the judgments of God on them, without violating the oath which they had made.

Mofes did amifs at the waters of Meribah; and doubtlefs he foon repented; for the Lord was with him. And it is likely that Jofhua was deeply humbled, under a fenfe of his omiffion; for it appears that God continued him himmin his office, and fpared the lives of those people, for the sake of the league and oath made in his name.

The wickedness of these people was great, and they worthy to die, or perfect justice had not passed fentence of death upon them; and as their execution was prevented by this league and oath, they appear content to be fervants: " As it feemeth good and right unto thee to " do unto us, do.

These criminals, instead of death, had the fentence of fervitude pronounced on them, in these words, " Now therefore ye are cursed; " and there shall none of you be freed from " being bondmen," and hewers of wood, " and drawers of water for the house of my " God."

We find, Deut. xx. 10. that there were cities far diftant from Canaan, against which Ifrael went to battle; unto whom they were to proclaim peace, and if the inhabitants made answer of peace, and opened their gates, they were not to destroy them, but make them tributaries.

The children of Ifrael were then the Lord's hoft, and executioners of his judgments on people hardened in wickednefs.—They were not to go to battle, but by his appointment. The men who were chief in his army, had their inftructions from the Almighty; fometimes immediately, and fometimes by the miniftry of angels. Of thefe, amongst others, were Moses, Joshua, Othniel, and Gideon; fee Exod. iii. 2. and xviii. 19. Josh. v. 13. Thefe

These people far off from Canaan, against whom Ifrael was fent to battle, were so corrupt, that the creator of the universe faw it good to change their fituation; and in case of their opening their gates, and coming under tribute, this their subjection, though probably more mild than absolute flavery, was to last little or no longer than while Ifrael remained in the true spirit of government.

It was pronounced by Mofes the prophet, as a confequence of their wickednefs, "The "ftranger that is within thee fhall get above "thee very high; and thou fhalt come down "very low: he fhall be the head, and thou "the tail." Deut. xxviii. 43, 44.

This we find in fome meafure verified in their being made tributaries to the Moabites, Midianites, Amorites and Philiftines.

It is alledged in favour of the practice of flave-keeping; that the Jews by their law made flaves of the Heathen, Levit. xxv: 45: "Moreover, of the children of the ftrangers " that do fojourn amongft you, of them fhall " ye buy, and of their children, which are " with you, which they begat in your land; " and they fhall be your pofleffion; and you " fhall take them as an inheritance for your " children after you, to inherit them as a " poffeffion, they fhall be your bondmen for " ever."——It is difficult for us to have any certain knowledge of the mind of Mofes, in regard to keeping flaves, any other way than by looking upon him as a true fervant of God, whofe mind and conduct were regulated by

thority. Abraham had fervants born in his houfe, and bought with his money: "And the Al-"mighty faid of Abraham, I know him, "that he will order his houfe after him." Which implies, that he was as a father, an inftructor, and a good governor over his people.—And Mofes, confidered as a man of God, muft neceffarily have had a profpect of fome real advantage in the ftrangers and heathens being fervants to the Ifraelites for a time.

As mankind had received and eftablifhed many erroneous opinions and hurtful cuftoms, their living and converfing with the Jews, while the Jews ftood faithful to their principles, might be helpful to remove thofe errors, and reform their manners. ——But for men, with private views, to affume an abfolute power over the perfons and properties of others; and continue it from age to age in the line of natural generation, without regard to the virtues and vices of their fucceffors, as it is manifeftly contrary to true univerfal love, and attended with great evils, there requires the cleareft evidence to beget a belief in us, that Mofes intended that the ftrangers fhould as fuch be flaves to the lews.

He directed them to buy ftrangers and fojourners.—It appears that there were ftrangers in lfrael who were free men; and confidering with what tendernefs and humanity the Jews, by their law, were obliged to ufe their fervants, and what care was to be taken to inftruct them in the true religion, it is not unlikely that fome ftrangers in poverty and diftrefs were willing to enter into bonds to ferve the Jews as long as they lived; and in fuch cafe the Jews, by their law, had a right to their fervice during life. When the awl was bored through the ear

When the awl was bored through the ear of the Hebrew fervant, the text faith, "He "fhall ferve for ever;" yet we do not fuppofe that by the word "for ever," it was intended that none of his pofterity fhould afterwards be free; when it is faid in regard to the ftrangers which they bought, "They "fhall be your poffeffion," it may be well underftood to mean only the perfons fo purchafed; all preceding relates to buying them; and what follows, to the continuance of their fervice, "You fhall take them as an inhe-"ritance to your children after you; they "fhall be your bondmen for ever." It may be well underftood to ftand limited to thofe they purchafed.

they purchafed. Mofes, directing Aaron and his fons to wash their hands and feet, when they went into the tabernacle of the congregation, faith, " It shall be a statute for ever to them, even " to him and his feed throughout all gene-" rations." And to express the continuance of the law, it was his common language, " It shall be a statute for ever throughout vour generations." So that had he intended the posterity of the strangers so purchased. to continue in flavery to the Jews, it looks likely that he would have used fome terms clearly to express it." The Jews undoubtedly had flaves, whom they kept as fuch from one age to another; but that this was agreeable to the genuine defign of their infpired lawgiver, is far from being a clear cafe.

Making conftructions of the law contrary to the true meaning of it, was common a-mongst that people.——Samuel's fons took bribes, and perverted judgment.——Ifaiah complained that they justified the wicked for reward. ---- Zephaniah, cotemporary with Jeremiah, on account of the injustice of the civil magistrates, declared that those judges were evening wolves; and that the priefts did violence to the law.

Jeremiah acquaints us, that the priefts cried peace, peace, when there was no peace; by which means the people grew bold in their wickedness; and having committed abominations, were not ashamed; but, thro' wrong constructions of the law, they justified themfelves, and boaftingly faid "We are " wife; and the law of the Lord is with us." These corruptions continued till the days of our Saviour, who told the Pharifees, "You " have made the commandment of God of " none effect through your tradition."

Thus it appears that they corrupted the law of Mofes; nor is it unlikely that among many others this was one; for oppreffing the U 2 ftrangers ftrangers was a heavy charge against the Jews, and very often strongly represented by the Lord's faithful prophets.

That the liberty of man was, by the infpired law-giver, efteemed precious, appears in this; that fuch who unjuftly deprived men of it, were to be punifhed in like manner as if they had murdered them. "He "that ftealeth a man, and felleth him; or if "he be found in his hand, fhall furely be "put to death." This part of the law was fo confiderable, that Paul, the learned Jew, giving a brief account of the ufes of the law, adds this, "It was made for men-ftealers," I Tim. i. 10.

The great men amongst that people were exceeding opprefive; and, it is likely, exerted their whole ftrength and influence to have the law conftrued to fuit their turns.-The honeft fervants of the lord had heavy work with them in regard to their oppreffion; a few inftances follow. " Thus faith " the Lord of hofts, the God of Ifrael, amend your ways, and your doings; and I ... " will caufe you to dwell in this place. If " you throughly execute judgment between .. a man and his neighbour ; if you opprefs " not the ftranger, the fatherlefs and the wi-" dow; and fhed not innocent blood in this " place; neither walk after other gods to .. your hurt, then will I caufe you to dwell " in this place," Jer. vii.——Again a mef-fage was font not only to the inferior mini-$6 fters of justice, but also to the chief ruler. " Thus

"Thus faith the Lord, go down to the houfe of the king of Judah, and fpeak there this word; execute ye judgment and righteoufnefs, and deliver the fpoiled out of the hand of the oppreffor; and do no wrong; do no violence to the ftranger, the fatherlefs and the widow; neither fhed innocent blood in this place." Then adds, "That in fo doing they fhould profper; but if ye will not hear thefe words, I fwear by myfelf, faith the Lord, that this houfe fhall become a defolation," Jer. xxii.

The king, the princes and rulers were agreed in opprefion before the Babylonifh captivity; for whatever courts of juffice were retained amongft them; or however they decided matters betwixt men of effates, it is plain that the caufe of the poor was not judged in equity.

It appears that the great men amongft the Jews were fully refolved to have flaves, even of their own brethren, Jer. xxxiv. Notwithftanding the promifes and threatenings of the Lord, by the prophet, and their folemn covenant to fet them free, confirmed by the imprecation of paffing between the parts of a calf cut in twain; intimating, by that ceremony, that on breach of the covenant, it were juft for their bodies to be fo cut in pieces.—Yet after all, they held faft to their old cuftom, and called home the fervants whom they had fet free.—" And ye were " now turned, and had done right in my " fight, in proclaiming liberty every man to " his

" his neighbour; and ye had made a cove-nant before me, in the house which is call-" " ed by my name; but ye turned, and pol-66 luted my name, and caufed every man his " fervant, whom he had fet at liberty at their 66 pleafure, to return, and brought them in-66 to fubjection, to be unto you for fervants, 66 and for handmaids: therefore thus faith " the Lord, ye have not hearkened unto me, 66 in proclaiming liberty every one to his ... neighbour, and every one to his brother. Behold, I proclaim liberty to you, faith 66 the Lord, to the fword, to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will make you 66 to be removed into all the kingdoms of the ¢ 6 earth .- The men who tranfgreffed my co-66 venant which they made, and patied be-66 tween the parts of the calf, I will give in-" to the hands of their enemies, and their " dead bodies shall be for meat unto the " fowls of the heaven, and the beafts of the " earth."

Soon after this their city was taken and burnt; the king's fons and the princes flain; and the king, with the chief men of his kingdom, carried captive to Babylon.—Ezekiel, prophefying the return of that people to their own land, directs, "Ye fhall divide the "land by lot, for an inheritance unto you, "and to the ftrangers that fojourn amongft "you; in what tribe the ftranger fojourns, "there fhall ye give him his inheritance, "faith the Lord God." Nor is this particular direction, and the authority with which it is enforced, without a tacit implication, that their anceftors had erred in their conduct towards the ftranger.

Some who keep flaves, have doubted as to the equity of the practice; but as they knew men, noted for their piety, who were in it, this, they fay, has made their minds eafy.

To lean on the example of men in doubtful cafes, is difficult: for only admit, that those men were not faithful and upright to the highest degree, but that in some particular cafe they erred, and it may follow that this one cafe was the fame, about which we are in doubt; and to quiet our minds by their example, may be dangerous to ourfelves; and continuing in it, prove a stumbling block to tender-minded people who fucceed us, in like manner as their examples are to us.

But fuppofing charity was their only motive, and they not forefeeing the tendency of paying robbers for their booty, were not juftly under the imputation of being partners with a thief, Prov. xxix. 24. but were really innocent in what they did, are we affured that we keep them with the fame views they kept them? If we keep them from no other motive than a real fenfe of duty, and true charity governs us in all our proceedings toward them, we are fo far fafe: but if another fpirit, which inclines our minds to the ways of this world, prevail upon us, and we are concerned for our own outward gain more than for their real happinefs, it will avail us nothing nothing that fome good men have had the care and management of Negroes.

Since mankind fpread upon the earth, many have been the revolutions attending the feveral families, and their cuftoms and ways of life different from each other. This diverfity of manners, though fome are preferable to others, operates not in favour of any, fo far as to juftify them to do violence to innocent men; to bring them from their own to another way of life. The mind, when moved by a principle of true love, may feel a warmth of gratitude to the univerfal father, and a lively fympathy with those nations, where divine Light has been lefs manifest.

This defire for their real good may beget a willingness to undergo hardships for their fakes, that the true knowledge of God may be fpread amongst them : but to take them from their own land, with views of profit to ourfelves, by means inconfistent with pure justice, is foreign to that principle which veeks the happiness of the whole creation. Forced fubjection, of innocent perfons of full age, is inconfiftent with right reason; on one ide, the human mind is not naturally fortified with that firmnefs in wifdom and goodnefs, necessary to an independant ruler; on the other fide, to be fubje. I to the uncontroulable will of a man, liable to err, is most painful and afflicting to a confcientious creature.

It is our happiness faithfully to ferve the divine Being, who made us; his perfection makes makes our fervice reafonable; but fo long as men are biaffed by narrow felf-love, fo long an abfolute power over other men is unfit for them.

Men, taking on them the government of others, may intend to govern reafonably, and make their fubjects more happy than they would be otherwife; but, as abfolute command belongs only to him who is perfect, where frail men, in their own wills, affume fuch command, it hath a direct tendency to vitiate their minds, and make them more unfit for government.

Placing on men the ignominious title SLAVE, dreffing them in uncomely garments, keeping them to fervile labour, in which they are often dirty, tends gradually to fix a notion in the mind, that they are a fort of people below us in nature, and leads us to confider them as fuch in all our conclusions about them. And, moreover, a perfon which in our efteem is mean and contemptible, if their language or behaviour toward us is unfeemly or difrefpectful, it excites wrath more powerfully than the like conduct in one we accounted our equal or fuperior; and where this happens to be the cafe, it difqualifies for candid judgment; for it is unfit for a perfon to fit as judge in a cafe where his own perfonal refentments are ftirred up; and, as members of fociety in a well framed government, we are mutually dependent. Prefent interest incites to duty, and makes each man attentive to the convenience ence of others; but he whofe will is a law to others, and can enforce obedience by punifhment; he whofe wants are fupp¹ied without feeling any obligation to make equal returns to his benefactor, his irregular appetites find an open field for motion, and he is in danger of growing hard, and inattentive to their convenience who labour for his fupport; and fo lofes that difpofition, in which alone men are fit to govern.

The Englifh government hath been commended by candid foreigners for the difufe of racks and tortures, fo much practifed in fome ftates; but this multiplying flaves now leads to it; for where people exact hard labour of others, without a fuitable reward, and are refolved to continue in that way, feverity to fuch who oppofe them becomes the confequence; and feveral Negroe criminals, among the Englifh in America, have been executed in a lingering, painful way, very terrifying to others.

It is a happy cafe to fet out right, and perfevere in the fame way: a wrong beginning leads into many difficulties; for to fupport one evil, another becomes cuftomary; two produces more; and the further men proceed in this way, the greater their dangers, their doubts and fears; and the more painful and perplexing are their circumftances; fo that fuch who are true friends to the real and lafting interest of our country, and candidly confider the tendency of things, cannot but feel fome concern on this account.

There

There is that fuperiority in men over the brute creatures, and fome of them fo manifeftly dependent on men for a living, that for them to ferve us in moderation, fo far as relates to the right use of things, looks confonant to the defign of our Creator.

There is nothing in their frame, nothing relative to the propagating their fpecies, which argues the contrary; but in men there is. The frame of men's bodies, and the difpofition of their minds are different; fome, who are tough and firong, and their minds active, chufe ways of life requiring much labour to fupport them; others are foon weary; and though ufe makes labour more tolerable, yet fome are lefs apt for toil than others, and their minds lefs fprightly. Thefe latter labouring for their fubfiftence, commonly chufe a life eafy to fupport, being content with a little. When they are weary they may reft, take the most advantageous part of the day for labour; and in all cases proportion one thing to another, that their bodies be not oppreffed.

Now, while each is at liberty, the latter may be as happy, and live as comfortably as the former; but where men of the firft fort have the latter under abfolute command, not confidering the odds in ftrength and firmnefs, do, fometimes, in their eager purfuit, lay on burthens grievous to be borne; by degrees grow rigorous, and, afpiring to greatnefs, they increase oppression, and the true order of kind Providence is subverted.

There

There are weakneffes fometimes attending us, which make little or no alteration in our countenances, nor much leffen our appetite for food, and yet fo affect us, as to make labour very uneafy. In fuch cafe mafters, intent on putting forward bufinefs, and jealous of the fincerity of their flaves, may difbelieve what they fay, and grievoufly afflict them.

Action is neceffary for all men, and our exhaufting frame requires a fupport, which is the fruit of action. The earth muft be laboured to keep us alive : labour is a proper part of our life ; to make one anfwer the other in fome ufeful motion, looks agreeable to the defign of our Creator. Motion, rightly managed, tends to our fatisfaction, health and fupport.

Those who quit all useful business, and live wholly on the labour of others, have their exercise to feek; fome such use less than their health requires; others chuse that which, by the circumstances attending it, proves utterly reverse to true happiness. Thus, while fome are divers ways diffressed for want of an open channel of useful action, those who support them figh, and are exhausted in a stream too powerful for nature, spending their days with too little ceffation from labour.

Seed fown with the tears of a confined oppreffed people, harveft cut down by an overborne difcontented reaper, makes bread lefs fweet to the tafte of an honeft man, than that which is the produce, or just reward of fuch fuch voluntary action, which is one proper part of the bulinefs of human creatures.

Again, the weak flate of the human fpecies, in bearing and bringing forth their young, and the helplefs condition of their young beyond that of other creatures, clearly flew that Perfect Goodnefs defigns a tender care and regard fhould be exercifed toward them; and that no imperfect, arbitrary power fhould prevent the cordial effects of that fympathy, which is, in the minds of wellmet pairs, to each other, and toward their offspring.

In our species the mutual ties of affection are more rational and durable than in others below us; the care and labour of raifing our offspring much greater. The fatisfaction arifing to us in their innocent company, and in their advances from one rational improvement to another, is confiderable, when two are thus joined, and their affections fincere. It however happens among flaves, that they are often fituate in different places ; and their feeing each other depends on the will of men, liable to human paffions, and a bias in judgment; who, with views of felf-interest, may keep them apart more than is right. Being abfent from each other, and often with other company, there is a danger of their affections being alienated, jealoufies arifing, the happinefs otherwife refulting from their offspring frustrated, and the comforts of marriage deftroyed .- Thefe things being confidered clofely, as happening to a near friend, will appear to be hard and painful.

He who reverently observes that goodness manifested by our gracious Creator toward the various species of beings in this world, will see, that in our frame and constitution is clearly shewn that innocent men, capable to manage for themselves, were not intended to be flaves.

A perfon lately travelling amongst the Negroes near Senegal, hath this remark; "Which way foever I turned my eyes on " this pleafant fpot, I beheld a perfect image " of pure nature; an agreeable folitude, " bounded on every fide by charming land-" fkips, the rural fituation of cottages in the midft of trees. The eafe and indolence of " the Negroes reclined under the shade of " their spreading foliage; the simplicity of " their drefs and manners ; the whole reviv-" ed in my mind the idea of our first parents, " and I feemed to contemplate the world in " its primitive state." M. Adanson, page 55. Some Negroes in these parts, who have had an agreeable education, have manifested a brightness of understanding equal to many of us. A remark of this kind we find in Bofman, page 328. " The Negroes of Fida, " faith he, are fo accurately quick in their " merchandize accounts, that they eafily " reckon as juftly and quickly in their heads " only, as we with the affiftance of pen and " ink, though the fum amounts to feveral "thoufands." , * 17 here 201 Through

Through the force of long cuftom, it appears needful to fpeak in relation to colour.-Suppose a white child, born of parents of the meaneft fort, who died and left him an infant, falls into the hands of a perfon, who endeavours to keep him a flave, fome menwould account him an unjust man in doing fo, who yet appear eafy while many black people, of honeft lives, and good abilities, are enflaved, in a manner more flocking than the cafe here fuppofed. This is owing chiefly to the idea of flavery being connected with the black colour, and liberty with the white :--- and where falfe ideas are twifted into our minds, it is with difficulty we get and the second fairly difentangled.

A traveller, in cloudy weather, miffeth his way, makes many turns while he is loft; ftill forms in his mind, the bearing and fituation of places, and though the ideas are wrong, they fix as faft as if they were right. Finding how things are, we fee our miftake; yet the force of reafon, with repeated obfervations on places and things, do not foon remove those false notions, fo fastened upon us, but it will feem in the imagination as if the annual courfe of the fun was altered; and though, by recollection, we are affured it is not, yet those ideas do not fuddenly leave us.

Selfifhnefs being indulged, clouds the understanding; and where felfifh men, for a long time, proceed on their way, without opposition, the deceiveablenefs of unrighteoufnefs gets fo rooted in their intellects, that a candid a candid examination of things relating to felf-intereft is prevented; and in this circumftance, fome who would not agree to make a flave of a perfon whofe colour is like their own, appear eafy in making flaves of others of a different colour, though their underftandings and morals are equal to the generality of men of their own colour.

The colour of a man avails nothing, in matters of right and equity. Confider colour in relation to treatics; by fuch, difputes betwixt nations are fometimes fettled. And thould the father of us all fo difpofe things, that treaties with black men fhould fometimes be neceffary, how then would it appear amongft the princes and ambaffadors, to infift on the prerogative of the white colour ?

Whence is it that men, who believe in a righteous omnipotent Being, to whom all nations ftand equally related, and are equally accountable, remain fo eafy in it; but for that the ideas of Negroes and flaves are fo interwoven in the mind, that they do not difcufs this matter with that candour and freedom of thought, which the cafe juftly calls for?

To come at a right feeling of their condition, requires humble ferious thinking; for, in their prefent fituation, they have but little to engage our natural affection in their fayour.

Had we a fon or a daughter involved in the fame cafe, in which many of them are, it would alarm us, and make us feel their condition dition without feeking for it. The adverfity of an intimate friend will incite our compaffion, while others, equally good, in the like trouble, will but little affect us.

Again, the man in worldly honour; whom we confider as our fuperior, treating us with kindnefs and generofity, begets a return of gratitude and friendfhip toward him. We may receive as great benefits from men a degree lower than ourfelves, in the common way of reckoning, and feel ourfelves lefs engaged in favour of them. Such is our condition by nature; and thefe things being narrowly watched and examined, will be found to center in felf-love.

The blacks feem far from being our kinsfolks, and did we find an agreeable difpoficion and found understanding in some of them, which appeared as a good foundation for a true friendship between us, the disgrace arising from an open friendship with a perfon of fo vile a ftock, in the common effeein, would naturally tend to hinder it .- They have neither honours, riches, outward magnificence nor power ; their drefs coarfe, and often ragged; their employ drudgery, and much in the dirt : they have little or nothing at command ; but must wait upon and work for others, to obtain the necessaries of life; fo that, in their prefent fituation, there is not much to engage the friendship, or move the affection of selfish men: but such who live in the fpirit of true charity, to fympathife with X the the afflicted in the lowest stations of life, is a thing familiar to them.

Such is the kindnefs of our Creator, that people, applying their minds to found wifdom, may, in general, with moderate exercife, live comfortably, where no mifapplied power hinders it.——We in thefe parts have caufe gratefully to acknowledge it. But men leaving the true ufe of things, their lives are lefs calm, and have lefs of real happinefs in them.

Many are defirous of purchafing and keeping flaves, that they may live in fome meafure conformable to those customs of the times, which have in them a tincture of luxury; for when we, in the least degree, depart from that use of the creatures, for which the Creator of all things intended them, there luxury begins.

And if we confider this way of life ferioufly, we shall fee there is nothing in it fufficient to induce a wife man to chufe it, before a plain, fimple way of living. If we examine stately buildings and equipage, delicious food, fuperfine cloaths, filks and linens; if we confider the fplendour of choice metal fastened upon raiment, and the most fhowy inventions of men; it will yet appear that the humble-minded man, who is contented with the true use of houses, food and garments, and chearfully exercifeth himfelf agreeable to his station in civil fociety, to earn them, acts more reafonably, and difcovers ÷ .

covers more foundnefs of understanding in his conduct, than fuch who lay heavy burdens on others, to fupport themselves in a luxurious way of living.

George Buchanan, in his hiftory of Scotland, page 62, tells of fome ancient inhabitants of Britain, who were derived from a people that " had a way of marking their bodies, as fome faid, with inftruments of iron, with variety of pictures, and with animals of all shapes, and wear no garments, that they should not hide their pictures; and were therefore called Picts."

Did we fee those people shrink with pain, for a confiderable time together, under the point or edge of this iron inftrument, and their bodies all bloody with the operation; did we fee them fometimes naked, fuffering with cold, and refuse to put on garments, that those imaginary enfigns of grandeur might not be concealed, it is likely we fhould. pity their folly, and fondness for those things: but if we candidly compare their conduct, in that cafe, with fome conduct amongst ourfelves, will it not appear that our folly is the greateft ?

In true gospel fimplicity, free from all wrong use of things, a fpirit which breathes peace and good will is cherished; but when we afpire after imaginary grandeur, and ap-ply to felfifh means to attain our end, this defire, in its original, is the fame with the Picts in cutting figures on their bodies ; but the

the evil confequences attending our proceedings are the greateft.

A covetous mind, which feeks opportunity to exalt itfelf, is a great enemy to true harmony in a country: envy and grudging ufually accompany this difpolition, and it tends to ftir up its likenefs in others. And where this difpolition arifeth fo high, as to embolden us to look upon honeft industrious men as our own property during life, and to keep them to hard labour, to support us in those customs which have not their foundation in right reason; or to use any means of oppression; a haughty spirit is cherissed on one side, and the desire of revenge frequently on the other, till the inhabitants of the land are ripe for great commotion and trouble; and thus luxury and oppression have the feeds of war and defolation in them.

Some Account of the SLAVE-TRADE,)

From the writings of perfons who have been at the places where they are first purchased, viz.

B OSMAN on Guinea, who was a factor for the Dutch about fixteen years in that country, (page 339) thus remarks: "But "fince I have fo often mentioned that commerce, I thall defcribe how it is managed by our factors. The first business of one "of

" of our factors, when he comes to Fida, is " to fatisfy the cuftoms of the king, and the " great men, which amounts to about one " hundred pounds, in Guinea value, as the " goods must fell there. After which we " have free licence to trade, which is pub-" lifhed throughout the whole land by the " cryer. And yet before we can deal with " any perfon, we are obliged to buy the " king's whole flock of flaves, at a fet price; " which is commonly one third or fourth " higher than ordinary. After which, we " have free leave to deal with all his fubjects, " of what rank foever. But if there happen " to be no ftock of flaves, the factor must "refolve to run the rifk of trufting the in-"habitants with goods, to the value of one " or two hundred flaves ; which commodi-" ties they fend into the inland country, in " order to buy with them flaves at all mar-" kets, and that fometimes two hundred " miles deep in the country: for you ought " to be informed, that markets of men are " here kept in the fame manner as they of

" beafts are with us. " Moft of the flaves which are offered to " us, are prifoners of war, which are fold " by the victors as their booty.— When " thefe flaves come to Fida, they are put in " prifons all together; and when we treat " concerning them, they are all brought out " in a large plain, where, by our furgeons, " whofe province it is, they are thoroughly " examined, even to the fmalleft member, " and

" and that naked, both men and women, " without the leaft diffinction or modefty. " Thofe which are approved as good, are fet " on one fide. The invalids and maimed " being thrown out, the remainder are num-" bered, and it is entered who delivered "them : in the mean while a burning iron, " with the arms or name of the company, " lies in the fire, with which ours are mark-" ed on the breaft. This is done, that we " may diffinguish them from the flaves of " the English, French, or others. When " we have agreed with the owners of the " flaves, they are returned to their prifons, " where, from that time forward, they are " kept at our charge, coft us two-pence a " day a flave, which ferves to fubfift them, " like our criminals, on bread and water : " fo that, to fave charges, we fend them on " board our fhips the first opportunity ; be-" fore which their mafters ftrip them of all " they have on their backs, fo that they " come aboard flark naked, as well women " as men; in which condition they are o-" bliged to continue, if the mafter of the " fhip is not fo charitable (which he com-" monly is) as to beftow fomething on them, " to cover their nakedness.

Same author, page 310. "The inhabi-"tants of Popo, as well as those of Coto, de-"pend on plunder, and the flave-trade, in "both which they very much exceed the lat-"ter; for being endowed with more courage, "they rob more fuccefsfully, and by that "means

" means increafe their trade : notwithftand-"ing which, to freight a veffel with flaves, " requires fome months attendance. In the "year 1697, in three days time I could get " but three flaves; but they affured me, that " if I would have patience for other three " days only, they fhould be able to deliver " me one or two hundred."

Bofman, page 440. "We caft anchor at " cape Mizurada, but not one Negroe coming " on board, I went on fhore; and being defi-" rous to be informed why they did not come " on board, was answered, That about two " months before, the English had been there " with two veffels, and had ravaged the coun-" try, deftroyed all their canoes, plundered " their houfes, and carried off fome of their " people for flaves; upon which the re-" mainder fled to the inland country. They " tell us, they live in peace with all their " neighbours, and have no notion of any " other enemy than the English; of which " nation they had taken fome then : and " publickly declared, that they would en-" deavour to get as many of them, as the " two mentioned ships had carried off of " their natives. Thefe unhappy English " were in danger of being facrificed to the " the memory of their friends, which fome " of their nation carried off."

THE author, a popifh millionary, speaking of his departing from the Negroe country to Brazil, faith, " I remember the duke of Bambay (a Negroe chief) one day fent me feveral blacks, to be my flaves, which I would not accept of; but fent them back to him. I afterwards told him. I came not into his country to make flaves; but rather to deliver those from the flavery of the devil, whom he kept in miferable thraldom. The thip I went aboard was loaded with elephants teeth, and flaves, to the number of fix hundred and eighty men, women and children. It was a pitiful fight to behold how all thefe people were beftowed. The men were ftanding in the hold, fastened one to another with ftakes, for fear they should rife and kill the whites : the women were between the decks, and those that were with child in the great cabbin : the children in the fteerage, preffed together like herrings in a barrel; which caufed an intolerable heat and stench." Page 50.7:30 - 2 Hold Hold Strate St. at the

"It is now time (faith the fame author) to fpeak of a brutish custom these people have amongst them in making flaves; which I take not to be lawful for any person of a good conficience to buy."—— pretence of jurifdiction, feize men upon any triffing offence, and fell them for flaves." Page 537.

He then defcribes how women betray men into flavery, and adds, "There are others going up into the inland country, and, thro' pretence

-The author of this treatife, converling with a perfon of good credit, was informed by him, that in his youth, while in England, he was minded to come to America, and happening on a veisel bound for Guinea, and from thence into America, he, with a view to fee Africa, went on board her, and continued with them in their voyage, and fo came into this country. Among other circumstances, he related these. "They purchased on the coast about three hundred flaves; some of them he understood were captives of war; fome stolen by other Negroes privately.-----When they had got many flaves on board, but were still on that coast, a plot was laid by an old Negroe, notwithstanding the men had irons on their hands and feet, to kill the English and take the veffel ; which being difcovered, the man was hanged, and many of the flaves made to fhoot at him as he hung up."

"Another flave was charged with having a defign to kill the Englifh; and the captain fpoke to him in relation to the charge brought againft him, as he ftood on deck; whereupon he immediately threw himfelf into the fca, and was drowned."

"Several Negroes, confined on board, were, he faid, fo extremely uneafy with their condition, that after many endeavours ufed, they could never make them eat nor drink after after they came in the veffel; but in a defperate refolution ftarved themfelves to death, behaving toward the laft like mad-men."

In Randall's geography, printed 1744, we are informed, " That in a time of full peace nothing is more common than for the Negroes of one nation to fteal those of another, and fell them to the Europeans. It is thought that the English transmit annually near fifty thousand of these unhappy creatures ; and the other European nations together, about two hundred thousand more."

It is through the goodness of God that the reformation from grofs idolatry and barbarity hath been thus far effected; if we confider our conditions as chriftians, and the benefits we enjoy, and compare them with the condition of those people, and confider that our nation trading with them for their country produce, have had an opportunity of imparting useful instructions to them, and remember that but little pains have been taken therein, it must look like an indifference in us.——But when we reflect on a cuftom the most shocking of any amongst them, and remember that, with a view to outward gain, we have joined as parties in it; that our concurrence with them in their barbarous proceedings, has tended to harden them in cruelty, and been a means of increasing calamities in their country, we must own that herein we have acted contrary to those worthies whofe lives and fubftance were fpent in propagating truth and righteoufnefs amongft

the heathen. When Saul, by the hand of Doeg, flew four fcore priefts at once, he had a jealoufy that one of them at leaft was confederate with David, whom he confidered as his enemy.——Herod flaying all the male children in Bethlehem of two years old and under, was an act of uncommon cruelty; but he fuppofed there was a male child there, within that age, who was likely to be king of the Jews, and finding no way to deftroy him, but by deftroying them all, thought this the moft effectual means to fecure the kingdom to his own family.

When the fentence against the protestants of Marindol, &c. in France, was put in execution, great numbers of people fled to the wildernefs; amongst whom were ancient people, women great with child, and others with babes in their arms, who endured calamities grievous to relate, and in the end fome perished with hunger, and many were deftroyed by fire and sword; but they had this objection against them, That they obstinately perfisted in opposition to holy mother church, and being hereticks, it was right to work their ruin and extirpation, and raze out their memory from among men. Fox's Acts and Monuments, page 646.

In favour of those cruelties, every one had what they deemed a plea.——These scenes of blood and cruelty among the barbarous inhabitants of Guinea, are not less terrible than those now mentioned. They are continued from one age to another, and we make ourfelves ourfelves parties and fellow-helpers in them; nor do I fee that we have any plea in our favour more plaufible than the plea of Saul, of Herod, or the French in those flaughters.

Many who are parties in this trade, by keeping flaves with views of felf-intereft, were they to go as foldiers in one of thefe inland expeditions to catch flaves, they muft neceffarily grow diffatisfied with fuch employ, or ceafe to profefs their religious principles. And though the first and most flriking part of the scene is done at a great diftance, and by other hands, yet every one who is acquainted with the circumstances, and notwithstanding joins in it for the fake of gain only, must, in the nature of things, be chargeable with the others.

Should we confider ourfelves prefent as fpectators, when cruel Negroes privately catch innocent children, who are employed in the fields ; hear their lamentable cries, under the moft terrifying apprehenfions ; or fhould we look upon it as happening in our own families, having our children carried off by favages, we muft needs own, that fuch proceedings are contrary to the nature of chriftianity: fhould we meditate on the wars which are greatly increafed by this trade, and on that affliction which many thoufands live in, through apprehenfions of being taken or flain; on the terror and amazement that villages are in, when furrounded by thefe troops of enterprifers; on the great pain and mifery of groaning dying men, men, who get wounded in those skirmistics; we shall necessarily see, that it is impossible to be parties in such a trade, on the motives of gain, and retain our innocence.

Should we confider the cafe of multitudes of those people, who in a fruitful foil, and hot climate, with a little labour, raise grain, roots and pulse to eat; fpin and weave cotton, and fasten together the large feathers of fowls, to cover their nakedues; many of whom, in much simplicity, live inosfensively in their cottages, and take great comfort in raising up children.

Should we contemplate on their circumstances, when fuddenly attacked, and labour to understand their inexpressible anguish of foul, who furvive the conflict; should we think on inoffentive women, who fled at the alarm, and at their return faw that village, in which they and their acquaintance were raised up, and had pleafantly spent their youthful days, now lying in a gloomy defolation; fome shocked at finding the mangled bodies of their near friends amongst the flain; others bemoaning the absence of a brother, a fifter, a child, or a whole family of children, who, by cruel men, are bound and carried to market, to be fold, without the leaft hopes of feeing them again : add to this, the afflicted condition of these poor captives, who are feparated from family connections, and all the comforts arifing from friendship and acquaintance, carried amongst a people of a strange language, to be parted from their fellow fellow captives, put to labour in a manner more fervile and wearifome than what they were used to, with many forrowful circumftances attending their flavery; and we must neceffarily fee, that it belongs not to the followers of Chrift to be parties in fuch a trade, on the motives of outward gain.

Though there were wars and defolation among the Negroes, before the Europeans began to trade there for flaves, yet now the calamities are greatly increafed, fo many thoufands being annually brought from thence; and we, by purchafing them, with views of felf-intereft, are become parties with them, and acceffary to that increafe.

In this cafe, we are not joining against an enemy who is fomenting difcords on our continent, and using all possible means to make flaves of us and our children; but against a people who have not injured us.

If those who were spoiled and wronged, should at length make flaves of their oppreffors, and continue flavery to their posterity, it would look rigorous to candid men : but to act that part toward a people, when neither they nor their fathers have injured us, hath something in it extraordinary, and requires our ferious attention.

Our children breaking a bone; getting fo bruifed, that a leg or an arm muft be taken off; loft for a few hours, fo that we defpair of their being found again; a friend hurt, fo that he dieth in a day or two; thefe move us with grief: and did we attend to thefe fcenes fcenes in Africa, in like manner as if they were tranfacted in our prefence; and fympathife with the Negroes, in all their afflictions and miferies, as we do with our children or friends: we fhould be more careful to do nothing in any degree helping forward a trade productive of fo many, and fo great calamities. Great diffance makes nothing in our favour.—To willingly join with unrighteoufnefs, to the injury of men who live fome thoufand miles off, is the fame in fubftance, as joining with it to the injury of our neighbours.

In the eye of pure juffice, actions are regarded according to the fpirit and difpolition they arife from: fome evils are accounted fcandalous, and the defire of reputation may keep felfifh men from appearing openly in them; but he who is fhy on that account, and yet by indirect means promotes that evil, and fhares in the profit of it, cannot be innocent.

He who, with a view to felf-intereft, buys a flave, made fo by violence, and only on the ftrength of fuch purchafe holds him a flave, thereby joins hands with those who committed that violence, and in the nature of things becomes chargeable with the guilt.

Suppole a man wants a flave, and being in Guinea, goes and hides by the path where boys pafs from one little town to another, and there catches one the day he expects to fail; and taking him on board, brings him home, without any aggravating circumftances. Suppofe pofe another buys a man, taken by them who live by plunder and the flave-trade : they often fteal them privately, and often fhed much blood in getting them. He who buys the flaves thus taken, pays those men for their wickedness, and makes himself party with them.

Whatever nicety of diffinction there may be, betwixt going in perfon on expeditions to catch flaves, and buying thofe, with a view to felf-intereft, which others have taken; it is clear and plain to an upright mind, that fuch diffinction is in words, not in fubftance; for the parties are concerned in the fame work, and have a neceffary connection with, and dependance on, each other; for were there none to purchafe flaves, they who live by ftealing and felling them, would of confequence do lefs at it.

Some would buy a Negroe brought from Guinea, with a view to felf-interest, and keep him a flave, who yet would feem to fcruple to take arms, and join with men employed in taking flaves.

Others have civil Negroes, who were born in our country, capable and likely to manage well for themfelves; whom they keep as flaves, without ever trying them with freedom, and take the profit of their labour as a part of their eftates, and yet difapprove bringing them from their own country.

If those Negroes had come here, as merchants, with their ivory and gold dust, in order order to trade with us, and fome powerful perfon had took their effects to himfelf, and then put them to hard labour, and ever after confidered them as flaves, the action would be looked upon as unrighteous.

Those Negroe merchants having children after their being among us, whose endowments and conduct were like other people's in common, if on their attaining to mature age, and requesting to have their liberty, they should be told they were born in flavery, and were lawful flaves, and therefore their request should be denied; such conduct toward them, would be looked upon as unfair and oppressive.

In the prefent cafe, relating to home-born Negroes, whofe understandings and behaviour are as good as common among other people, if we have any claim to them as flaves, that claim is grounded on their being the children or offspring of flaves, who, in general, were made fuch through means as unrighteous, and attended with more terrible circumftances than the cafe laft fuppofed ; fo that when we trace our claim to the bottom, thefe home-born Negroes having paid for their education, and given reafonable fecurity to thefe who owned them, in cafe of their be-coming chargeable, we have no more equitable right to their fervice, than we should if they were the children of honeft merchants who came from Guinea in an English veffel to trade with us.

If we claim any right to them as the children of flaves, we build on the foundation laid by them, who made flaves of their anceftors; fo that of neceffity we must either justify the trade, or relinquish our right to them, as being the children of flaves.

Why fhould it feem right to honeft men to make advantage by thefe people more than by others? Others enjoy freedom, receive wages equal to their work, at or near fuch time as they have difcharged thefe equitable obligations they are under to thofe who educated them.——Thefe have made no contract to ferve; been no more expensive in raifing up than others, and many of them appear as likely to make a right use of freedom as other people; which way then can an honeft man withhold from them that liberty, which is the free gift of the Most High to his fational creatures?

THE upright in heart cannot fucceed the wicked in their wickednefs; nor is it confonant to the life they live, to hold fast an advantage unjustly gained.

The Negroes who live by plunder, and the flave-trade, fteal poor innocent children, invade their neighbours territories, and fpill much blood to get thefe flaves : and can it be poffible for an honeft man to think that, with a view to felf-intereft, we may continue flavery to the offspring of thefe unhappy fufferers, merely becaufe they are the children of flaves, and not have a fhare of this guilt ?

It is granted by many, that the means ufed in getting them are unrighteous, and that buying them, when brought here, is wrong; yet as fetting them free is attended with fome difficulty, they do not comply with it; but feem to be of the opinion, that to give them food and raiment, and keep them fervants, without any other wages, is the beft way to manage them that they know of: and hoping that their children after them will not be cruel to the Negroes, conclude to leave them as flaves to their children.

While prefent outward intereft is the chief object of our attention, we fhall feel many objections in our minds againft renouncing our claim to them, as the children of flaves; for being prepoffeffed with wrong opinions, prevents our feeing things clearly, which, to indifferent perfons, are eafy to be feen.

Suppose a perfon feventy years past, in low circumstances, bought a Negroe man and woman, and that the children of fuch perfon are now wealthy, and have the children of fuch flaves. Admit that the first Negroe man and his wife did as much bufinefs as their mafter and miftrefs, and that the children of the flaves have done fome more than their young mafters : fuppofe, on the whole, that the expence of living has been lefs on the Negroes fide, than on the other (all which are no improbable fuppofitions) it follows, that in equity these Negroes have a right to a part of this increase; that should fome difficulties arife on their being fet free, there is reafon Y 2 reafon for us patiently to labour through them.

As the conduct of men varies, relating to civil fociety; fo different treatment is juftly due to them. Indifcreet men occafion trouble in the world; and it remains to be the care of fuch, who feek the good of mankind, to admonifh as they find occafion.

The flothfulnefs of fome of them, in providing for themfelves and families, it is likely, would require the notice of their neighbours; nor is it unlikely that fome would, with juffice, be made fervants, and others punifhed for their crimes. Pure juffice points out to each individual their due; but to deny a people the privilege of human creatures, on a fuppofition that, being free, many of them would be troublefome to us, is to mix the condition of good and bad men together, and treat the whole as the worft of them deferve.

If we ferioufly confider, that liberty is the right of innocent men; that the mighty God is a refuge for the oppreffed; that in reality we are indebted to them; that they being fet free, are ftill liable to the penalties of our laws, and as likely to have punifhment for their crimes as other people: this may anfwer all our objections. And to retain them in perpetual fervitude, without juft caufe for it, will produce effects, in the event, more grievous than fetting them free would do, when a real love to truth and equity was the motive to it.

Our

Our authority over them ftands originally in a purchafe made from those who, as to the general, obtained theirs by unrighteousness. Whenever we have recourse to fuch authority, it tends more or less to obstruct the channels, through which the perfect plant in us receives nourishment.

There is a principle, which is pure, placed in the human mind, which in different places and ages hath had different names; it is, however, pure, and proceeds from God.— It is deep, and inward, confined to no forms of religon, nor excluded from any, where the heart ftands in perfect fincerity. In whomfoever this takes root, and grows, of what nation foever, they become brethren, in the beft fenfe of the expression. Using ourfelves to take ways which appear most eafy to us, when inconfistent with that purity which is without beginning, we thereby fet up a government of our own, and deny obedience to him, whose fervice is true liberty.

He that hath a fervant, made fo wrongfully, and knows it to be fo, when he treats him otherwife than a free man, when he reaps the benefit of his labour, without paying him fuch wages as are reafonably due to free men for the like fervice, cloaths excepted; thefe things, tho' done in calmnefs, without any fhew of diforder, do yet deprave the mind in like manner, and with as great certainty, as prevailing cold congeals water. Thefe fteps taken by mafters, and their conduct ftriking the minds of their children, whilft whilft young, leave lefs room for that which is good to work upon them. The cuftoms of their parents, their neighbours, and the people with whom they converfe, working upon their minds; and they, from thence, conceiving ideas of things, and modes of conduct, the entrance into their hearts becomes, in a great meafure, flut up againft the gentle movings of uncreated purity.

From one age to another, the gloom grows thicker and darker, till error gets established by general opinion; that whoever attends to perfect goodness, and remains under the melting influence of it, finds a path unknown to many, and sees the necessfity to lean upon the arm of divine strength, and dwell alone, or with a few, in the right committing their cause to him, who is a refuge for his people, in all their troubles.

Where, through the agreement of a multitude, fome channels of juffice are flopped, and men may fupport their characters as juft men, by being juft to a party, there is great danger of contracting an alliance with that fpirit, which ftands in opposition to the God of love, and fpreads difcord, trouble, and vexation among fuch who give up to the influence of it.

Negroes are our fellow creatures, and their prefent condition amongft us requires our ferious confideration. We know not the time when those fcales, in which mountains are weighed, may turn. The Parent of mankind is gracious: his care is over his fmalleft fmallest creatures; and a multitude of men efcape not his notice: And though many of them are trodden down, and despised, yet he remembers them : he feeth their affliction, and looketh upon the fpreading increasing exaltation of the oppressor. He turns the channels of power, humbles the most haughty people, and gives deliverance to the oppreffed, at fuch periods as are confistent with his infinite juffice and goodnefs. And wherever gain is preferred to equity, and wrong things publickly encouraged to that degree, that wickedness takes root, and spreads wide amongst the inhabitants of a country, there is real caufe for forrow to all fuch, whofe love to mankind ftands on a true principle, and who wifely confider the end and event of things.)

INTRODUCTION.

MY mind hath often been affected with forrow, on account of the prevailing of that Spirit, which leads from an humble waiting on the inward teaching of Christ, to pursue ways of living, attended with unnecessary labour, and which draws forth the minds of many people.

ple to feek after outward power, and to strive for riches, which frequently introduce oppression, and bring forth wars and grievous calamities.

It is with reverence that I acknowledge the mercies of our heavenly Father, who, in infinite love, did vifit me in my youth, and wrought a belief in me, that through true obedience a flate of inward purity may be known in this life, in which we may love mankind in the fame love with which our Redeemer loveth us, and therein learn refignation to endure hard/hips, for the real good of others.

"While the eye is fingle, the whole body is "full of light," Mat. vi. 22. but for want of this, felfifh defires, and an imaginary superiority, darken the mind; hence injustice frequently proceeds; and where this is the case, to convince the judgment, is the most effectual remedy.

Where violent measures are pursued in opposing injustice, the passions, and resentments of the injured, frequently operate in the profecution of their defigns; and after conflicts productive of very great calamities, the minds of contending parties often remain as little acquainted with the pure principle of divine love, as they were before; but where people walk in that pure light in which all their " works are wrought in God," John iii. 21, and under oppression persevere in the meek spirit, and abide firm in the cause of truth, without actively complying with oppressive demands, through those the Lord hath often manifested his power, in opening the understandings of others, to the promoting righteousness in the earth.

A time, I believe, is coming, wherein this divine work will fo spread and prevail, that "Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, "nor learn war any more," Isaiah ii. 4. And as we, through the tender mercies of God, do feel that this precious work is begun, I am concerned to encourage my brethren and sisters in a holy care and diligence, that each of us may so live, under the fanctifying power of truth, as to be redeemed from all unnecessary cares; that our eye being single to him, no customs, however prevalent, which are contrary to the wisdom from above, may binder us from faithfully following his holy leadings, in whatsoever he may graciously appoint for us.

AND

HUMAN POLICY.

O have our truft fettled in the Lord, and not to feek after, nor defire outward treafures, any further than his holy fpirit leads us therein, is a happy flate, as faith the prophet, "Bleffed is the man " that trufteth in the Lord, and whofe hope " the Lord is."

Pure wifdom leads people into lowlinefs of mind, in which they learn refignation to the divine will, and contentment in fuffering for his caufe, when they cannot keep a clear confcience without fuffering.

In this pure wifdom the mind is attentive to the root, and original fpring of motions and defires; and as we know " the Lord to " be our refuge," and find no fafety, but in humbly walking before him; we feel an holy engagement, that every defire which leads therefrom may be brought to judgment.

While we proceed in this precious way, and find ardent longings for a full deliverance from

from every thing which defiles, all profpects of gain, that are not confiftent with the wifdom from above, are confidered as fnares, and an inward concern is felt, that we may live under the crofs, and faithfully attend to that holy fpirit, which is fufficient to preferve out of them.

When I have confidered that faying of Chrift, Mat. vi. 19, " Lay not up for your-" felves treafures upon earth," his omnipotence hath often occurred to my mind.

While we believe that he is every where prefent with his people, and that perfect goodnefs, wifdom and power, are united in him, how comfortable is the confideration.

Our wants may be great, but his power is greater. We may be opprefied and defpifed, but he is able to turn our patient fufferings into profit to ourfelves, and to the advancement of his work on earth. His people, who feel the power of his crofs, to crucify all that is felfifh in them, who are engaged in outward concerns, from a convincement that it is their duty, and refign themfelves, and their treafures, to him; thefe feel that it is dangerous to give way to that in us, which craves riches and greatnefs in this world.

but that which he, by his holy fpirit, leads into; fo, on the contrary, they who do not reverently wait for this divine teacher, and are not humbly concerned, according to their meafure, " to fill up that which is behind of " the afflictions of Chrift," Col. i. 24, in patiently fuffering for the promoting righteoufnefs in the earth; but have an eye toward the power of men, and the outward advantage of wealth, thefe are often attentive to thofe employments which appear profitable, even though the gains arife from fuch trade and bufinefs which proceeds from the workings of that fpirit, which is eftranged from the felf-denying life of an humble contrite chriftian.

While I write on this fubject, I feel my mind tenderly affected toward those honeftly disposed people, who have been brought up in employments attended with those difficulties.

To fuch I may fay, in the feeling of our heavenly Father's love, and number myfelf with you, O that our eyes may be fingle to the Lord! may we reverently wait on him' for ftrength, to lay afide all unneceffary expence of every kind, and learn contentment, in a plain fimple life.

May we, in lowlinefs, fubmit to the leadings of his fpirit, and enter upon any outward employ which he gracioufly points out to us, and then whatever difficulties arife, in confequence of our faithfulnefs, I truft they will work for our good.

334 ON PURE WISDOM,

Small treafure to a refigned mind is fufficient. How happy is it to be content with a little, to live in humility, and feel that in us, which breathes out this language; Abba! Father.

If that, called the wifdom of this world, had no refemblance of true wifdom, the name of wifdom, I fuppofe, had not been given to it.

As wasting outward fubstance, to gratify vain defires, on one hand; fo flothfulnefs and neglect, on the other, do often involve men and their families in trouble, and reduce them to want and diftrefs; to fhun both thefe oppofite vices, is good in itfelf, and hath a refemblance of wifdom; but while people thus provident, have it principally in view to get riches, and power, and the friendship of this world, and do not humbly wait for the fpirit of truth to lead them in purity; thefe, through an anxious care to obtain the end defired, reach forth for gain in worldly wifdom, and, in regard to their inward state, fall into divers temptations and fnares. And though fuch may think of applying wealth to good purposes, and to use their power to prevent oppreffion, yet wealth and power is often applied otherwife; nor can we depart from the leadings of our holy shepherd, without going into confusion.

Great wealth is frequently attended with power, which nothing but divine love can qualify the mind to ufe rightly; and as to the humility, and uprightness of our children

dren after us, how great is the uncertainty! If, in acquiring wealth, we take hold on the wifdom which is from beneath, and depart from the leadings of truth, and example our children herein, we have great caufe to apprehend, that wealth may be a fnare to them; and prove an injury to others, over whom their wealth may give them power.

To be redeemed from that wifdom which is from beneath, and walk in the light of the Lord, is a precious fituation; thus his people are brought to put their truft in him; and in this humble confidence in his wifdom, goodnefs and power, the righteous find a refuge in advertities, fuperior to the greateft outward helps, and a comfort more certain than any worldly advantages can afford.

ON LABOUR.

H AVING from my childhood been ufed to bodily labour for a living, I may express my experience therein.

Right exercife affords an innocent pleafure in the time of it, and prepares us to enjoy the fweetness of reft; but from the extremes each way, arife inconveniences.

Moderate exercife opens the pores, gives the blood a lively circulation, and the better enables us to judge rightly refpecting that portion of labour which is the true medium. "The ON LABOUR.

"The fowls of the air fow not, nor gather into barns, yet our heavenly Father feedeth them," Mat. vi. 26; nor do I believe that infinite goodnefs and power would have allotted labour to us, had he not feen that labour was proper for us in this life.

The original defign, and true medium of labour, is a fubject, that, to me, appears worthy of our ferious confideration.

Idle men are often a burden to themfelves, neglect the duty they owe to their families, and become burdenfome to others alfo.

As outward labour, directed by the wifdom from above, tends to our health, and adds to our happines in this life; so, on the contrary, entering upon it in a felfish spirit, and pursuing it too long, or too hard, hath a contrary effect.

I have obferved, that too much labour not only makes the underftanding dull, but fo intrudes upon the harmony of the body, that after ceafing from our toil, we have another to pafs through, before we can be fo compofed as to enjoy the fweetnefs of reft.

From too much labour in the heat, frequently proceeds immoderate fweats, which do often, I believe, open the way for diforders, and impair our conflictutions.

When we go beyond the true medium, and feel wearine's approaching, but think bufinefs may fuffer if we ceafe, at fuch a time fpirituous liquors are frequently taken, with a view to fupport nature under thefe fatigues. I have I have found that too much labour in the fummer heats the blood, that taking ftrong drink to fupport the body under fuch labour; increafeth that heat, and though a perfon may be fo far temperate as not to manifest the least diforder, yet the mind, in fuch a circumstance, doth not retain that calmness and ferenity, which we should endeavour to live in.

Thus toiling in the heat, and drinking ftrong liquor, makes men more refolute, and lefs confiderate, and tends very much to difqualify from fuccefsfully following him who is meek and low of heart.

As laying out bufinefs, more than is confiftent with pure wifdom, is an evil, fo this evil frequently leads into more. Too much bufinefs leads to hurry. In the hurry and toil too much ftrong drink is often ufed, and hereby many proceed to noife and wantonnefs, and fome, tho' more confiderate, do often fuffer lofs, as to a true compofednefs of mind.

I feel fincere defires in my heart that no rent, nor intereft, might be laid fo high as to be a fnare to tenants. That no defires of gain may draw any too far in bufinefs. That no cares to fupport cuftoms, which have not their foundation in pure wifdom, may have place in our minds, but that we may build on the fure foundation, and feel our holy fhepherd to lead us, who alone is able to preferve us, and bring forth from every thing which defiles.

Having feveral times, in my travels, had opportunity to obferve the labour and manner of life of great numbers of flaves, it appears to me that the true medium is lamentably neglected by many, who affign them their portion of labour.

Without faying much at this time, concerning buying and felling men for term of life, who have as just a right to liberty as we have; nor about the great miferies, and effufion of blood, confequent to promoting the flave-trade; and to fpeak as favourably as may be, with regard to continuing those in bondage who are amongft us, we cannot fay there is no partiality in it : for whatever tendernefs may be manifested by individuals in their life time toward them, yet for people to be transmitted from a man to his posterity, in the helplefs condition of flaves, appears inconfistent with the nature of the gospel spirit. From fuch proceedings it often follows, that perfons in the decline of life, are deprived of monies equitably due to them, and committed to the care, and fubjected to the absolute power of young unexperienced men, who know but little about the weakness of old age, nor understand the language of declining life.

Where parents give their effates to their children, and then depend on them for a maintenance, they fometimes meet with great inconveniences; but if the power of poffeffion, thus obtained, doth often reverfe the obligations of gratitude and filial duty, and makes makes manifest, that youth are often ignorant of the language of old age, how hard is the cafe of antient Negroes, who, deprived of the wages equitably due to them, are left to young people, who have been ufed to look upon them as their inferiors.

For men to behold the fruits of their labour withheld from them, and poffeffed by others, and in old age find themfelves deftitute of those comfortable accommodations, and that tender regard which their time of life requires:

When they feel pains, and ftiffnefs in their joints and limbs, weakness of appetite, and that a little labour is wearifome, and still behold themfelves in the neglected uncomfortable condition of a flave, and oftentimes to a young unfympathifing man :

For men to be thus treated from one generation to another, who, befides their own distreffes, think on the flavery entailed on their posterity, and are grieved ! what difagreeable thoughts must they have of the profeffed followers of Jefus! and how muft their groans afcend to that almighty being; who " will be a refuge for the opprefied," Pfalm ix. g.

Suffer the little children to come unto me, and fo bid them not, for of fuch is the kingdom of God. Mark. x. 14.

O encourage children to do things with a view to get praife of men, to me appears an obstruction to their being inwardly acquainted with the fpirit of truth. For it is the work of the Holy Spirit to direct the mind to God, that in all our proceedings we may have a fingle eye to him. To give alms in fecret, to fast in fecret, and labour to keep clear of that difpolition reproved by our Saviour, " But all their works they do " for to be feen of men." Matt. xxiii. 5.

That divine light which enlightens all men, I believe, does often thine in the minds of children very early, and to humbly wait for wifdom, that our conduct toward them may tend to forward their acquaintance with it, and ftrengthen them in obedience thereto, appears to me to be a duty on all of us.

By cherishing the spirit of pride, and the love of praise in them, I believe they may fometimes improve faster in learning, than otherwife they would, but to take measures to forward children in learning, which naturally tend to divert their minds from true humility, appears to me to favour of the wif-dom of this world. of thick at a set of the more of the

If tutors are not acquainted with fanctification of fpirit, nor experienced in an humble waiting for the leadings of truth, but follow the maxims of the wifdom of this world, fuch children who are under their tuition, appear to me to be in danger of imbibing thoughts, and apprehenfions, reverfe to that mecknefs, and lowlinefs of heart, which is neceffary for all the true followers of Chrift.

Children at an age fit for fchools, are in a time of life which requires the patient attention of pious people, and if we commit them to the tuition of fuch, whofe minds we believe are not rightly prepared to " train them " up in the nurture and admonition of the " Lord," we are in danger of not acting the part of faithful parents toward them; for our heavenly father doth not require us to do evil, that good may come of it; and it is needful that we deeply examine ourfelves, left we get entangled in the wifdom of this world, and, through wrong apprehenfions, take fuch methods in education, as may prove a great injury to the minds of our children.

It is a lovely fight to behold innocent children! and when they are fent to fuch fchools where their tender minds are in imminent danger of being led aftray by tutors, who do not live a felf-denying life, or by the converfation of fuch children who do not live in innocence, it is a cafe much to be lamented. While

While a pious tutor hath the charge of no. more children than he can take due care of, and keeps his authority in the truth, the good fpirit in which he leads and governs, works on the minds of fuch who are not hardened, and his labours not only tend to bring them forward in butward learning, but to open their understandings with respect to the true christian life; but where a person hath charge of too many, and his thoughts and time are fo much employed in the outward affairs of his fchool, that he does not fo weightily attend to the fpirit and conduct of each individual, as to be enabled to administer rightly to all in due feason; through fuch omiffion he not only fuffers, as to the flate of his own mind, but the minds of the children are in danger of fuffering alfo.

To watch the fpirit of children, to nurture them in gofpel love, and labour to help them againft that which would mar the beauty of their minds, is a debt we owe them; and a faithful performance of our duty, not only tends to their lafting benefit, and our own peace, but also to render their company agreeable to us.

Inftruction, thus administered, reaches the pure witnefs in the minds of fuch children who are not hardened, and begets love in them toward those who thus lead them on; but where too great a number are committed to a tutor, and he, through much cumber, omits a careful attention to the minds of children,

A care hath lived on my mind, that more time might be employed by parents at home, and by tutors at fchool, in weightily attending to the fpirit and inclinations of children, and that we may fo lead, inftruct, and govern them, in this tender part of life, that nothing may be omitted in our power, to help them on their way to become the children of our father, who is in heaven.

Meditating on the fituation of fchools in our provinces, my mind hath, at times, been affected with forrow, and under thefe exercifes it hath appeared to me, that if thofe who have large cftates, were faithful ftewads, and laid no rent, nor intereft, nor other demand, higher than is confiftent with univerfal love; and thofe in lower circumftances would, under a moderate employ, fhun unneceffary expence, even to the finalleft article; and all unite in humbly feeking to the Lord, he wou'd gracioufly inftruct us, and ftrengthen us, to relieve the youth from various fnares, in which many of them are entangled.

On the RIGHT USE of the LORD's OUTWARD GIFTS.

A Sour understandings are opened by the pure light, we experience that, through an inward approaching to God, the mind is strengthened in obedience; and that by gratifying those defires which are not of his begetting, those approaches to him are obstructed, and the deceivable spirit gains strength.

Thefe truths, being as it were engraven upon our hearts, and our everlafting intereft in Chrift evidently concerned herein, we become fervently engaged, that nothing may be nourifhed which tends to feed pride or felf-love in us. Thus in pure obedience, we are not only inftructed in our duty to God, but alfo in the affairs which neceffarily relate to this life, and the fpirit of truth which guides into all truth, leavens the mind with a pious concern, that " whatfoever we do in " word or deed, may be done in his name," Col. iii, 17.

Hence fuch buildings, furniture, food, and raiment, as best answer our necessities, and are the least likely to feed that felfish spirit which is our enemy, are the most acceptable to us.

In this flate the mind is tender, and inwardly watchful, that the love of gain draw us not into any bufinefs, which may weaken our love to our heavenly father, or bring unneceffary trouble to any of his creatures.

Thus

ON THE RIGHT USE, &c. 345

Thus the way gradually opens to ceafe from that fpirit which craves riches and things fetched far, which fo mixeth with the cuftoms of this world, and fo intrudes upon the true harmony of life, that the right medium of labour is very much departed from. And as the minds of people are fettled in a fteady concern, not to hold nor poffefs any thing but what may be held confiftent with the wifdom from above, they confider what they poffefs as the gift of God, and are inwardly exercifed, that in all parts of their conduct they may act agreeable to the nature of the peaceable government of Chrift.

A little fupports fuch a life; and in a flate truly refigned to the Lord, the eye is fingle, to fee what outward employ he leads into, as a means of our fubfiftence, and a lively care is maintained to hold to that without launching further.

There is a harmony in the feveral parts of this divine work in the hearts of people; he who leads them to ceafe from those gainful employments, carried on in that wisdom which is from beneath, delivers also from the defire after worldly greatness, and reconciles the mind to a life so plain, that a little doth fuffice.

Here the real comforts of life are not leffened. Moderate exercife, in the way of true wifdom, is pleafant both to mind and body.

346 ON THE RIGHT USE OF THE

The mutual love, fubfifting between the faithful followers of Chrift, is more pure than that friendfhip which is not feafoned with humility, how fpecious foever the appearance.

Where people depart from pure wifdom in one cafe, it is often an introduction to depart from it in many more; and thus a fpirit which feeks for outward greatnefs, and leads into worldly wifdom to attain it, and fupport it, gets possefilion of the mind.

In beholding the cuftomary departure from the true medium of labour, and that unneceffary toil which many go through, in fupporting outward greatness, and procuring delicacies :

In beholding how the true calmness of life is changed into hurry, and that many, by eagerly purfuing outward treasure, are in great danger of withering as to the inward ftate of the mind:

In meditating on the works of this fpirit, and on the defolations it makes amongst the profeffors of christianity, I may thankfully acknowledge, that I often feel pure love beget longings in my heart, for the exaltation of the peaceable kingdom of Christ, and an engagement to labour according to the gift bestowed on me, for the promoting an humble, plain, temperate way of living : a life where no unneceffary cares, nor expences, may encumber our minds, nor lessen our ability to do good ; where no defires after riches, or greatness, may lead into hard dealing ; where no connections with wordly minded men, may abate our love to God, nor weaken a true zeal for righteoufnefs : a life, wherein we may diligently labour for refignednefs to do, and fuffer, whatever our heavenly father may allot for us, in reconciling the world to himfelf.

When the prophet Ifaiah had uttered his vifion, and declared that a time was coming wherein "fwords fhould be beat into plow-"fhares, and fpears into pruning hooks, and "that nation fhould not lift up fword againft "nation, nor learn war any more;" he immediately directs the minds of people to the divine teacher, in this remarkable language, "O houfe of Jacob, come ye and let us walk "in the light of the Lord," Ifaiah ii. 5.

To wait for the direction of this light, in all temporal as well as fpiritual concerns, appears neceffary; for if in any cafe we enter lightly into temporal affairs, without feeling this fpirit of truth to open our way therein, and through the love of this world proceed on, and feek for gain by that bufinefs or traffic, which " is not of the father, but of " the world," I John ii. 16, we fail in our teftimony to the purity and peace of his government; and get into that which is for chaftifement.

This matter hath lain heavy on my mind, it being evident, that a life lefs humble, lefs fimple and plain, than that which Chrift leads his fheep into, does neceffarily require a fupport, which pure wifdom does not provide Ephef. v. 11, while we have wants to fupply which have their foundation in cuftom, and do not come within the meaning of those expressions, " your heavenly father knoweth that ye have " need of all these things," Matt. vi. 32. These things which he beholds necessary

Thefe things which he beholds neceffary for his people, he fails not to give them in his own way, and time; but as his ways are above our ways, and his thoughts above our thoughts, fo imaginary wants are different "from thefe things which he knoweth that "we have need of."

As my meditations have been on thefe things, compafion hath filled my heart toward my fellow creatures, involved in cuftoms, grown up in " the wifdom of this " world, which is foolifhnefs with God," I Cor. iii. 19; and O that the youth may be fo thoroughly experienced in an humble walking before the Lord, that they may be his children, and know him to be their refuge, their fafe unfailing refuge! through the various dangers attending this uncertain ftate of being.

If those whose minds are redeemed from the love of wealth, and who are content with a plain, fimple way of living, do yet find that to conduct the affairs of a family, without giving countenance to unrighteous proceedings ings, or having fellowship with works of darknefs, the most diligent care is necessary:

If cuftoms, diftinguishable from universal righteoufnefs, and oppofite to the true felfdenying life, are now prevalent, and fo mix-ed with trade, and with almost every employ, that it is only through humble waiting on the inward guidance of truth, that we may reafonably hope to walk fafely, and fupport an uniform teftimony to the peaceable government of Chrift:

CHAP. I.

On ferving the Lord in our outward employments.

U N D E R the humbling difpenfations of the Father of mercies, I have felt an inward labour for the good of my fellow creatures, and a concern that the holy fpirit, which alone can reftore mankind to a ftate of true harmony, may with finglenefs of heart be waited for and followed.

I trust there are many under that visitation, which, if faithfully attended to, will make them quick of understanding in the fear of the Lord, and qualify with firmness to be true patterns of the christian life, who in living and walking may hold forth an invitation to others, to come out of the entanglements of the spirit of this world. And

ON SERVING THE LORD, &c. 353

And that which I feel first to express is, a care for those who are in circumstances, which appear difficult, with respect to fupporting their families in a way answerable to pure wifdom, that they may not be difcouraged, but remember that in humbly obeying the leading of Chrift, he owneth us 'as his friends, "Ye are my friends if ye do " whatfoever I command you;" and to be a friend to Chrift, is to be united to him, who hath all power in heaven and in earth; and tho' a woman may forget her fucking child, yet will he not forget his faithful ones.

The condition of many who dwell in cities hath often affected me with a brotherly fympathy, attended with a defire that refignation may be laboured for ; and where the holy leader directeth to a country life or fome change of employ, he may be faithfully followed; for under the refining hand of the Lord I have feen, that the inhabitants of fome cities are greatly increased through fome branches of business which his holy spirit doth not lead into, and that being entangled. in these things, tends to bring a cloud over the minds of people convinced of the leadings of this holy leader, and obstructs the coming of the kingdom of Christ on earth as it is in heaven.

Now if we indulge a defire to imitate our neighbours in those things which harmonife not with the true christian walking, these entanglements may hold fast to us, and fome, who

who in an awakening time, feel tender fcruples, with refpect to their manner of life, may look on the example of others more noted in the church, who yet may not be refined from every degree of drofs; and by looking on thefe examples, and defiring to fupport their families in a way pleafant to the natural mind, there may be danger of the worldly wifdom gaining ftrength in them, and of their departure from that pure feeling of truth, which if faithfully attended to, would teach contentment in the divine will, even in a very low eftate.

One formerly fpeaking on the profitablenefs of true humility, faith, "He that troubles not himfelf with anxious thoughts for more than is neceffary, lives little lefs than the life of angels, whilft by a mind content with little, he imitates their want of nothing." Cave's primitive chriftianity, page 31.

"It is not enough, fays Tertullian, that a chriftian be chafte and modeft, but he muft appear to be fo: a virtue of which he fhould have fo great a flore, that it fhould flow from his mind upon his habit, and break from the retirements of his confcience, into the fuperficies of his life." Same book, page 43.

"The garments we wear, fays Clemens, ought to be mean and frugal—that is true fimplicity of habit, which takes away what is vain and fuperfluous; that the beft and most folid garment, which is the farthest from curiofity." Page 49. Though

Though the change from day to night, is by a motion fo gradual as fcarcely to be perceived, yet when night is come we behold it very different from the day; and thus as people become wife in their own eyes, and prudent in their own fight, customs rife up from the fpirit of this world, and fpread by little and little, till a departure from the fimplicity that there is in Chrift, becomes as diftinguishable as light from darkness, to fuch who are crucified to the world.

Our holy shepherd, to encourage his flock in firmness and perfeverance; reminds them of his love for them, "As the father hath " loved me, fo have I loved you; continue ye " in my love;" and in another place gracioully points out the danger of departing therefrom, by going into unfuitable employments; this he reprefents in the fimilitude of offence from that useful active member, the hand; and to fix the inftruction the deeper, names the right hand, " If thy right hand offend " thee cut it off and caft it from thee"-If thou feeleft offence in thy employment, humbly follow him who leads into all truth, and is a ftrong and faithful friend to those who are refigned to him.

Again, he points out those things which appearing pleafant to the natural mind, are not beft for us, in the fimilitude of offence from the eye, " If thy right eye offend thee " pluck it out, and caft it from thee." To pluck out the eye, or cut off the hand, is attended with tharp pain ; and how precious is Aa2 the the inftruction which our redeemer thus opens to us, that we may not faint under the moft painful trials, but put our truft in him, even in him who fent an angel to feed Elijah in the wildernefs; who fed a multitude with a few barley loaves, and is now as attentive to the wants of his people as ever.

The prophet Ifaiah, represents the unrighteous doings of the Ifraclites toward the poor, as the fruits of an effeminate life, " As " for my people, children are their oppref-" fors, and women rule over them; what " mean ye that ye beat my people to pieces, " and grind the faces of the poor, faith the " Lord God." Then he mentions the haughtinefs of the daughters of Sion, and enumerates many ornaments, as inftances of their vanity, to uphold which, the poor were for hardly dealt with, that he fets forth their poverty, their leanness and inability to help themselves, in the similitude of a man maimed by violence or " beaten to pieces," and forced to endure the painful operation of having his face gradually worn away in the manner of grinding.

And I may here add, that at times, when I have felt true love open my heart towards my fellow creatures; and been engaged in weighty conversation in the cause of righteous out of the instructions I have received under these exercises, in regard to the true use of the outward gifts of God, have made deep and lasting impressions on my mind.

I have here beheld, how the defire to provide wealth, and to uphold a delicate life hath grievoufly entangled many, and been like fnares to their offspring; and though fome have been affected with a fenfe of their difficulties, and appeared defirous, at times, to be helped out of them; yet for want of abiding under the humbling power of truth, they have continued in these entanglements; for in remaining conformable to this world, and giving way to a delicate life, this expensive way of living, in parents and in children, hath called for a large fupply, and in answering this call " the faces of the poor" have been ground away, and made thin thro' hard dealing.

There is balm, there is a phyfician ! and O what longings do I feel ! that we may embrace the means appointed for our healing, know that removed which now minifters caufe for the cries of many people to afcend to heaven against their oppress, and that we may see the true harmony restored.

Behold " how good and how pleafant it is, " for brethren to dwell together in unity." The nature of this unity is thus opened by the apoftle, " If we walk in the light, as " Chrift is in the light, we fhall have fel-" lowfhip one with another, and the blood " of Chrift will cleanfe us from all fin."

The land may be polluted with innocent blood, which like the blood of Abel may cry to the Almighty; but those who " walk in "the light as Christ is in the light," they know

Walking is a phrafe frequently used in fcripture, to represent our journey through life, and appears to comprehend the various affairs and transactions properly relating to our being in this world.

Chrift being the light, dwells always in the light, and if our walking be thus, and in every affair and concern we faithfully follow this divine leader; he preferves from giving just cause for any to quarrel with us; and where this foundation is laid and mutually kept to, by families conversant with each other, the way is open for these comforts in fociety, which our heavenly father intends as a part of our happines in this world; and then we may experience the goodnes, and pleasantness of dwelling together in unity; but where ways of living take place, which tend to oppreffion, and in the purfuit of wealth, people do that to others which they know would not be acceptable to themfelves, either in exercifing an abfolute power over them, or otherwife laying on them unequitable burdens; here a fear left that measure fhould be meeted to them, which they have meafured to others, incites a care to fupport that by craft and cunning devices which ftands not on the firm foundation of righteoufnefs: thus the harmony of fociety is broken, and from hence commotions and wars do frequently arife in the world.

"Come out of Babylon my people, that "ye be not partakers of her fins, and that ye "receive not of her plagues." Rev. xv. 3, 4. This Babel, or Babylon, was built in the fpirit of felf-exaltation: "Let us build us a "city and a tower, whofe top may reach to "heaven, and let us make us a name." Gen. xi. 4. In departing from an humble truft in God, and following a felfifh fpirit, people have intentions to get the upperhand of their fellow creatures, privately meditate on means to obtain their ends, have a language in their hearts which is hard to underftand. In Babel the language is confounded,

This city is reprefented as a place of bufinefs and those employed in it, as merchants of the earth : " The merchants of the earth " are waxed rich through the abundance of " her delicacies." Rev. xviii. 3.

And it is remarkable in this call, that the language from the father of mercies is, my people, "Come out of Babylon my people!" Thus his tender mercies are toward us in an imperfect flate; and as we faithfully attend to the call, the path of righteoufnefs is more and more opened; cravings, which have not their foundation in pure wifdom, more and more ceafe; and in an inward purity of heart, we experience a reftoration of that which was loft at Babel, reprefented by the infpired prophet in the "returning of a pure "language." Zeph. iii. 9.

Happy for them who humbly attend to the call, "Come out of Babylon my people."

360 ON SERVING THE LORD IN OUR

For though in going forth we may meet with trials, which for a time may be painful, yet as we bow in true humility, and continue in it, an evidence is felt that God only is wife; and that in weaning us from all that is feltish, he prepares the way to a quiet habitation where all our defires are bounded by his wifdom. And an exercife of fpirit attends me, that we who are convinced of the pure lead-ings of truth, may bow in the deepeft reverence, and fo watchfully regard this leader, that many who are grievoufly entangled in a wilderness of vain customs, may look upon us, and be instructed. And O that fuch who have plenty of this world's goods, may be faithful in that with which they are entrusted! and example others in the true chriftian walking.

Our bleffed Saviour, fpeaking on worldly greatnefs, compares himfelf to one waiting and attending on a company at dinner: "Whether is greater, he that fitteth at meat "or he that ferveth? Is not he that fitteth "at meat? but I am amongft you as he that "ferveth." Luke xxii. 27.

Thus in a world greatly difordered, where men afpiring to outward greatnefs were wont to opprefs others to fupport their defigns, he who was of the higheft defcent, being the Son of God, and greater than any amongft the greateft families of men, by his example and doctrines foreclofed his followers from claiming any fhew of outward greatnefs, from any

He who was greater than earthly princes, was not only meek and low of heart, but his outward appearance was plain and lowly, and free from every flain of the fpirit of this world.

Such was the example of our bleffed Redeemer, of whom the beloved difciple faid, "He that faith he abideth in him, ought " alfo to walk even as he walked."

John Bradford, who fuffered martyrdom, under queen Mary, wrote a letter to his friends out of prifon, a fhort time before he was burnt, in which are thefe expressions; "Confider your dignity as children of God and temples of the Holy Ghost, and members of Christ, be assumed therefore to think, speak, or do any thing unfeemly, for God's children and the members of Christ." . 10 23 1. . . .

On the example of CHRIST.

A S my mind hath been brought into a brotherly feeling with the poor, as to the things of this life, who are under trials in regard to getting a living in a way any werable to the purity of truth; a labour of heart heart hath attended me, that their way may not be made difficult through the love of money in those who are tried with plentiful estates, but that they with tenderness of heart may sympathize with them.

It was the faying of our bleffed Redeemer, "Ye cannot ferve God and mammon." There is a deep feeling of the way of purity, a way in which the wifdom of the world hath no part, but is opened by the fpirit of truth, and is "called the way of holinefs;" a way in which the traveller is employed in watching unto prayer; and the outward gain we get in this journey is confidered as a truft committed to us, by HIM who formed and fupports the world; and is the rightful director of the ufe and application of the product of it.

Now except the mind be preferved chafte, there is no fafety for us; but in an eftrangement from true refignation, the fpirit of the world cafts up a way, in which gain is many times principally attended to, and in which there is a felfifh application of outward treafures.

How agreeable to the true harmony of fociety, is that exhortation of the apoftle? " Look not every man on his own things, " but every man alfo on the things of others. " Let this mind be in you which was alfo in " Chrift Jefus."

A perfon in outward profperity may have the power of obtaining riches, but the fame mind being in him which is in Chrift Jefus, he

he may feel a tendernefs of heart towards those of low degree; and instead of fetting himself above them, may look upon it as an unmerited favour, that his way through life is more easy than the way of many others; may improve every opportunity of leading forth out of those customs which have entangled the family; employ his time in looking into the wants of the poor members, and hold forth such a perfect example of humiliation, that the pure witness may be reached in many minds; and the way opened for a harmonious walking together.

Jefus Chrift, in promoting the happinefs of others, was not deficient in looking for the helplefs, who lay in obfcurity, nor did he fave any thing to render himfelf honourable amongst men, which might have been of more use to the weak members in his Father's family; of whofe compaffion towards us I may now fpeak a little. He who was perfectly happy in himfelf, moved with infinite love, " took not upon him the nature of an-" gels," but our imperfect natures, and therein wreftled with the temptations which attend us in this life; and being the Son of HIM who is greater than earthly princes, yet became a companion to poor, fincere hearted men; and though he gave the clearest evidence that divine power attended him, yet the most unfavourable constructions were framed by a felf righteous people; those miracles reprefented as the effect of a diabolical power, and endeavours used to render him him hateful, as having his miffion from the prince of darknefs; nor did their envy ceafe till they took him like a criminal and brought him to trial. Though fome may affect to carry the appearance of being unmoved at the apprehension of diftrefs, our dear Redeemer, who was perfectly fincere, having the fame human nature which we have, and feeling, a little before he was apprehended, the weight of that work upon him, for which he came into the world, was "forrowful " even unto death;" here the human nature struggled to be excused from a cup fo bitter; but his prayers centered in refignation, "Not " my will but thine be done." In this conflict, fo great was his agony that "fweat " like drops of blood fell from him to the " ground."

Behold now as foretold by the prophet, he is in a judicial manner " numbered with the " tranfgreffors." Behold him as fome poor man of no reputation, ftanding before the high prieft and elders, and before Herod and Pilate, where witneffes appear againft him, and he mindful of the moft gracious defign of his coming, declineth to plead in his own defence, " but as a fheep that is dumb be-" fore his fhearer," fo under many accufations, revilings, and buffetings, remained filent. And tho' he fignified to Peter that he had accefs to power fufficient to overthrow all their outward forces ; yet retaining a refignation to fuffer for the fins of mankind, he exerted not that power, but permitted them to go on in their malicious defigns, and pronounce him to be worthy of death, even him who was perfect in goodnefs; thus " in his " humiliation his judgment was taken a-" way," and he, like fome vile criminal, " led as a lamb to the flaughter." Under thefe heavy trials (though poor unftable Pilate was convinced of his innocence, yet) the people generally looked upon him as a deceiver, a blafphemer, and the approaching punifhment as a juft judgment upon him, " They " efteemed him finitten of God and afflict-" ed." So great had been the furprize of his difciples, at his being taken by armed men, that they " forfook him and fled ;" thus they hid their faces from him, he was defpifed, and by their conduct it appeared as though " they efteemed him not."

But contrary to that opinion, of his being finitten of God and afflicted, it was for our fakes that "he was put to grief; he was "wounded for our tranfgreffions; he was "bruifed for our iniquities;" and under the weight of them manifelting the deepeft compaflion for the inftruments of his mifery, laboured as their advocate, and in the deeps of affliction, with an unconquerable patience, cried out, "Father forgive them, they "know not what they do!

Now this mind being in us, which was in Chrift Jefus, it removes from our hearts the defire of fuperiority, worldly honour or greatnefs; a deep attention is felt to the divine counfellor, and an ardent engagement to to promote, as far as we may be enabled, the happiness of mankind universally; this state, where every motion from a felfish spirit yieldeth to pure love, I may, with gratitude to the father of mercies acknowledge, is often opened before me as a pearl to dig after ; attended with a living concern, that amongft the many nations and families on the earth, thofe who believe in the Meffiah, that " he " was manifested to destroy the works of the " Devil," and thus to " take away the fins " of the world," may experience the will of our heavenly Father, " may be done on earth " as it is in heaven." Strong are the defires I often feel, that this holy profession may remain unpolluted, and the believers in Chrift may fo abide in the pure inward feeling of his fpirit, that the wildom from above may fhine forth in their living, as a light by which others may be instrumentally helped on their way, in the true harmonious walking.

C H A P. III.

On Merchandizing.

W H E R E the treasures of pure love are opened, and we obediently follow him who is the light of life, the mind becomes chaste; and a care is felt, that the unction from the holy one may be our leader in every undertaking.

In being crucified to the world, broken off from that friendship which is enmity with God, and dead to the cuftoms and fashions which have not their foundation in the truth : the way is prepared to lowlinefs in outward. living, and to a difentanglement from those fnares which attend the love of money; and where the faithful friends of Chrift are fo fituated that merchandize appears to be their duty, they feel a reftraint from proceeding farther than he owns their proceeding ; being convinced that " we are not our own but are " bought with a price, that none of us may " live to ourfelves, but to him who died for " us." 2 Corin. v. 15. Thus they are taught, not only to keep to a moderate advance and uprightness in their dealings; but to confider the tendency of their proceeding; to do nothing which they know would operate a-gainst the cause of universal righteousnes; and to keep continually in view the fpreading of the peaceable kingdom of Chrift amongst mankind.

The prophet Ifaiah fpake of the gathered church, in the fimilitude of a city, where many being employed were all preferved in purity; "They fhall call them the holy peo-"ple, the redeemed of the Lord, and thou "fhalt be called fought out, a city not for-"faken." lxiii. 10. And the apoftle after mentioning the myftery of Chrift's fufferings exhorts, "Be ye holy in all manner of con-"verfation." I Pet. i. 15. There is a converfation neceffary in trade; and there is a converfation converfation fo foreign from the nature of Chrift's kingdom, that it is reprefented in the fimilitude of one man pufhing another with a warlike weapon; "There is that fpeaketh "like the piercings of a fword." Prov. xii. 18. Now in all our concerns it is neceffary that the leading of the fpirit of Chrift be humbly waited for and faithfully followed, as the only means of being preferved chafte as an holy people, who " in all things are circumfpect." Exod. xxiii. 13, that nothing we do may carry the appearance of approbation of the works of wickednefs, make the unrighteous more at ea e in unrighteoufnefs, or occafion the injuries committed againft the opprefied to be more lightly looked over.

Where morality is kept to, and fupported by the inhabitants of a country, there is a certain reproach attends those individuals amongft them, who manifeftly deviate therefrom. Thus, if a perfon of good report, is charged with stealing goods out of an open fhop in the day time, and on a public trial found guilty, and the law in that cafe put in execution, he therein fuftains a lofs of reputation; but if he be convicted a fecond and third time of the like offence, his good name would ceafe amongit fuch who knew thefe things. If his neighbour, reputed an honeft man, being charged with buying goods of this thief, at a time when the purchaser knew they were stolen, and on a public trial is found guilty, this purchafer would meet with difesteem, but if he perfisted in buying stolen goods, goods, knowing them to be fuch, and was publicly convicted thereof a fecond and third time, he would no longer be confidered as an honeft man by them who knew these things; nor would it appear of good report to be found in his company, buying his traffick, till fome evident tokens of fincere repentance appeared in him. But where iniquity is committed openly, and the authors of it are not brought to justice, nor put to shame, their hands grow ftrong. Thus the general corruption of the Jews shortly before their ftate was broke up by the Chaldeans, is de-fcribed by their boldnefs in impiety; for as their leaders were connected together in wickednefs, they ftrengthened one another, and grew confident, "Were they ashamed when "they had committed abominations ? nay, " they were not at all ashamed, neither could " they blush." Jer. vi. 15, on which account the Lord thus expoftulates with them, "What " hath my beloved to do in my houfe, feeing " fhe hath wrought lewdnefs with many? " and the holy fielh is paffed from thee, " when thou doeft evil, then thou rejoiceft." Jer. xi. 15.

Now the faithful friends of Chrift, who hunger and thirft after righteoufnefs, and inwardly breath that his kingdom may come on earth as it is in heaven, he teacheth them to be quick of understanding in his fear, and to be very attentive to the means he may appoint for promoting pure righteoufnefs in the earth; and as shame is due to those whose B b works works manifefuly operate against the gracious defign of his fufferings for us, a care lives on their minds that no wrong customs however fupported, may biass their judgments, but that they may humbly abide under the cross and be preferved in a conduct which may not contribute to strengthen the hands of the wicked in their wickedness, or to remove schame from those to whom it is justly due. The coming of that day is precious in which we experience the truth of this expression. "The Lord our righteous for the strengthem the and feel him to be "made unto us wisdom " and fanctification."

The example of a righteous man is often looked at with attention. Where righteous, men join in bufinefs their company gives encouragement to others ; and as one grain of incenfe deliberately offered to the prince of this world, renders an offering to God in that ftate unacceptable ; and from those effeemed leaders of the people may be injurious to the weak ; it requires deep humility of heart, to follow him faithfully, who alone gives found wildom and the fpirit of true difcerning ; and O how neceffary it is, to confider the weight of a holy profession!

The conduct of fome formerly, gave occafion of complaint against them, "Thou hast "defiled thy fanctuaries by the multitude of "thine iniquities, by the iniquity of thy "traffick." Ezek. xxviii. 18, and in feveral places it is charged against Ifrael that they had polluted the holy name.

The

The prophet Ifaiah reprefents inward fanctification in the fimilitude of being purged from that which is fuel for fire; and particularly defcribes the outward fruits, brought forth by thofe who dwell in this inward holinefs, " they walk righteoufly, and fpeak " uprightly. By walking he reprefents the journey through life, as a righteous journey; and " by fpeaking uprightly," feems to point at that which Mofes appears to have had in view, when he thus expreffed himfelf, " Thou " fhalt not follow a multitude to do evil, " nor fpeak in a cafe to decline after many " to wreft judgment." Exod. xxiii. 2. He goes on to fhew their firmnefs in equity;

He goes on to fhew their firmnefs in equity; reprefenting them as perfons fuperior to all the arts of getting money, which have not righteoufnefs for their foundation; "They "defpife the gain of oppreflions:" and further fhews how careful they are that no profpects of gain may induce them to become partial in judgment refpecting an injury; "They fhake their hands from holding "bribes."

Again, where any intereft is fo connected with fhedding blood, that the cry of innocent blood goes alfo with it; he points out their care to keep innocent blood from crying against them, in the fimilitude of a man stopping his ears to prevent a found from entering his head, "They stop their ears from "hearing blood;" and where they know that wickedness is committed, he points out with care, that they do not by an unguarded B b 2 friendship friendship with the authors of it, appear like unconcerned lookers on, but as people fo deeply affected with forrow, that they cannot endure to stand by and behold it; this he reprefents in the similitude of a man " shutting " his eyes from feeing evil."

"Who amongft us fhall dwell with the de-"vouring fire? Who amongft us fhall dwell "with everlafting burnings? He that walketh rightcoufly and fpeaketh uprightly. He that defpifeth the gain of oppreffions, that fhaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that ftoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and fhutteth his eyes from feeing evil." Ifaiah xxxiii. 14, 15.

He proceeds in the fpirit of prophecy to fhew how the faithful being fupported under temptations, would be preferved from that defilement that there is in the love of money ; that as they who in a reverent waiting on God, feel their ftrength renewed, are faid to mount upward ;" fo here their prefervation from the fnare of unrighteous gain, is reprefented in the likeness of a man, borne up above all crafty, artful means of getting the advantage of another, " They shall dwell on " high; and points out the ftability and firmnefs of their condition, " His place of " defence shall be the munitions of rocks ;" and that under all the outward appearances of lofs, in denying himfelf of gainful profits for righteoufnefs fake, yet through the care of him who provides for the fparrows, he thould have a fupply answerable to his infinite nite wifdom, " Bread fhall be given him, " his waters fhall be fure." And as our Saviour mentions the fight of God to be attainable by " the pure in heart," fo here the prophet pointed out, how in true fanctification the understanding is opened, to behold the peaceable harmonious nature of his kingdom, " thine eyes fhall fee the king in his beauty :" and that looking beyond all the afflictions which attend the righteous, to " a habitati-" on eternal in the heavens," they with an eye divinely open " fhall behold the land that " is very far off.

"He fhall dwell on high, his place of defence fhall be the munitions of rocks, bread fhall be given him, his waters fhall be fure. Thine eyes fhall fee the king in his beauty; they fhall behold the land that is very far off." Ifaiah xxxiii. 16, 17.

I often remember, and to me the fubject is awful, that the great Judge of all the earth doeth that which is right, and that he " be-" fore whom the nations are as the drop of " a bucket," is " no refpecter of perfons." Happy for them, who like the infpired prophet, " in the way of his judgments wait for him." Ifaiah xxvi. 8.

When we feel him to fit as a refiner with fire, and know a refignedness wrought in us, to that which he appoints for us, his bleffing in a very low eftate, is found to be more precious than much outward treasure in those ways of life where the leadings of his spirit are not followed,

The prophet in a fight of divine work amongft many people, declared in the name of the Lord, " I will gather all nations and " tongues, and they ihall come and fee my " glory." Ifaiah lxvi. 18. And again, " from " the rifing of the fun to the going down of " the fame, my name fhall be great amongft " the Gentiles, and in every place incenfe " fhall be offered to my name, and a pure " offering." Malachi i. 11.

Behold here how the prophets had an inward fenfe of the fpreading of the kingdom of Chrift; and how he was fpoken of as one who thould " take the heathen for his inhe-" ritance, and the utmost parts of the earth " for his poffession." Pfal. ii. 8. That " he " was given for a light to the Gentiles; and " for falvation to the ends of the earth." Ifaiah xlix. 6.

When we meditate on this divine work, as a work of ages; a work that the prophets felt long before Chrift appeared vifibly on earth, and remember the bitter agonies he endured when he "poured out his foul unto death," that the heathen nations, as well as others, might come to the knowledge of the truth and be faved.

When we contemplate on this marvellous work, as that which " the angels defire to " look into." I Pet. i. 12. And behold people amongft whom this light hath eminently broken forth, and who have received many favours from the bountiful hand of our heavenly Father; not only indifferent with refpect fpect to publishing the glad tidings amongst the Gentiles, as yet fitting in darkness and entangled with many superstitions; but afpiring after wealth and worldly honours, take hold of means to obtain their ends, tending to stir up wrath and indignation, and to beget an abhorrence in them to the name of christianity. When these things are weightily attended to, how mournful is the fubject?

It is worthy of remembrance, that people in different ages, deeply baptifed into the nature of that work for which Chrift fuffered, have joyfully offered up their liberty and lives for the promoting of it in the earth.

Policarp, who was reputed a difciple of St. John, having attained to great age, was at length fentenced to die for his religion, and being brought to the fire, prayed nearly as follows, " Thou God and Father of our Lord Jefus Chrift, by whom I have received the knowledge of thee! O God of the angels and powers, and of every living creature, and of all forts of just men which live in thy prefence. I thank thee! that thou haft gracioufly vouchfafed this day and this hour to allot me a portion among the number of martyrs, among the people of Chrift, unto the refurrection of everlafting life; among whom I shall be received in thy fight, this day, as a fruitful and acceptable facrifice, wherefore for all this, I praife thee, I blefs thee, I glorify thee through the everlafting high Prieft, Jefus Chrift, thy well beloved fon :

fon; to whom, with thee and the holy Ghoft, be all glory, world without end. Amen. Bishop Latimer, when sentence of death by fire, was pronounced against him, on account of his firmness in the cause of religion, he faid, " I thank God moft heartily ! that he hath prolonged my life to this end; that I may, in this cafe glorify him by this kind of death." Fox's Acts and Mon. 936.

William Dewfbery, who had fuffered much for his religion, in his last fickness, encouraging his friends to faithfulnefs, made mention, like good old Jacob, of the loving kindnefs of God to him in the courfe of his life, and that through the power of divine love, he for Chrift's fake had joyfully entered prifons. See introduction to his works.

I mention thefe, as a few examples, out of many, of the powerful operation of the fpirit of Chrift, where people are fully devoted to it, and of the ardent longings in their minds for the fpreading of his kingdom amongst mankind. Now to those, in the present age, who truly know Chrift, and feel the nature of his peaceable government opened in their, understandings, how loud is that call wherewith we are called to faithfulnefs; that in following this pure light of life, "we as "workers together with him," may labour. in that great work for which he was offered as a facrifice on the crofs; and that his peaceable doctrines may fhine through us in their real harmony, at a time when the name of christianity,

When Gehazi had obtained treafures, which the prophet under divine direction had refufed, and was returned from the bufinefs; the prophet troubled at his conduct, queried if it was a time thus to prepare for a fpecious living.

" Is it a time to receive money and gar-"ments, men fervants and maid fervants, "the leprofy therefore of Naaman fhall cleave to thee and to thy feed forever." 2 Kings v. 26. And O that we may lay to heart the condition of the prefent time! and humbly follow his counfel, who alone is able to prepare the way for a true harmonious walking amongft mankind.

On digine Admonitions.

S U G H are the perfections of our heavenly Father, that in all the difpenfations of his providence, it is our duty, " in every " thing, to give thanks." Though from the first fettlement of this part of America, he hath not extended his judgments to the degree of famine, yet worms at times have come forth beyond numbering, and laid wafte fields of grain and grafs, where they have appeared : another kind, in great multitudes, working

These kind of devouring creatures appearing feldom, and coming in such multitudes, their generation appears different from most other reptiles, and by the prophet were called "God's army fent amongst the people." Joel ii. 25.

There have been tempests of hail, which have very much deftroyed the grain where they extended. Through long drought in fummer, grain in fome places hath been lefs. than half the usual quantity *; and in the continuance thereof, I have beheld with attention, from week to week, how drynefs from the top of the earth, hath extended deeper and deeper, while the corn and plants have languished; and with reverence my mind hath been turned toward HIM, who being perfect in goodnefs, in wifdom and power, doeth all things right. And after long drought, when the fky hath grown dark with a collection of matter, and clouds like lakes of water hung over our heads, from whence the thirfty land hath been foaked; I have at times, with awfulnefs; beheld the vehement operation of lightning, made fometimes to accompany these bleffings, as a meffenger fenger from HIM who created all things, to remind us of our duty in a right use of those benefits, and give striking admonitions, that we do not misapply those gifts, in which an Almighty power is exerted, in bestowing them upon us.

When I have confidered that many of our fellow creatures fuffer much in fome places, for want of the neceffaries of life, whilft thofe who rule over them are too much given to luxury, and divers vanitics; and behold the apparent deviation from pure wifdom amongft us, in the ufe of the outward gifts of God; thofe marks of famine have appeared like humbling admonitions from him, that we might be inftructed by gentle chaftifements, and might ferioufly confider our ways; remembring that the outward fupply of life is a gift from our heavenly Father, and that we fhould no more venture to ufe, or apply his gifts, in a way contrary to pure wifdom.

Should we continue to reject those merciful admonitions, and use his gifts at home, contrary to the gracious defign of the giver, or fend them abroad in a way of trade, which the spirit of truth doth not lead into; and should he whose eyes are upon all our ways, extend his chassifiements fo far as to reduce us to much greater diffress than hath yet been felt by these provinces; with what forrow of heart might we meditate on that subject, "Hast thou not procured this unto thy felf, in that thou hast for faken the Lord thy God, when he led thee by the way? "Thine

My mind hath often been affected with forrow, in beholding a wrong application of the gifts of our heavenly Father; and thofe expressions concerning the defilement of the earth have been opened to my understanding, "The earth was corrupt before God, and "the earth was filled with violence." Gen. vi. 11. Again, Ifaiah xxiv. 5. "The earth " alfo, is defiled under the inhabitants there-" of, because they have-broken the ever-" lafting covenant."

Moreover, when the earth is planted and tilled, and the fruits brought forth are applied to fupport unrighteous purpofes; here the gracious defign of infinite goodnefs, in thefé his gifts being perverted, the earth is defiled; and the complaint formerly uttered becomes applicable; "Thou haft made me to ferve " with thy fins; thou haft wearied me with " thine iniquities." HEN we love the Lord with all our hearts, and his creatures in his love, we are then preferved in tendernefs both toward mankind and the animal creation; but if another fpirit gets room in our minds, and we follow it in our proceedings, we are then in the way of difordering the affairs of fociety.

If a man fuccefsful in bufinefs expends part of his income in things of no real ufe, while the poor employed by him pass through great difficulties in getting the neceffaries of life, this requires his ferious attention.

If feveral principal men in bufinefs unite in fetting the wages of those who work for hire, and therein have regard to a profit to themfelves answerable to unneceffary expence in their families, while the wages of the others on a moderate industry will not afford a comfortable living for their families, and a proper education for their children; this is like laying a temptation in the way of fome to strive for a place higher than they are in, when they have not stock fufficient for it.

Now I feel a concern in the fpring of pure love, that all who have plenty of outward fubftance, may example others in the right ufe of things; may carefully look into the condition of poor people, and beware of exacting on them with regard to their wages.

While hired labourers, by moderate induftry, through the divine bleffing, may live comfortably, raife up families, and give them fuitable education, it appears reafonable for them to be content with their wages.

If they who have plenty, love their fellow creatures in that love which is divine, and in all their proceedings have an equal regard to the good of mankind univerfally, their place in fociety is a place of care, an office requiring attention, and the more we poffefs, the greater is our truft, and with an increase of treasure, an increase of care becomes neceffary.

When our will is fubject to the will of God, and in relation to the things of this world, we have nothing in view, but a comfortable living living equally with the reft of our fellow creatures, then outward treafures are no farther defirable than as we feel a gift in our minds equal to the truft, and ftrength to act as dutiful children in his fervice, who hath formed all mankind, and appointed a fubfiftence for us in this world.

A defire for treafures on any other motive, appears to be against that command of our bleffed Saviour, " Lay not up for yourfelves " treafures on earth, Mat. vi. 19.

He forbids not laying up in the fummer against the wants of winter; nor doth he teach us to be flothful in that which properly relates to our being in this world; but in this prohibition he puts in yourfelves "Lay " not up for yourfelves treasures here on " earth."

Now in the pure light, this language is underftood, for in the love of Chrift there is no refpect of perfons; and while we abide in his love, we live not to ourfelves, but to him who died for us. And as we are thus united in fpirit to Chrift, we are engaged to labour in promoting that work in the earth for which he fuffered.

In this flate of mind our defires are, that every honeft member in fociety may have a portion of treafure, and fhare of truft, anfwerable to that gift, with which our heavenly Father hath gifted us.

A pious

A pious man is content to do a fhare of bufinefs in fociety, anfwerable to the gifts with which he is endowed, while the channels of bufinefs are free from unrighteoufnefs, but is careful left at any time his heart be overcharged.

In the harmonious fpirit of fociety " Chrift " is all in all," Col. iii. 11.

Here it is that " old things are paft away, " all things are new, all things arc of God," 2 Cor. v. 17, 18. and the defire for outward riches is at an end.

They of low degree who have finall gifts. enjoy their help who have large gifts; thofe with their finall gifts, have a finall degree of care, while thefe with their large gifts, have a large degree of care: and thus to abide in the love of Chrift, and enjoy a comfortable living in this world is all that is aimed at by thofe members in fociety, to whom Chrift is made wifdom and righteoufnefs.

But when they who have much treafure, are not faithful flewards of the gifts of God, great difficulties attend it.

Now this matter hath deeply affected my mind. The Lord, through merciful chaftifements, hath given me a feeling of that love; in which the harmony of fociety flandeth, and a fight of the growth of that feed which bringeth forth wars and great calamities in the world, and a labour attends me to open it to others.

Now to act with integrity, according to that ftrength of mind and body with which

our creator hath endowed each of us, appears neceffary for all, and he who thus ftands in the loweft ftation, appears to be entitled to as comfortable and convenient a living, as he whofe gifts of mind are greater, and whofe cares are more extensive.

If fome endowed with ftrong understand ings as men, abide not in the harmonious ftate, in which we " love our neighbours as " ourfelves," but walk in that fpirit in which the children of this world are wife in their generation; thefe by the ftrength of contrivance may fometimes gather great treasure, but the wifdom of this world is foolifhnefs with God; and if we gather treasures in worldly wifdom, we lay up " treasures for " ourfelves ;" and great treasures managed in any other fpirit, than the fpirit of truth, difordereth the affairs of fociety, for hereby the good gifts of God in this outward creation are turned into the channels of worldly, honour, and frequently applied to fupport luxury, while the wages of poor labourers are fuch, that with moderate industry and frugality they may not live comfortably, raife up families, and give them fuitable education, but through the ftreightness of their condition, are often drawn on to labour under wearinefs, to toil through hardfhips themfelves, and frequently to oppress those useful animals with which we are entrusted.

From age to age, throughout all ages, divine love is that alone, in which dominion has been, is, and will be rightly conducted.

In this the endowments of men are fo employed, that the friend and the governor are united in one, and oppreflive cuftoms come to an end.

Riches in the hands of individuals in fociety, is attended with fome degree of power; and fo far as power is put forth feparate from pure love, fo far the government of the Prince of Peace is interrupted; and as we know not that our children after us will dwell in that ftate in which power is rightly applied, to lay up riches for them appears to be againft the nature of his government.

The earth, through the labour of men under the bleffing of him who formed it, yieldeth a fupply for the inhabitants from generation to generation, and they who walk in the pure light, their minds are prepared to tafte and relifh not only those bleffings which are fpiritual, but also feel a fweetness and fatisfaction in a right use of the good gifts of God in the visible creation.

Here we fee that man's happinels stands not in great possession, but in a heart devoted to follow Christ, in that use of things, where customs contrary to universal love have no power over us.

In this flate our hearts are prepared to truft in God, and our defires for our children and posterity are, that they, with the rest of mankind, in ages to come, may be of that number, of whom he hath faid, " I will be a "father to them, and they shall be my fons " and daughters," 2 Cor. vi. 18.

When

STUTIES, CITS

When wages in a fruitful land bear fo fmall a proportion to the neceffaries of life, that poor honeft people who have families cannot by a moderate induftry attain to a comfortable living, and give their children fufficient learning, but muft either labour to a degree of opprefion, or elfe omit that which appears to be a duty.

While this is the cafe with the poor, there is an inclination in the minds of moft people, to prepare at leaft fo much treafure for their children, that they with care and moderate industry may live free from these hardships which the poor pass through.

Now this fubject requireth our ferious confideration : to labour that our children may be put in a way to live comfortably, appears in itfelf to be a duty, fo long as thefe our labours are confiftent with univerfal righteoufnefs; but if in ftriving to fhun poverty, we do not walk in that flate where " Chrift is " our life," then we wander; " He that " hath the Son, hath life," I John v. 12. " This life is the light of men," John i. 4. If we walk not in this light, we walk in darknefs, and " he that walketh in darknefs, " knoweth not whither he goeth," John xii. 35.

To keep to right means in labouring to attain a right end is neceffary : if in ftriving to fhun poverty, we ftrive only in that ftate, where Chrift is the light of our life, our labours will ftand in the true harmony of fociety; but if people are confident that the end end aimed at is good, and in this confidence purfue it fo eagerly, as not to wait for the fpirit of truth to lead them, then they come to lofs. " Chrift is given to be a leader and " commander of the people," Ifaiah lv. 4. Again ; " The Lord fhall guide thee conti-" nually," Ifaiah lviii. 12. Again ; " Lord, " thou wilt ordain peace for us, for thou " alfo haft wrought all our works in us." Ifaiah xxvi. 12.

" In the Lord have we righteoufnefs and " ftrength," Ifaiah xlv. 24.

In this ftate our minds are preferved watchful in following the leadings of his fpirit in all our proceedings in this world, and a care is felt for a reformation in general; that our own posterity, with the rest of mankind in fucceeding ages, may not be entangled by oppreflive cuftoms, transmitted to them through our hands : but if people in the narrownefs of natural love, are afraid that their children will be oppreffed by the rich, and through an eager defire to get treafures, depart from the pure leadings of truth in one cafe, though it may feem to be a fmall matter, yet the mind even in that finall matter may be emboldened to continue in a way of proceeding, without waiting for the divine Leader.

Thus people may grow expert in bufinefs, wife in the wifdom of this world, retain a fair reputation amongft men, and yet being ftrangers to the voice of Chrift, the fafe leader of his flock, the treafures thus gotten, may

Now to keep faithful to the pure counfellor, and under trying circumstances fuffer adverfity for righteousness fake, in this there is a reward.

If we, being poor, are hardly dealt with by those who are rich, and under this difficulty are frugal and industrious, and in true humility open our case to them who oppress us, this may reach the pure witness in their minds; and though we should remain under difficulties as to the outward, yet if we abide in the love of Christ, all will work for our good.

When we feel what it is to fuffer in the true fuffering flate, then we experience the truth of those expressions, that, "as the fufferings "of Christ abound in us, so our consolation "aboundeth by Christ," 2 Cor. i. 5.

But if poor people who are hardly dealt with, do not attain to the true fuffering flate, do not labour in true love with those who deal hardly with them, but envy their outward greatness, murmur in their hearts becaufe of their own poverty, and flrive in the wisdom of this world to get riches for themfelves and their children; this is like wandering in the dark.

If we who are of a middle flation between riches and poverty, are affected at times with the opprefilons of the poor, and feel a tender regard for our posterity after us; O how neceffary

Many have feen the hardfhips of the poor, felt an eager defire that their children may be put in a way to efcape thefe hardfhips; but how few have continued in that pure love which openeth our understandings to proceed rightly under thefe difficulties !

How few have faithfully followed that holy Leader who prepares his people to labour for the reftoration of true harmony amongst our fellow-creatures !

"In the pure gofpel fpirit we walk by faith and not by fight," 2 Cor. v. 7.

In the obedience of faith we die to the narrownefs of felf-love, and our life being hid with Chrift in God, our hearts are enlarged toward mankind univerfally; but in departing from the true light of life, many in ftriving to get treafures have flumbled upon the dark mountains.

the dark mountains. Now that purity of life which proceeds from faithfulnels in following the fpirit of truth, that flate where our minds are devoted to ferve God, and all our wants are bounded by his wifdom, this habitation has often been opened before me as a place of retirement for the children of the light, where we may fland feparated from that which difordereth and confufeth the affairs of fociety, and where we may have a teftimony of our innocence in the hearts of those who behold us.

Through

Through departing from the truth as it is in Jefus, through introducing ways of life attended with unneceffary expences, many wants have arifen, the minds of people have been employed in fludying to get wealth, and in this purfuit fome departing from equity, have retained a profeffion of religion; others have looked at their example, and thereby been ftrengthened to proceed further in the fame way: thus many have encouraged the trade of taking men from Africa, and felling them as flaves.

It hath been computed that near one hundred thousand Negroes have of late years been taken annually from that coast, by thips employed in the English trade.

As I have travelled on religious vifits in fome parts of America, I have feen many of these people under the command of overseers, in a painful fervitude.

I have beheld them as Gentiles under people profeffing chriftianity, not only kept ignorant of the holy fcriptures, but under great provocations to wrath; of whom it may truly be faid, "They that rule over them "make them to howl, and the holy Name is "abundantly blafphemed," Ifaiah lii. 5. Where children are taught to read the facred writings, while young, and exampled in mecknefs and humility, it is often helpful to them; nor is this any more than a debt due from us to a fucceeding age.

But where youth are pinched for want of the neceffaries of life, forced to labour hard under under the harfh rebukes of rigorous overfeers, and many times endure unmerciful whippings: in fuch an education, how great are the difadvantages they lie under! And how forcibly do thefe things work against the increase of the government of the Prince of Peace!

Humphrey Smith, in his works, p. 125, fpeaking of the tender feelings of the love of God in his heart when he was a child, faid, " By the violent wrathful nature that ruled in others, was my quietnefs diffurbed, and anger begotten in me toward them, yet that of God in me was not wholly overcome, but his love was felt in my heart, and great was my grief when the earthly-mindednefs and wrathful nature fo provoked me, that I was eftranged from it."

"And this I write as a warning to parents and others, that in the fear of the living God, you may train up the youth, and may not be a means of bringing them into fuch alienation."

Many are the vanities and luxuries of the prefent age, and in labouring to fupport a way of living conformable to the prefent world, the departure from that wifdom that is pure and peaceable, hath been great.

Under the fenfe of a deep revolt, and an overflowing ftream of unrighteoufnefs, my life has been often a life of mourning, and tender defires are raifed in me, that the nature of this practice may be laid to heart.

I have

I have read fome books wrote by people who were acquainted with the manner of getting flaves in Africa.

I have had verbal relations of this nature from feveral Negroes brought from Africa, who have learned to talk English.

I have fundry times heard Englishmen fpeak on this fubject, who have been in Africa on this bufines; and from all these accounts it appears evident that great violence is committed, and much blood shed in Africa in getting flaves.

When three or four hundred flaves are put in the hold of a veffel in a hot climate, their breathing foon affects the air. Were that number of free people to go paffengers with all things proper for their voyage, there would inconvenience arife from their number; but flaves are taken by violence, and frequently endeavour to kill the white people, that they may return to their native land. Hence they are frequenty kept under fuch a fort of confinement, by means of which a fcent arifeth in the hold of a fhip, and diftempers often break out amongst them, of which many die. Of this tainted air in the hold of fhips freighted with flaves, I have. had feveral accounts, fome in print, and fome verbal, and all agree that the fcent is grievous. When these people are fold in America, and in the islands, they are made to labour in a manner more fervile and conftant, than that which they were used to at home, that with with grief, with different diet from what has been common with them, and with hard labour, fome thousands are computed to die every year, in what is called the feasoning.

Thus it appears evident, that great numbers of these people are brought every year to an untimely end; many of them being fuch who never injured us.

Where the innocent fuffer under hardhearted men, even unto death, and the channels of equity are for obftructed, that the caufe of the fufferers is not judged in righteoufnefs, " the land is polluted with blood," Numb. xxxv. 33.

Where blood hath been fhed unrighteoufly, and remains unattoned for, the cry thereof is very piercing.

Under the humbling difpenfations of divine Providence, this cry hath deeply affected my heart, and I feel a concern to open, as I maybe enabled, that which lieth heavy on my mind.

When " the iniquity of the houfe of Ifrael " and of Judah was exceeding great, when " the land was defiled with blood, and the " city full of perverfnefs," Ezek. ix. 9. " Some were found fighing and crying for " the abominations of the times," Ezek. ix. 4. and fuch who live under a right feeling of our condition as a nation, thefe I truft will be fenfible that the Lord at this day doth call to mourning, though many are ignorant of it. So powerful are bad cuftoms when they become general, that people growing bold thro' thro' the examples one of another, have often been unmoved at the most ferious warnings.

Our bleffed Saviour fpeaking of the people of the old world, faid, "They eat, they "drank, they married, and were given in "marriage, until the day that Noah went "into the ark, and the flood came and de-"ftroyed them all," Luke xvii. 27.

The like he fpake concerning the people of Sodom, who are alfo reprefented by the prophet as haughty, luxurious, and opprefive; "This was the fin of Sodom, pride, fulnefs "of bread, and abundance of idlenefs was "found in her, and in her daughters; nei-"ther did fhe ftrengthen the hands of the "poor and needy," Ezek. xvi. 49.

Now in a revolt fo deep as this, when much blood has been fhed unrighteoufly, in carrying on the flave-trade, and in fupporting the practice of keeping flaves, which at this day is unattoned for, and crieth from the carth, and from the feas against the oppreffor !

While this practice is continued, and under a great load of guilt there is more unrighteoufnefs committed, the flate of things is very moving !

There is a love which ftands in nature, and a parent beholding his child in mifery hath a feeling of the affliction; but in divine love the heart is enlarged towards mankind univerfally, and prepared to fympathife with ftrangers, though in the loweft ftations in life.

Of this the prophet appears to have had a feeling, when he faid, "Have we not all one "Father ? Hath not one God created us ? "Why then do we deal treacheroufly every "man with his brother, in prophaning the "covenant of our fathers ?" Mal. ii. 10.

He who of old heard the groans of the children of Ifrael under the hard tafk-mafters in Egypt, I truft hath looked down from his holy habitation on the miferies of thefe deeply oppreffed people. Many lives have been fhortned through extreme oppreffion, while they laboured to fupport luxury and worldly greatnefs; and tho' many people in outward profperity may think little of thofe things, yet the gracious Creator hath regard to the cries of the innocent, however unnoticed by men.

The Lord in the riches of his goodnefs is leading fome into the feeling of the condition of this people, who cannot reft without labouring as their advocates ; of which in fome meafure I have had experience, for, in the movings of his love in my heart, thefe poor fufferers have been brought near to me.

The unoffending aged and infirm made to labour too hard, kept on a diet lefs comfortable than their weak ftate required, and exposed to great difficulties under hard-hearted men, to whose fufferings I have often been a witnefs, and under the heart-melting power of divine love, their misery hath felt to me like the misery of my parents.

Innocent

Innocent youth taken by violence from their native land, from their friends and acquaintance; put on board fhips with hearts laden with forrow; expofed to great hardfhips at fea; placed under people, where their lives have been attended with great provocation to anger and revenge.

With the condition of these youth, my mind hath often been affected, as with the afflictions of my children, and in a feeling of the misery of these people, and of that great offence which is ministered to them, my tears have been often poured out before the Lord.

That holy Spirit which affected my heart when I was a youth, I truft is often felt by the Negroes in their native land, inclining their minds to that which is righteous, and had the profeffed followers of Chrift in all their conduct toward them, manifested a difposition answerable to the pure principle in their hearts, how might the holy Name have been honoured amongst the Gentiles, and how might we have rejoiced in the fulfilling of that prophecy, " I the Lord love judg-66 ment, I hate robbery for burnt-offerings, 66 and I will direct their work in truth, and make an everlasting covenant with them. 66 " Their feed shall be known amongst the 66 Gentiles, and their offspring amongst the 66 people : all that fee them fhall acknowledge 66 them, that they are the feed which the " Lord hath bleffed," Ifaiah lxi. 8, 9.

But

But in the prefent flate of things, how contrary is this practice to that meek fpirit, in which our Saviour laid down his life for us, that all the ends of the earth might know falvation in his name !

How are the fufferings of our bleffed Redeemer fet at nought, and his name blafphemed amongst the Gentiles, through the unrighteous proceedings of his professed followers!

My mind hath often been affected, even from the days of my youth, under a fense of that marvellous work, for which God, in infinite goodness, fent his Son into the world.

The opening of that fpring of living waters, which the true believers in Chrift experience, by which they are redeemed from pride and covetoufnefs, and brought into a flate of meeknefs, where their hearts are enlarged in true love toward their fellow creatures univerfally; this work to me has been precious, and the fpreading the knowledge of the truth amongft the Gentiles been very defirable. And the profeffed followers of Chrift joining in cuftoms evidently unrighteous, which manifeftly tend to flir up wrath, and increafe wars and defolations, hath often covered my mind with forrow.

If we bring this matter home, and as Job proposed to his friends, "Put our foul in "their foul's stead," Job xvi. 4.

If we confider ourfelves and our children as exposed to the hardships which these people ple lie under in fupporting an imaginary greatnefs.

Did we in fuch cafe behold an increase of luxury and superfluity amongst our oppresfors, and therewith felt an increase of the weight of our burdens, and expected our poflerity to groan under oppression after us.

Under all this mifery, had we none to plead our caufe, nor any hope of relief from man, how would our cries afcend to the God of the fpirits of all flefh, who judgeth the world in righteoufnefs, and in his own time is a refuge for the oppreffed !

If they who thus afflicted us, continued to lay claim to religion, and were affifted in their bufinefs by others, efteemed pious people, who through a friendfhip with them ftrengthened their hands in tyranny.

In fuch a ftate, when we were hunger-bitten, and could not have fufficient nourifhment, but faw them in fulnefs pleafing their tafte with things fetched from far :

When we were wearied with labour, denied the liberty to reft, and faw them fpending their time at eafe : when garments anfwerable to our neceffities were denied us, while we faw them cloathed in that which was coftly and delicate :

Under fuch affliction, how would thefe painful feelings rife up as witneffes againft their pretended devotion ! And if the name of their religion was mentioned in our hearing, how would it found in our ears like a word word which fignified felf-exaltation, and hardnefs of heart !

When a trade is carried on, productive of much mifery, and they who fuffer by it are fome thousand miles off, the danger is the greater, of not laying their fufferings to heart.

In procuring flaves on the coaft of Africa, many children are ftolen privately; wars alfo are encouraged amongst the Negroes, but all is at a great diftance.

Many groans arife from dying men, which we hear not.

Many cries are uttered by widows and fatherlefs children, which reach not our ears.

Many cheeks are wet with tears, and faces fad with unutterable grief, which we fee not.

Cruel tyranny is encouraged. The hands of robbers are ftrengthened, and thoufands reduced to the most abject flavery, who never injured us.

Were we for the term of one year only to be eye-witneffes to what paffeth in getting thefe flaves :

Was the blood which is there fhed to be fprinkled on our garments :

Were the poor captives bound with thongs, heavy laden with elephants teeth, to pafs before our eyes on their way to the fea :

Were their bitter lamentations day after day to ring in our ears, and their mournful cries in the night to hinder us from fleeping:

Dd

Were

Were we to hear the found of the tumult when the flaves on board the fhips attempt to kill the English, and behold the iffue of those bloody conflicts:

Through abiding in the love of Chrift we feel a tendernefs in our hearts toward our fellow-creatures, entangled in oppreflive cuftoms; and a concern to to walk, that our conduct may not be a means of ftrengthening them in error.

It was the command of the Lord through Mofes, "Thou shalt not fuffer fin upon thy "brother: thou shalt in anywife rebuke thy "brother, and shalt not fuffer fin upon "him." Lev. xix. 17.

Again; "Keep far from a falfe matter; " and the innocent and righteous flay thou " not." Exod. xxiii. 7.

The prophet Ifaiah mentions opprefion as that which the true church in time of outward quiet thould not only be clear of, but thould be far from it; "Thou thalt be far "from opprefion." Ifaiah liv. 14. Now thefe words, far from, appear to have an extentive meaning, and to convey inftruction in regard to that of which Solomon fpeaks, "Though hand join in hand, the wicked "fhall not go unpunifhed." Prov. xvi. 5.

It was a complaint against one of old, "When thou fawest a thief, thou confent-"edst with him," Pfal. 1, 18. The

The prophet Jeremiah reprefents the degrees of preparation toward idolatrous facrifice," in the fimilitude of a work carried on by children, men, and women. " The " children gather wood, the fathers kindle " the fire, and the women knead the dough " to bake cakes for the queen of heaven." Jer. vii. 18.

It was a complaint of the Lord against Ifrael, through his prophet Ezekiel, that " they " strengthened the hands of the wicked, and " made the hearts of the righteous fad." Ezek. xiii. 12.

Some works of iniquity carried on by the people were reprefented by the prophet Hofea, in the fimilitude of ploughing, reaping, and eating the fruit; "You have ploughed wick-"ednefs, reaped iniquity, eaten the fruit of "lying, becaufe thou didft truft in thy own "way, to the multitude of thy mighty men." Hofea x. 13.

I have felt great diftrefs of mind fince I came on this illand, on account of the members of our fociety being mixed with the world in various forts of bufinefs and traffic, carried on in impure channels. Great is the trade to Africa for flaves; and in loading thefe flips abundance of people are employed in the manufactories.

Friends in early time refufed, on a religious principle, to make or trade in fuperfluities, of which we have many large teftimonies on record, but for want of faithfulnefs fome gave way, even fome whole examples of D d 2 min.day were were of note in fociety, and from thence others took more liberty : members of our fociety worked in fuperfluities, and bought and fold them, and thus dimnefs of fight came over many. At length, friends got into the ufe of fome fuperfluities in drefs, and in the furniture of their houfes, and this hath fpread from lefs to more, till fuperfluity of fome kinds is common amongft us.

In this declining flate many look at the example one of another, and too much neglect the pure feeling of truth. Of late years a deep exercife hath attended my mind, that friends may dig deep, may carefully caft forth the loofe matter, and get down to the rock, the fure foundation, and there hearken to that divine voice which gives a clear and certain found.

And I have felt in that which doth not deceive, that if friends who have known the truth, keep in that tendernefs of heart, where all views of outward gain are given up, and their truft is only on the Lord, he will gracioufly lead fome to be patterns of deep telfdenial, in things relating to trade, and handicraft labour; and that fome who have plenty of the treafures of this world, will example in a plain frugal life, and pay wages to fuch whom they may hire, more liberally than is now cuftomary in fome places.

- The prophet, fpeaking of the true church, faid, "Thy people alfo fhall be all righte-"ous."

OuOf the depth of this divine work feveral have fpoken. John

John Gratton, in his journal, p. 45, faid, "The Lord is my portion, I fhall not want. He hath wrought all my works in me. I am nothing but what I am in him."

Gilbert Latey, through the powerful operations of the fpirit of Chrift in his foul, was brought to that depth of felf-denial, that he could not join with that proud fpirit in other people, which inclined them to want vanities and fuperfluities. This friend was often amongft the chief rulers of the nation in times of perfecution, and it appears by the teftimony of friends, that his dwelling was fo evidently in the pure life of truth, that in his vifits to thofe great men, he found a place in their minds ; and that king James the fecond, in the times of his troubles, made particular mention in a very refpectful manner of what Gilbert once faid to him.

The faid Gilbert found a concern to write an epiftle, in which are thefe expressions; "Fear the Lord, ye men of all forts, trades, and callings, and leave off all the evil that is in them, for the Lord is grieved with all the evils used in your employments which you are exercised in."

" It is even a grief to fee how you are fervants to fin, and inftruments of Satan." See his works, p. 42, &c.

George Fox, in an epiftle, writes thus: "Friends, ftand in the eternal power of God, witneffes against the pomps and vanities of this world."

"Such tradefmen who ftand as witneffes in the power of God, cannot fulfil the people's minds in these vanities, and therefore they are offended at them."

"Let all truft in the Lord, and wait patiently on him; for when truth first broke forth in London, many tradefinen could not take fo much money in their stops for some time, as would buy them bread and water, because they withstood the world's ways, fashions, and customs; yet by their patient waiting on the Lord in their good life and conversation, they answered the truth in people's hearts, and thus their business increased." Book of Doctrinals, p. 824.

Now Chrift our holy leader gracioufly continueth to open the underftandings of his people, and as circumftances alter from age to age, fome who are deeply baptized into a feeling of the ftate of things, are led by his holy fpirit into exercises in fome refpect different from those which attended the faithful in foregoing ages, and through the constrainings of pure love, are engaged to open the feelings they have to others.

In faithfully following Chrift, the heart is weaned from the defire of riches, and we are led into a life fo plain and fimple, that a little doth fuffice, and thus the way openeth to deny ourfelves, under all the tempting allurements of that gain, which we know is the gain of unrighteoufnefs.

The apostle speaking on this subject, asketh, eth this queffion; "What fellowship hath "righteousness with unrighteousness?" 2 Cor. vi. 114.1 And again saith, "Have no fellow-"ship with the unfruitful works of darkness, "but rather reprove them," Ephes. v. 11. Again, "Be not partaker of other men's "fins, keep thyself pure." I Tim. v. 22.

Where people through the power of Chrift are thoroughly fettled in a right ufe of things, freed from all unneceffary care and expence, the mind in this true refignation is at liberty from the bands of a narrow felf-intereft, to attend from time to time on the movings of his fpirit upon us, though he leads into that, through which our faith is clofely tried.

The language of Chrift is pure, and to the pure in heart, this pure language is intelligible; but in the love of money, the mind being intent on gain, is too full of human contrivance to attend to it.

It appeareth evident, that fome channels of trade are defiled with unrighteoufnefs, that the minds of many are intent on getting treafures to fupport a life, in which there are many unneceffary expences.

And I feel a living concern attend my mind, that under thefe difficulties we may humbly follow our heavenly fhepherd, who gracioufly regardeth his flock, and is willing and able to fupply us both inwardly and out-wardly with clean provender, that hath been winnowed with the flovel and the fan, where we may " fow to ourfelves in righteoufnefs, " reap

" reap in mercy," Hofea x. 12. and not be defiled with the works of iniquity.

Where cuftoms contrary to pure wifdom are transmitted to posterity, it appears to be an injury committed against them; and I often feel tender compassion toward a young generation, and defires that their difficulties may not be increased through unfaithfulness in us of the present age.

On a Sailor's Life.

N the trade to Africa for flaves, and in the management of fhips going on these voyages, many of our lads and young men have a confiderable part of their education.

Now what pious father beholding his fon placed in one of these fhips, to learn the practice of a mariner, could forbear mourning over him ?

Where youth are exampled in means of getting money, fo full of violence, and ufed to exercife fuch cruelties on their fellow-creatures, the difadvantage to them in their education is very great.

But I feel it in my mind to write concerning the feafaring life in general.

the produce of the labour of flaves is a confiderable part.

And failors who are frequently at ports where flaves abound, and converfe often with people who opprefs them without the appearance of remorfe, and often with failors employed in the flave trade, how powerfully do thefe evil examples fpread amongst the feafaring youth !

I have had many opportunities to feel and underftand the general flate of the feafaring life amongft us, and my mind hath often been fad on account of fo many lads and young men being trained up amidft fo great corruption.

Under the humbling power of Chrift I have feen, that if the leadings of his holy fpirit were faithfully attended to by his profeffed followers in general, the heathen nations would be exampled in righteoufnefs. A lefs number of people would be employed on the feas. The channels of trade would be more free from defilement. Fewer people would be employed in vanities and fuperfluities.

The inhabitants of cities would be lefs in number.

More people would be employed in the fweet employment of hufbandry, and in the path of pure wifdom, labour would be an agreeable, healthful employment.

410 ON A SAILOR'S LIFE.

In the opening of these things in my mind, I feel a living concern that we who have felt divine love in our hearts may faithfully abide in it, and like good foldiers endure hardness for Christ's fake.

He, our bleffed Saviour, exhorting his followers to love one another, adds, "As I " have loved you." John xiii. 34.

He loved Lazarus, yet in his ficknefs did not heal him, but left him to endure the pains of death, that in reftoring him to life, the people might be confirmed in the true faith.

He loved his difciples, but fent them forth on a meffage attended with great difficulty, amongft hard-hearted people, fome of whom would think that in killing them they did God fervice.

So deep is divine love, that in ftedfaftly abiding in it, we are prepared to deny ourfelves of all that gain which is contrary to pure wifdom, and to follow Chrift, even under contempt, and through fufferings.

While friends were kept truly humble, and walked according to the purity of our principles, the divine witnefs in many hearts was reached; but when a worldly fpirit got entrance, therewith came in luxuries and fuperfluities, and fpread by little and little, even amongft the foremost rank in fociety, and from thence others took liberty in that way more abundantly.

In the continuation of these things from parents to children, there were many wants to fupply, even wants unknown to friends while they faithfully followed Chrift. And in flriving to fupply thefe wants many have exacted on the poor, many have entered on employments, in which they often labour in upholding pride and vanity. Many have looked on one another, been flrengthened in thefe things, one by the example of another, and as to the pure divine feeing, dimnefs hath come over many, and the channels of true brotherly love been obftructed.

People may have no intention to opprefs, yet by entering on expensive ways of life, their minds may be fo entangled therein, and fo engaged to fupport expensive customs, as to be estranged from the pure fympathizing fpirit.

As I have travelled in England, I have had a tender feeling of the condition of poor people, fome of whom though honeft and induftrious, have nothing to fpare toward paying for the fchooling of their children.

There is a proportion between labour and the neceffaries of life, and in true brotherly love the mind is open to feel after the neceffities of the poor.

Amongst the poor there are fome that are weak through age, and others of a weakly nature, who pass through straits in very private life, without asking relief from the publick.

Such who are ftrong and healthy may do that bufinefs, which to the weakly may be oppreffive; and in performing that in a day which

which is effeemed a day's labour, by weakly perfons in the field and in the fhops, and by weakly women who fpin and knit in the manufactories, they often pafs through wearinefs; and many fighs I believe are uttered in fecret, unheard by fome who might eafe their burdens.

Labour in the right medium is healthy, but in too much of it there is a painful wearinefs; and the hardfhips of the poor are fometimes increafed through want of more agreeable nourifhment, more plentiful fewel for the fire, and warmer cloathing in the winter than their wages will anfwer.

When I have beheld plenty in fome houfes to a degree of luxury, the condition of poor children brought up without learning, and the condition of the weakly and aged, who firive to live by their labour, have often revived in my mind, as cafes of which fome who live in fulnefs need to be put in remembrance.

There are few, if any, could behold their fellow-creatures lie long in diftrefs and forbear to help them, when they could do it without any inconvenience; but cuftoms requiring much labour to fupport them, do often lie heavy on the poor, while they who live in thefe cuftoms are fo entangled in a multitude of unneceffary concerns, that they think but little of the hardfhips which the poor people go through.

TTORSHIP in filence hath often been vv refreshing to my mind, and a care attends me that a young generation may feel the nature of this worthip.

Great expence arifeth in relation to that which is called divine worthip.

A confiderable part of this expence is applied toward outward greatnefs, and many poor people in raifing of tithe, labour in fupporting cuftoms contrary to the fimplicity that there is in Chrift, toward whom my mind hath often been moved with pity.

In pure filent worfhip, we dwell under the holy anointing, and feel Chrift to be our fhepherd.

Here the best of teachers ministers to the feveral conditions of his flock, and the foul receives immediately from the divine fountain, that with which it is nourished.

As I have travelled at times where those of other focieties have attended our meetings, and have perceived how little fome of them knew of the nature of filent worfhip; I have felt tender defires in my heart that we who often fit filent in our meetings, may live anfwerable to the nature of an inward fellowthip with God, that no ftumbling block through us, may be laid in their way.

414 ON SILENT WORSHIP.

Such is the load of unneceffary expence which lieth on that which is called divine fervice in many places, and fo much are the minds of many people employed in outward forms and ceremonies, that the opening of an inward filent worfhip in this nation to me hath appeared to be a precious opening.

Within the laft four hundred years, many pious people have been deeply exercifed in foul on account of the fuperfition which prevailed amongst the professed followers of Christ, and in support of their testimony against oppressive idolatry, fome in several ages have finished their course in the stames.

It appears by the hiftory of the reformation, that through the faithfulnefs of the martyrs, the underftandings of many have been opened, and the minds of people, from age to age, been more and more prepared for a real fpiritual worfhip.

My mind is often affected with a fenfe of the condition of those people, who in different ages have been meek and patient, following Christ through great afflictions : And while I behold the several steps of reformation, and that clearness, to which through divine goodness, it hath been brought by our ancestors; I feel tender defires that we who fometimes meet in filence, may never by our conduct lay stumbling-blocks in the way of others, and hinder the progress of the reformation in the world.

It was a complaint against fome who were called the Lord's people, that they brought polluted polluted bread to his altar, and faid the table of the Lord was contemptible.

In real filent worfhip the foul feeds on that which is divine; but we cannot partake of the table of the Lord, and that table which is prepared by the God of this world.

If Chrift is our fhepherd, and feedeth us, and we are faithful in following him, our lives will have an inviting language, and the table of the lord will not be polluted.

QUARTERLY AND MONTHLY MEETINGS OF FRIENDS.

Beloved Friends,

FEELING at this time a renewed concern that the pure principle of light and life, and the righteous fruits thereof may fpread and prevail amongft mankind, there is an engagement on my heart to labour with my brethren in religious profession, that none of us may be a stumbling block in the way of others; but may fo walk that our conduct may reach the pure witness in the hearts of fuch who are not in profession with us.

And, dear friends, while we publicly own that the holy Spirit is our leader, the profeffion is in itfelf weighty, and the weightinefs thereof increafeth, in proportion as we are noted among the profeffors of truth, and active

Many under our profession for want of due attention, and a perfect refignation to this Divine Teacher, have in fome things manifested a deviation from the purity of our religious principles, and these deviations having crept in amongst us by little and little, and increasing from less to greater, have been so far unnoticed, that some living in them, have been active in putting discipline in practice, with relation to others, whose conduct hath appeared more dishonourable in the world.

Now as my mind hath been exercifed before the Lord, I have feen, that the difcipline of the church of Chrift ftandeth in that which is pure; that it is the wifdom from above which gives authority to difcipline; and that the weightinefs thereof ftandeth not in any outward circumftances, but in the authority of Chrift who is the author of it; and where any walk after the flefh, and not according to the purity of truth, and at the fame time are active in putting difcipline in practice, a veil is gradually drawn over the purity of difcipline, and over that holinefs of life, which Chrift leads those into, " in " whom the love of God is verily perfected," I. John ii. 5.

When we labour in true love with offenders, and they remain obflinate, it fometimes is neceffary to proceed as far as our Lord di-E e rected, rected, " Let him be to thee as an heathen " man, or a publican," Mat. xviii. 17.

Now when fuch are difowned, and they who act therein feel Chrift made unto them ' wildom, and are preferved in his meek, reftoring fpirit, there is no just caufe of offence ministred to any; but when such who are active in dealing with offenders indulge themfelves in things which are contrary to the purity of truth, and yet judge others whofe conduct appears more diffionourable than their's, here the pure authority of difcipline ceafeth as to fuch offenders, and a temptation is laid in their way to wrangle and con-tend —" Judge not," faid our Lord, " that " ye be not judged." Now this forbidding, alludes to man's judgment, and points out the neceffity of our humbly attending to that fanctifying power under which the faithful experience the Lord to be " a fpirit of judg-" ment to them," Ifa. xxviii. 6. And as we feel his Holy Spirit to mortify the deeds of the body in us, and can fay, " it is no more " I that live, but Chrift that liveth in me," here right judgment is known.

And while divine love prevails in our hearts, and felf in us is brought under judgment, a preparation is felt to labour in a right manner with offenders; but if we abide not in this love, our outward performance in dealing with others, degenerates into formality; for " this is the love of God, that " we keep his commandments," John i. 3.

COM IN THE AND HAVE

How

How weighty are those instructions of our Redeemer concerning religious duties, when he points out, that they who pray, fhould be fo obedient to the teachings of the Holy Spirit, that humbly confiding in his help, they may fay, "Thy name O Father be hallowed! "Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on " earth as it is in heaven :"——In this awful state of mind is felt that worship which ftands in doing the will of God, on earth, as it is done in heaven, and keeping the holy Name facred. To take a holy profession upon us is awful, nor can we keep this holy Name facred, but by humbly abiding under the crofs of Chrift. The apoftle made a heavy complaint against fome who prophaned this holy Name by their manner of living, " thro' " you," he fays, " the name of God is blaf-" phemed amongft the Gentiles," Rom. ii. 24.

Some of our anceftors through many tribulations were gathered into the flate of true worshippers, and had fellowship in that which is pure, and as one was inwardly moved to kneel down in their affemblies, and publicly call-on the name of the Lord, those in the harmony of united exercise then prefent, joined in the prayer; I mention this in order that we of the prefent age, may look unto the Rock from whence we were hewn, and remember that to unite in worship, is a union in prayer, and that prayer acceptable. to the Father is only in a mind truly fanctified, where the facred name is kept holy, and the heart refigned to do his will on earth as it it is done in heaven, " If ye abide in me," faith Chrift, " and my words abide in you, " ye fhall afk what ye will in my name, " and it fhall be done unto you."—Now we know not what to pray for as we ought, but as the Holy Spirit doth open and direct our minds, and as we faithfully yield to its influences, our prayers are in the will of our heavenly Father, who fails not to grant that which his own fpirit, through his children, afketh ;—thus prefervation from fin is known, and the fruits of righteoufnefs are brought forth by fuch who inwardly unite in prayer. How weighty are our folemn meetings when the name of Chrift is kept holy ?

"How precious is that flate in which the children of the Lord are fo redeemed from the love of this world, that they are accepted and bleffed in all that they do." R. Barclay's Apology, p. 404.

How neceffary is it that we who profess thefe principles, and are outwardly active in fupporting them, fhould faithfully abide in divine ftrength, that " As He who hath call-" ed us, is holy, fo we may be holy in all " manner of conversation." I Pet. i. 15.

If one profefling to be influenced by the fpirit of Chrift, propofeth to unite in a labour to promote righteoufnefs in the earth, and in time paft he hath manifeftly deviated from the path of equity, then to act confiftent with this principle, his firft work is to make reftitution fo far as he may be enabled; for if he attempts to contribute toward a work intended

ed to promote righteoufnefs, while it appears that he neglecteth; or refufeth to act righteoufly himfelf, his conduct has a tendency to entangle the minds of thofe who are weak in the faith, who behold thefe things, and to draw a veil over the purity of righteoufnefs, by carrying an appearance as though that was righteoufnefs which is not.

Again, if I propose to affist in supporting those doctrines wherein that purity of life is held forth, in which customs proceeding from the spirit of this world have no place, and at the same time strengthen others in those customs by my example; the sirft step then in an orderly proceeding, is to cease from those customs myself, and afterwards to labour, as I may be enabled, to promote the like disposition and conduct in others.

To be convinced of the pure principle of truth, and diligently exercised in walking answerable thereto, is necessary before I can confiftently recommend this principle to o-thers.—I often feel a labour in fpirit, that we who are active members in religious fociety may experience in ourfelves the truth of those expressions of the Holy One-" I " will be fanctified in them that come nigh " me." Lev. x. 3.—in this cafe, my mind hath been often exercifed when alone, year after year, for many years, and in the renewings of divine love, a tender care hath been incited in me, that we who profess the inward principle of light to be our teacher, may be a family united in that purity of worfhip,

My mind is often drawn towards children in the truth, who having a fmall fhare of the things of this life, and coming to have families may be inwardly exercifed before the Lord to fupport them in a way agreeable to the purity of truth, in which they may feel his bleffing upon them in their labours; the thoughts of fuch being entangled with cuftoms (contrary to pure wifdom) conveyed to them through our hands, doth often very tenderly and movingly affect my heart, and when I look towards and think on the fucceeding generation, fervent defires are raifed in me, that we by yielding to that Holy Spi-rit which leads into all truth, may not do the work of the Lord deceitfully, may not live contrary to the purity of the divine principle we profefs; but that as faithful labourers in our age, we may be inftrumental in removing flumbling blocks out of the way of thofe who may fucceed us.

So great was the love of Chrift, that he gave himfelf for the church, "that he might "fanctify and cleanfe it, that it fhould be "holy, and without blemifh, not having "fpot or wrinkle, or any fuch thing," Eph. v. 25. and where any take the name of Chrift upon them, profeffing to be members of his church, and led by his Holy Spirit, and yet manifeftly deviate from the purity of truth, they herein act againft the gracious defign of his giving himfelf for them, and minifter

prepared by the father, but the afflictions of his myftical body are yet unfinished; for they who are baptized into Chrift are baptized into his death, and as we humbly abide under his fanctifying power, and are brought forth into newnels of life, we feel Chrift to live in us, who being the fame yesterday, to-day, and forever, and always at unity with himfelf, his fpirit in the hearts of his people leads to an inward exercise for the falvation of mankind; and when under a travail of fpirit, we behold a vifited people entangled by the fpirit of this world with its wickedness and customs, and thereby rendered incapable of being faithful examples to others, forrow and heavinefs under a fenfe of thefe things, is often experienced, and thus in fome meafure is filled up that which remains of the afflictions of Chrift.

Our bleffed Saviour fpeaking concerning gifts offered in divine fervice, fays, "If "thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there "remembereft that thy brother hath ought "againft thee, leave there thy gift before the "altar, and go thy way, firft be reconcil-"ed to thy brother, and then come and "offer thy gift." Mat. v. 23, 24.—Now there is no true unity, but in that wherein the Father and the Son are united, nor can there be a perfect reconciliation but in ceafing from that which minifters caufe for the continuation tinuation of the afflictions of Chrift; and if any profeffing to bring their gift to the altar, do remember the cuftomary contradiction which fome of their fruits bear to the pure, fpiritual worfhip, here it appears neceffary to lay to heart this command, " leave thy gift " by the altar."

Chrift gracioufly calls his people brethren, "whofoever fhall do the will of God the fame "is my brother." Mark iii. 35. Now if we walk contrary to the truth as it is in Jefus while we continue to profefs it, we offend againft Chrift, and if under this offence we bring our gift to the altar, our Redeemer doth not direct us to take back our gift, he doth not difcourage our proceeding in a good work ; but gracioufly points out the neceffary means by which the gift may be rendered acceptable, "leave," faith he, "thy gift by "the altar, firft go and be reconciled to thy brother," ceafe from that which grieves the Holy Spirit, ceafe from that which is againft the truth, as it is in Jefus, and then come, and offer thy gift.

I feel, while I am writing, a tendernefs to those who through divine favour, are preferved in a lively fense of the flate of the churches, and at times may be under difcouragements with regard to proceeding in that pure way which Chriss by his Holy Spirit leads into: the depth of diforder and weakness, which so much prevails, being opened, doubtings are apt to arife as to the possibility of proceeding as an allembly of the the Lord's people in the pure counfel of truth; and here I feel a concern to express in uprightness, that which hath been opened in my mind, under the power of the cross of Chrift, relating to a visible gathered church, the members whereof are guided by the Holy Spirit.

The church is called the body of Chrift, Col. i. 25.

The church is called the pillar, and ground of truth, 1 Tim. iii. 15.

Thus the church hath a name that is facred, and the neceffity of keeping this name holy, appears evident; for where a number of people unite in a profession of being led by the fpirit of Chrift, and publish their principles to the world, the acts and proceedings of that people may in fome measure be confidered as fuch which Chrift is the author of. Now while we ftand in this ftation, if the pure light of life is not followed and regarded in our proceedings, we are in the way of prophaning the holy Name, and of going back toward that wilderness of fufferings and perfecution, out of which, through the tender, mercies of God, a church hath been gather, ed ; " Christ liveth in fanctified vessels," Gal. ii. 20. and where they behold his holy Name profaned, and the pure golpel light eclipfed through the unfaithfulness of any who by their flation appear to be flandard bearers under the Prince of Peace, the living members bers in the body of Chrift in beholding thefe things, do in fome degree experience the fellowfhip of his fufferings, and as the wifdom of the world more and more takes place in conducting the affairs of this vifible gathered church, and the pure leadings of the Holy Spirit are lefs waited for and followed, fo the true fuffering feed is more and more oppreffed.

My mind is often affected with a fenfe of the condition of fincere hearted people in fome kingdoms, where liberty of confcience is not allowed, many of whom being burthened in their minds with prevailing fuperfitition, joined with opprefions, are often under forrow; and where fuch have attended to that pure light which hath in fome degree opened their underftandings, and for their faithfulnefs thereto, have been brought to examination and trial, how heavy are the perfecutions which in divers parts of the world are exercifed upon them? How mighty, as to the outward, is that power by which they are borne down and oppreffed ?

How deeply affecting is the condition of many upright hearted people who are taken into the papal inquifition ? What lamentable cruelties, in deep vaults, in a private way, are exercifed on many of them ? and how lingering is that death by a finall flow fire, which they have frequently indured, who have been faithful to the end ?

How many tender-fpirited protestants have been fentenced to fpend the remainder of their lives lives in a galley chained to oars, under hardhearted mafters, while their young children are placed out for education, and taught principles fo contrary to the confciences of the parents, that by diffenting from them, they have hazarded their liberty, lives, and all that was dear to them of the things of this world ?

There have been in time paft fevere perfecutions under the Englifh government, and many fincere-hearted people have fuffered death for the teftimony of a good confcience, whofe faithfulnefs in their day hath miniftred encouragement to others, and been a bleffing to many who have fucceeded them; thus from age to age, the darknefs being more and more removed, a channel at length, through the tender mercies of God, hath been opened for the exercife of the pure gift of the gofpel miniftry, without interruption from outward power, a work, the like of which is rare, and unknown in many parts of the world.

As these things are often fresh in my mind, and this great work of God going on in the earth has been open before me, that liberty of confcience with which we are favoured, hath appeared not as a light matter.

A truft is committed to us, a great and weighty truft, to which our diligent attention is neceffary: wherever the active members of this vifible gathered church ufe themfelves to that which is contrary to the purity of our principles, it appears to be a breach of this truft, and one ftep back toward the wildernefs, nefs, one ftep towards undoing what God in infinite love hath done through his faithful fervants, in a work of feveral ages, and is like laying the foundation for future fufferings.

I feel a living invitation in my mind to fuch who are active in our religious fociety, that we may lay to heart this matter, and confider the flation in which we fland; a place of outward liberty under the free exercife of our conficence towards God, not obtained but through great and manifold afflictions of thofe who lived before us. There is gratitude due from us to our heavenly Father, and juffice to our pofferity; can our hearts endure, or our hands be flrong, if we defert a caufe fo precious, if we turn afide from a work under which fo many have patiently laboured ?

May the deep fufferings of our Saviour be fo dear to us, that we may never trample under foot the adorable Son of God, nor count the blood of the covenant unholy !

May the faithfulness of the martyrs when the prospect of death by fire was before them, be remembered ! and may the patient conftant fufferings of the upright-hearted fervants of God in latter ages be revived in our minds ! and may we fo follow on to know the Lord, that neither the faithful in this age, nor those in ages to come, may ever be brought under fuffering, through our fliding back from the work of reformation in the world !

While

While the active members in the vilible gathered church ftand upright, and the affairs thereof are carried on under the leadings of the Holy Spirit, altho' diforders may arife among us, and caufe many exercises to those who feel the care of the churches upon them; yet while these continue under the weight of the work, and labour in the meeknefs of wifdom for the help of others, the name of Chrift in the vifible gathered church may be kept facred; but while they who are active in the affairs of this church, continue in a manifest opposition to the purity of our principles, this as the prophet Ifaiah x. 18. ex-preffeth it, is like " as when a ftandard bear-" er fainteth :" and thus the way opens to great, and prevailing degeneracy, and to fufferings for fuch who through the power of divine love, are feparated to the gospel of Chrift, and cannot unite with any thing which stands in opposition to the purity of it. The necessity of an inward stillness, hath under thefe exercifes appeared clear to my mind; in true filence strength is renewed, the mind herein is weaned from all things, but as they may be enjoyed in the divine will, and a lowlinefs in outward living oppofite to worldly honour, becomes truly acceptable to us ;---in the defire after outward gain, the mind is prevented from a perfect attention to the voice of Chrift; but being weaned from all things, but as they may be enjoyed in the divine will, the pure light fhines into the foul: and where the fruits of that that fpirit which is of this world, are brought forth by many who profefs to be led by the fpirit of truth, and cloudinefs is felt to be gathering over the vifible gathered church, the fincere in heart who abide in true ftillnefs, and are exercifed therein before the Lord for his name fake, have a knowledge of Chrift in the fellowfhip of his fufferings, and inward thankfulnefs is felt at times, that thro' divine love our own wifdom is caft out, and that forward active part in us fubjected, which would rife and do fomething in the vifible gathered church, without the pure leadings of the Spirit of Chrift.

While aught remains in us different from a perfect relignation of our wills, it is like a feal to a book wherein is written " that good, " and acceptable, and perfect will of God " concerning us," Rom. xii. 2. but when our minds entirely yield to Chrift, that filence is known, which followeth the opening of the last of the feals, Rev. viii. I. in this filence we learn abiding in the divine will, and there feel, that we have no caufe to promote but that only in which the light of life directs us in our proceedings, and that the alone way to be useful in the church of Chrift, is to abide faithfully under the leadings of his Holy Spirit in all cafes, and being preferved thereby in purity of heart, and holinefs of conversation, a testimony to the purity of his government may be held forth through us, to others. As As

As my mind hath been thus exercifed, I have feen that to be active, and bufy in the visible gathered church, without the leadings of the Holy Spirit is not only unprofitable, but tends to increase dimness, and where way is not opened to proceed in the light of truth, a ftop is felt by those who humbly attend to the Divine Leader, a ftop which in relation to good order in the vifible gathered church, is of the greatest confequence to be observed ; thus Robert Barclay in his treatife on discipline holds' forth, page 65. 68. 84. " That the judgment or conclusion of the church or congregation, is no further effectual as to the true end and defign thereof, but as fuch judgment or conclusion proceeds from the Spirit of God operating on their minds who are fanctified in Chrift Jefus."

Now in this ftop I have learned the neceffity of waiting on the Lord in humility, that the works of all may be brought to light, and those to judgment which are wrought in the wisdom of this world, and have also feen, that in a mind thoroughly subjected to the power of the cross, there is a favour of life to be felt, which evidently tends to gather sould be found to be greatest works in the visible gathered church brought forth in man's wisdom, remain to be unprofitable.

Where people are divinely gathered into a holy fellowfhip, and faithfully abide under the influence of that Spirit which leads into all truth, "they are the light of the world," Mat. v. 14. Now holding this profession, to me me hath appeared weighty, even beyondwhat I can fully express, and what our bleffed Lord feemed to have in view, when he proposed the necessity of counting the cost, before we begin to build.

I truft there are many who at times, under divine vifitation, feel an inward enquiry after God, and when fuch in the fimplicity of their hearts mark the lives of a people who profefs to walk by the leadings of his Spirit, of what great concernment is it that our lights finne clear, that nothing of our conduct carry a contradiction to the truth as it is in Jefus, or be a means of profaning his holy Name, and be a flumbling block in the way of those fincere enquirers:

When fuch feekers who wearied with empty forms, look towards uniting with us as a people, and behold active members among us depart in their cuftomary way of living, from that purity of life, which under humbling exercifes hath been opened before them, as the way of the Lord's people, how mournful and difcouraging is the profpect ! and how ftrongly doth fuch unfaithfulnefs operate againft the fpreading of the peaceable, harmonious principle and teftimony of truth amongft mankind ?

In entering into that life, which is hid with Chrift in God, we behold his peaceable government, where the whole family are governed by the fame fpirit, and the "doing. " to others as we would they fhould do un-" to us," groweth up as good fruit from a good good tree, the peace, quietnefs, and harmonious walking in this government is beheld with humble reverence to him who is the author of it, and in partaking of the Spirit of Chrift, we partake of that which labours, and fuffers for the increase of this peaceable government among the inhabitants of the world; and I have felt a labour of long continuance that we who profess this peaceable principle, may be faithful standard bearers under the Prince of Peace, and that nothing of a defiling nature, tending to discord and wars, may remain among us.

May each of us query with ourfelves, have the treasures I posses, been gathered in that wisdom which is from above, so far as hath appeared to me?

table right to any part which is called mine ? Have the gifts, and poffeffions received by me from others been conveyed in a way free from all unrighteoufnefs fo far as I have feen ?

The principle of peace in which our truft is only on the Lord, and our minds weaned from a dependance on the friength of armies, hath appeared to me very precious, and I often feel ftrong defires, that we who profefs this principle, may fo walk, as to give just caufe for none of our fellow-creatures to be offended at us; that our lives may evidently manifeft, that we are redeemed from that fpirit in which wars are: our bleffed Saviour in pointing out the danger of fo F f leaning on man, as to neglect the leadings of his Holy Spirit, faid, " Call no man your " father upon the earth; for one is your fa-" ther which is in heaven," Mat. xxiii. 9. where the wifdom from above is faithfully followed, and therein we are entrusted with fubstance, it is a treasure committed to our care in the nature of an inheritance, as an' inheritance from him, who formed, and fupports the world. Now in this condition the true enjoyment of the good things of this life is underftood, and that bleffing felt, in which is real fafety; this is what I apprehend our bleffed Lord had in view, when he pronounced, " Bleffed are the meek, for they fhall in-" herit the earth."

Selfifh worldly minded men may hold lands in the felfifh fpirit, and depending on the ftrength of the outward power, be perplexed with fecret uneafinefs, left the injured fhould fometime overpower them, and that meafure meted to them, which they meafure to others. —Thus felfifh men may poffers the earth; but it is the meek who inherit it, and enjoy it as an inheritance from the heavenly Father, free from all the defilements and perplexities of unrighteoufnefs.

Where proceedings have been in that wifdom which is from beneath, and inequitable gain gathered by a man, and left as a gift to his children, who being entangled by the fame worldly fpirit, have not attained to that clearnefs of light in which the channels of righteoufnefs are opened, and juffice done to those those who remain filent under injuries : here I have feen under humbling exercife of mind. that the fins of the fathers are embraced by the children, and become their fins, and thus in the days of tribulation, the iniquities of the fathers are visited upon these children, who take hold of the unrighteoufnefs of their fathers, and live in that fpirit in which those iniquities were committed ; to which agreeth the prophecy of Mofes, concerning a rebellious people. " They that are left of you " fhall pine away in their iniquities, in your " enemy's land, and in the iniquities of their " fathers fhall they pine away." Lev. xxvi. 39. and our bleffed Lord in beholding the hardnefs of heart in that generation, and feeling in himfelf, that they lived in the fame fpirit in which the prophets had been perfecuted unto death, fignified, " that the blood of all " the prophets which was fhed from the " foundation of the world, fhould be requir-" ed of that generation, from the blood of " Abel, unto the blood of Zacharias, which " perifhed between the altar and the temple." Luke xi. 51.

Tender compation fills my heart toward my fellow creatures eftranged from the harmonious government of the Prince of Peace, and a labour attends me, that they may be gathered to this peaceable habitation.

In being inwardly prepared to fuffer adverfity for Chrift's fake, and weaned from a dependance on the arm of flefh, we feel, that there is a reft for the people of God, and that that it ftands in a perfect refignation of ourfelves to his holy Will; in this condition, all our wants and defires are bounded by pure wifdom, and our minds wholly attentive to the council of Chrift inwardly communicated, which hath appeared to me as a habitation of fafety for the Lord's people, in times of outward commotion and trouble, and defires from the fountain of pure love, are opened in me, to invite my brethren and fellow creatures to feel for, and feek after that which gathers the mind into it.
